A New Nabataean Inscription from the Moab Plateau*

Abstract

This paper deals with a new unpublished Nabataean inscription found in al-ʿAdnāniyah town, which is located to the north of Mu'tah in the Governorate of Karak in southern Jordan. The inscription represents a new addition to the corpus of Nabataean inscriptions from the Moab Plateau. The text, which is dated to the 29th year of Aretas IV, mentions the construction of rb'y, a term that has not been attested previously in Nabataean.

1 Introduction

The inscription dealt with here was found in al-ʿAdnāniyah town, which is located approximately 2 km to the north of Mu'tah in the Governorate of Karak in southern Jordan. The coordinates of the site, which lies about 1170 m above the sea level, are 31.122007 and 35.692656.

Al-ʿAdnāniyah, which was called Miḥna in the accounts of early travelers and explorers,<sup>1</sup> was visited by several explorers such as Seetzen (1810: 416), Irby & Mangles (1823: 113), Mauss & Sauvaire (1867: 484), Tristram (1873: 117), Doughty (1888: 22), Brünnow & von Domaszewski (1904–1909 I: 103), Musil (1907–1908: 19, 77, 152, 362, 365) and Glueck (1939: 99–100). The site has been referred to in these accounts as a large ruined village.

Several Nabataean graffiti and inscriptions have been found in the Moab plateau and these include short texts uncovered in Dhāt Rās (Zayadine 1970: 131–132; El-Maani 1996), al-Batra (El-Maani & Kareem 1999: 133) and in Zgaybeh to the west of al-Qaṣr (Worschech 1985: 171). The text that is dealt with in our current paper constitutes an important addition to the corpus of known texts from the Nabataean period in Moab. Moreover, other inscriptions were found at the site and those were dated to the Byzantine and Islamic periods (Canova 1954: 281–284).

Miller's archaeological survey in the Moab Plateau yielded about 967 pottery sherds from al-ʿAdnāniyah. These were dated to the period between the Late Bronze Age and the Ottoman period, including sherds dated to the Nabataean period (Miller 1991: 113). These indicate that the site was continuously and densely inhabited during these periods.

2 The Text

The text was found in the courtyard of one of the traditional houses that were exposed by some treasure hunters (figure 2). We are thankful to Moawiyah Ad-Dhmour, a student in the Department of Archaeology and Tourism at Mu'tah University, for drawing our attention to this remarkable stone.

The stone was seemingly placed originally at the entrance of a nearby cave which might have been a tomb that was sealed by a side door built of soft, dressed limestone blocks approximately 70 cm in height and 45 cm in width. The cave was looted and partially damaged.

The text was incised on a hard and irregular limestone block that measures approximately 72 cm by 51 cm. Its thickness is about 23 cm. The surface of the stone is even and it is naturally flat.

The text consists of five lines and the length of the first line is about 46 cm and the average height of the letters is 7 cm. The letters are irregular in size and the spacing between them is not identical. They can be clearly read except in the last part, which has been defaced, and the part that bears the last word is seemingly broken.

As far as paleography is concerned, one point is worth mentioning here. The form of the letter t, with a loop round the left stroke, is usually found in texts from the late 2nd to the 4th century AD and it is surprising to find it here in a text dated to the reign of Aretas IV, both in medial and final position (for discussion see Nehmé 2010). This confirms that a particular letter shape cannot be used as an absolute method to date a text but may only give a general and hypothetical indication.

2.1 Transliteration

dʾ rbʿyʾ dy ʿbd
ḥbrw br ʿwšw lʿlh
gʿyʾ bšnt ʿšryn
wtšʿ lḥrtt
mlk nbṭw rḥm [ʿmh]

2.2 Translation

This is the “resting-place or (square) plaque” which ḥbrw son of ʿwšw constructed for the god of Gaia in the year twenty-nine of (the reign of) Aretas, king of the Nabataeans, lover of his [people].

2.3 Commentary

dʾ: “this” (feminine) (Hoftijzer & Jongeling 1995: 333ff).

rbʿyʾ: “resting-place” or “(square) plaque”.

This word is not found in this current form in Nabataean, but there are other forms derived from the root rbʿ attested in Nabataean and they are found in texts referring to religious constructions and dedications.

The root of the word is related to the Semitic root rbʿ that has different meanings. The word rabaʿa رباعة has different meanings in Arabic and one of them is “remained, abode, dwelt”, while marba مَرْبَع means “house” (Lane 2003: 128). Another meaning of this word is “four” and it may refer to structure with four corners. Nehmé linked the word with the Semitic root rbḏ “lie down” and concludes that the words ʾrbʿn and rbʿt mean “ritual couches” dedicated to gods (2003). ʾrbʿn and rbʿt are attested in inscriptions found in Sidon (CIS II 160), Cos (Levi Della Vida 1938), Tell esh-Shuqafiyyeh (Fiema & Jones 1990: 240), Kharabā (Dussaud & Macler 1903: 313), Boşrā (Littmann 1914: 71), Umm as-Surāb (Littmann 1914: 2), Petra (Nehmé 2003: fig. 9) and Şirwāḥ in southern Arabia (Nebes 2006: 10).

The following table summarizes the Nabataean texts that contain rbʿt and ʾrbʿn:

Table 1: Attestations of rbʿt and ʾrbʿn

Word	Place	Comments
rbʿt	Kharabā	The name of the divinity to whom the text was dedicated is missing.
[r]bʿt	Boşrā	The name of the divinity to whom the text was dedicated is missing.
ʾrbʿn	Umm as-Surāb	The name of the divinity to whom the text was dedicated is missing.

dy: a well-known relative pronoun meaning “which, that”.

bd: “made, constructed”. This verb occurs frequently in Nabataean Aramaic, Hebrew, Palmyrene and Hatran (Hoftijzer & Jongeling 1995: 1029).

ḥbrw: This is the name of the dedicator. It is attested twice in two Nabataean inscriptions discovered in Sarmadāʾ in Saudi Arabia (Al-Theeb 2014: nos. 11, 76). It may be compared with ḥbr and ḥbrm that are found in pre-Islamic Arabian inscriptions (Harding 1971: 84).

ʾwšw: This name is common in Nabataean inscriptions and occurs in Nabataean in other forms such as ʾwyšw and ʾwšʾlhy (Negev 1991: 11). It occurs frequently in Pre-Islamic Arabian inscriptions (Harding 1971: 84).

ʾlh gʾy: gʾy = Gaia is to be identified with modern-day Wādī Mūsā. This toponym goes back to the Nabataean period and is attested in Nabataean in inscriptions uncovered in Oboda, al-Jawf, Wādī Rum and Wādī Mūsā (Negev 1963: 113–117; Savignac & Starcky 1957: 198; Savignac 1934: 574–575). It originated from the Semitic word gʾy, which means “valley, a place where the waters flow together, low plain” (Gesenius 1844: 194). This name appears in different forms in Nabataean theophoric personal names such as ʾmtʾlgʾ, ʾbdʾlgʾ (Littmann 1914: n. 9, CIS II 157, 173, 1205) and ʾbdʾlgyʾ (CIS II 3138), meaning “the servant of (the god) of Eljī” (Al-Khaysheh 1986: 127; Negev 1991: 788, 790). The word gʾy is attested also as a tribal name in Hismaic inscriptions (King 1990: nos. 42, 647). For more details about Gaia, see Al-Salameen & Falahat (2012).

Who was the “god of Gaia”?

Al-ʿUzzā and al-Kutbā are linked with Gaia, and their names appear in an inscription from ʿAyn esh-Shallaleh in Wādī Rum (Savignac 1934: 574–575, no. 17; Strugnell 1959: 29–31). The term “the god of Gaia” is mentioned three times in Nabataean:

1. In an inscription found in el-Mʿeishreh to the north of the Petra city centre. This refers to the dedication of an ʾgnʾ, “basin”, to ʾlh [ʾl]gyʾ ʾlhʾ “Ilāh-al-Gia, the god” (Dalman 1912: no. 35).
2. In a dedicatory inscription from al-Jawf which confirms that there was a sanctuary, mḥrmtʾ, dedicated to Dushara the god of Gaia, dwšrʾ ʾlh gʾyʾ (Savignac & Starcky 1957: 196–217).
3. In a dedicatory inscription from Oboda that refers to the members of the mrzḥʾ of Dushara the god of Gaia, dwšrʾ ʾlh gʾyʾ (Negev 1963: no. 10).

It appears that Dushara, who was the major Nabataean deity, was the god of Gaia. He was given many titles and described as “Lord of the House (temple)”, “Lord of heaven and earth”, “God of our Lord (the king)” and “the one who separates night from day” (Zayadine 2003: 59).

bšnt ʾšryn wtšʿ: bšnt “in the year of”. šnt is a feminine singular noun “year” which appears frequently in dated Nabataean texts. The word is followed then by the year when the text was written: ʾšryn wtšʿ “in the year twenty-nine” of Aretas IV, which is AD 20.

lḥrtt mlk nbṭw rḥm [ʾmh]: “of (the reign of) Aretas, king of the Nabataeans, lover of his [people]”. This formula is common in Nabataean.

3 Conclusion

This article discussed a new Nabataean inscription found in Moab (southern Jordan), dated to the 29th year of Aretas IV (AD 20). It mentions the construction of rb'y, a term that has not been attested previously in Nabataean. The text represents a new additional supplement to the previously known Nabataean inscriptions from the Moab Plateau.
