Title: Contesting sharia : state law, decentralization and Minangkabau custom

Issue Date: 2013-12-04

Glossary

ABS-SBK. An abbreviation for the maxim, adat basandi syarak, syarak basandi kitabullah, (Adat based on Sharia, Sharia based on the Quran). This maxim is widely used to justify the harmony between Islam, Sharia, and Minangkabau adat. It also implies that Minangkabau adat is subordinate to Islam and that adat is valid as long as its rules are in accordance with Sharia. This maxim is transformed from an old maxim: adat basandi Syarak, Syarak basandi adat, (adat based on Sharia, Sharia based on adat). This maxim indicates that Sharia was subordinate in adat rules in which Sharia is only applied as long as its rules are in line with adat rules. However, there is considerable dispute among the Minangkabau people as to which maxim should take precedence.

adat. The meaning of adat covers local custom, traditional law, morality, political systems, legal systems. In the Minangkabau world view, adat and Islam are considered the two pillars of society.

‘āmil zakāt. Zakāt collector that might be an individual or institution. According to Sharia an ‘āmil is entitled to receive zakāt revenue.

‘awra, ‘awrāt (plural). Part of the body needed to be covered when one is together with non-family members, except in emergency situations.

BAM. An abbreviation for Budaya Alam Minangkabau. It is a new subject of study created under local autonomy, taught at the schools in West Sumatra as an attempt to maintain Minangkabau society. Its contents covers the foundation of Minangkabau society according to adat.

BAZ. An abbreviation for Badan Amil Zakāt, the institution of zakāt managed by the local government. This name was commonly used before the central government passed law 38/1999.

BAZDA. An abbreviation for Badan Amil Zakāt Daerah, the institution of zakāt under local government that is commonly used after the central government passed law 38/1999.

BAZIS. An abbreviation for Badan Amil Zakat, Infag dan Sadāqa, the institution established by local government that voluntarily collected zakāt, and other forms of Islamic charities.

BAZNAS. An abbreviation for Badan Amil Zakat Nasional, the institution of zakāt established by the central government. According to law 38/1999 this institution is set up at a national level, while according to law No.23/1999 BAZNAS it is also used in regions/municipalities.

BPUPK. An abbreviation for Badan Penyelidik Usaha-usaha Persiapan Kemerdekaan, (Dokuritu Zyunbi Tyoosakai) the Investigating committee for the preparation of independence. This committee was established on 29 April 1945 to prepare for Indonesian independence, declared on 17 August 1945. In several literatures the name of BPUPK is added to a word Indonesian which is clearly incorrect because this committee was set up by the rikugun (Japanese Army), which had authority in the regions of Java and Madura. A similar committee, namely, Cuo Sangi In, was set up for Sumatra in May 1945. There was no such committee in the eastern part of the archipelago.

Bupati. The head of the region that was selected the general election for the first time in 2005. Previously, this position had been selected by members of regional parliament.

BTA. An abbreviation for Baca Tulis al-Quran. This is a new subject, created under the local autonomy, taught at primary schools in West Sumatra as part of implementation of the provincial as well as regional/municipal law on the obligation to have the ability to recite the Quran.
