It is regrettable that the most recent list of bishops, who we know to have officiated in Egypt at some point in time (compiled by G. Fedalto) does not pay any attention to the evidence of the documentary papyri from Byzantine Egypt. Similar reference works also appear to contain certain omissions and/or errors. It would, moreover, be desirable that these reference works were used to supplement each other. The following handlists are intended to provide scholars with elementary information concerning the sees and the names of bishops in Byzantine Egypt between 325 and c. 750 A.D. This span of time has been suggested by the fact that there is little chance that a Greek papyrus from Egypt written before A.D. 325 would mention a Christian bishop (in general, there is not much information about bishops in the Egyptian χώρα before the Council of Nicaea), and that there are hardly any papyri written in Greek and dating from after c. 750 A.D. (cf. BSAC 26 [1984] 99-108). The idea to start working as a Greek papyrologist on such lists was inspired by W. van Gucht's interesting article Some Egyptian Bishops and the Date of P.Landlisten (Proc. XVIIth International Congress of Papyrology, III [Naples 1984] 1135-40) in which he pointed out that the date of two Greek documentary papyrus codices lacking an absolute date could be established fairly precisely with the help of the literary tradition concerning bishops in 4th-century Egypt. Editors of documentary papyri should, of course, pay attention to such literary sources, just as, vice versa, scholars belonging to other disciplines should always exploit the data from the papyri as much as possible. For their benefit I have compiled the following lists:

A: (ARCH-)BISHOPS IN GREEK DOCUMENTARY PAPYRI AND INSCRIPTIONS FROM BYZANTINE EGYPT:

A.1: Arranged by Edition

A.2: Arranged by Locality

A.3: Arranged by Name a: Bishops before A.D.400
 b: Bishops after A.D.400

The basic materials for these lists were retrieved from the Duke Data Bank of Documentary Papyri (PHI CD ROM # 6) (searching for words starting with ἐπισκοπ-) and from F. Preisigke, Wörterbuch der griechischen Papyrusurkunden, III Abschn. 21 s.v. ἐπίσκοπος. Papyri are cited according to the abbreviations listed in J.F. Oates a.o., *Checklist of Editions of Greek Papyri, Ostraka and Tablets*⁴, 1992 (BASP Suppl. 7); the (few) abbreviations of inscriptions from Egypt are:

Lef.: G. Lefebvre, Recueil des inscriptions grecques-chrétiennes d'Égypte. Le Caire 1907 (repr. Chicago 1978).

I.Pan: A. Bernand, Pan du désert. Leiden 1977.

I.Phil.: E. Bernand, Les inscriptions grecques de Philae, II: Haut et Bas Empire. Paris 1969.

I.Syring.: J. Baillet, Inscriptions grecques et latines des tombeaux des rois ou syringues. Le Caire 1926.

NB: Papyri mentioning any bishop(s) officiating outside of Egypt are listed only in list A.1 (P.Cair.Masp. II 67168 [Pentapolis]; P.Leid.Inst. 13 [Mytilene]; P.Ness. III 50-52 [Nessana]; PSI IV 311 [Laodicea]); they are neglected in lists A.2 and A.3.

B: BISHOPS IN COPTIC DOCUMENTARY SOURCES FROM BYZANTINE EGYPT

B.1: Bishops found in W.C. Till, Datierung und Prosopographie

B.1.1: Arranged by Locality

B.1.2: Arranged by Name

The materials for this list (dealing mainly with bishops in the Thebaid) are in Till's well-known monograph.

B.2: Bishops in other Coptic sources (i.e. not in Till, op.cit.)

B.2.1: Arranged by Locality

B.2.2: Arranged by Name

For this list I searched only through the major monographical publications of Coptic documentary papyri, especially as far as these contain material from outside the Thebaid (already listed by Till); for abbreviations used see the checklist of Coptic documentary papyri compiled by A. A. Schiller in BASP 13 [1976] 99-123.¹

¹ I am grateful to Dr. M. Hasitzka (Vienna) who is currently preparing a Sammelbuch of Coptic documentary sources originally published in journal articles; she searched her files for any bishops which might need to be incorporated into my lists. It turned out that there were among the documents known to her no sources relevant for the period A.D. 325- ca. 750. Likewise, I should like to express here my gratitude to W. Clarysse (Leuven) and W.G. Brokkaar (Amsterdam) who furthered my work by providing me with useful information and by making some abstruse sources available to me. Furthermore I am grateful to Mr. J. Cowey who kindly checked my English.

C: BISHOPS IN GREEK AND COPTIC (SEMI)-LITERARY SOURCES

C.1: Arranged by Locality

C.2: Arranged by Name

For these I have concentrated upon comparing two modern reference works with one another and referring to them: see the works by S. Timm and G. Fedalto. In some cases I have added supplementary references to other relevant works. In cases where Fedalto's work contained the same data as that of Timm, I have not referred specifically to Fedalto's list, but limited myself to providing references to Timm. For the user's convenience I repeat in list C.1 the data listed in A.2, B.1.1 and B.2.1.

Finally, in section D (p. 316ff.) I have made some remarks on (a) sees of bishops which cannot be identified with a metropolis of an Egyptian nome, (b) on the relationship between our papyrological documentation and the (semi-)literary tradition and (c) on pagan names born by Christian bishops.

¹⁰ The ed. assigns this fourth-century papyrus to Hermopolis on the grounds that it was acquired together with papyri which certainly came from Hermopolis. But whether the text was really written in Hermopolis must remain an open question; in itself it is conceivable that it was written in Lycopolis (for a bishop Plousianos officiating in Lycopolis cf. below, section C.1) but transferred at some later stage to Hermopolis.

¹⁴ Cf. P.Lond. 1914.6 n.

¹⁵ See ed.'s note ad loc.; possibly the name should be read as Κάλης, in which case the Meletian bishop of Hermonthis was meant.

¹⁶ It is not certain that Ioannes was a bishop officiating in the village of Aphrodito. On this question see below, p. 317.

⁴⁶ For the dossier concerning this bishop of Arsinoe cf. also Archiv 37 (1991) 51-54. Like J.C. Shelton (P.Brook. 16, introd.) I cannot escape thinking that all Vienna texts in SPP III, VIII and in SB I 5254 mentioning a bishop Peter may refer in practice to the same person as the bishop Peter mentioned in texts now kept in Paris (SB I 4819, 4832; in view of their invocation formula both texts are, like SB I 5254, to be dated later than A.D. 641), in Brooklyn (P.Brook. 16) and in Berlin (P.Berl.Zill. 8). If this idea is correct, it means that the date of the SPP III texts should be moved from the VIth to the VIIth century (for the date of SPP XX 253 and 272 cf. also Pros.Ars. s.n. 4072). Nothing prevents us from connecting the inscription SB I 1449 with this bishop Peter.

C: BISHOPS IN GREEK AND COPTIC (SEMI)-LITERARY SOURCES

C.1: Arranged by Locality (Nome-metropoleis are marked with an *; cf. below, p. 316 ff.)

NB: References between () refer to fictitious bishops, cf. S.Timm I 15 n.31; >404 = some time before 404; 362> = some time after 362.

Achaia⁷⁰ (Fedalto 603; apparently not listed by Timm)

>404	Mousaios	Fedalto 603
404	Apollon	Fedalto 603
431	Kyros	Fedalto 603

Alexandria: for a detailed listing see Fedalto 581-590; For Alexandrian bishops in the 4th century A.D. cf. also Hauben in Proceedings XVIth Congress of Papyrology 447-456 and in Miscellanea philologica et historica R. Bogaert & H. van Looy oblata 155-167.

Alphocranon: Cf. s.n. Phragonis

⁷⁰ Is this a misspelling for Chaireou (for this locality cf. Timm III 1230)?

Andropolis = Ḥarbatā (Timm III 1091f.; Fedalto 591 s.n.)

362 Zoilos Timm 1093
689 Iakob Timm 1091⁷¹

Antaiopolis = Qāw (al-Kabīr) (Timm V 2120f.; Fedalto 640 s. Antaeopolis, Apollinis civitas)

325 Dios Timm 2122⁷²
431-451 Makarios Timm 2122
458-459 Apollon Timm 2123⁷³
Byz. Makrobios Timm 2123⁷³
c. 500-550 Κεφάλων P.Cair.Masp. III 295.iii.19; 326.4

Cf. also s.n. Apollinopolis parva

Antinoopolis = Anṣinā (Timm I 111f.; Fedalto 639 s. Antinoes)

325-343 Loukios Timm 112; Munier 6-7
325-347 Tyrannos Timm 112
>347 Ammoni(an)os Timm 112; P.Herm.Landl.I 298 = II 510 (c. 350)
347 Arion Timm 112; P.Herm.Landl.I 305 = II 519-20; Anh. I 59 (c. 350)
c. 350 Μακάριος P.Herm.Landl. I 512 = II 731; Anh. I 50
IV-V Athanasios Timm 113⁷³
c. 450 Theodoros Timm 113⁷³
553 Prokopios Timm 113
c. 600 Senouthios Timm 113⁷⁴
V-VII Victor Timm 113⁷³
V-VII Isaak Timm 113⁷⁵

Aphnaion = Aphnaion (Timm I 137f.; Fedalto 603 s. Aphnaeum)

431-451 Hierax/Hierakios Timm 138

Aphroditopolis = Aṭṭīḥ (Timm I 251f.; Fedalto 630 s.n.)

>339 Theodoros Timm 251
339 Serenos Timm 251
431 Chrysaorios Timm 251; Munier 16

Apollinopolis ano / Magna = Idfū' (Timm III 1148f.; Fedalto 648 s. Apollonopolis Magna⁷⁶)

VII Horame Timm 1149; cf. Till 96
c. 600 Senouthios ?⁷⁷
649 Theodoros Timm 1150; cf. Till 218
VI/VII Taurinos ? Till 214⁷⁸
VI/VII Μακάριος SB XVI 12869.1

Apollinopolis Parva = Kōm Isfaht (Timm III 1433f.; Fedalto 640 s. Apollinis civitas)

>339 Ploution⁷⁹ Timm 1434

⁷¹ Omitted by Fedalto 591.

⁷² Munier 4-5 wrongly equates ΤΚ00Υ with Apollinopolis Parva! Fedalto p. 640 also puts this bishop under Apollinis civitas.

⁷³ Omitted by Fedalto.

⁷⁴ Omitted by Fedalto. Or was this Senouthios in fact bishop of Apollinopolis Magna? Cf. P.Grenf. I 63 and C. Garitte, Studies W.E. Crum 304 n.1.

⁷⁵ Fedalto p. 639 dates this bishop c. 1086.

⁷⁶ Fedalto does not mention any bishop by name.

⁷⁷ Or was Senouthios in fact bishop of Antinoopolis, q.v.? Cf. P.Grenf. I 63.

⁷⁸ Add the Greek papyrus P.Grenf. I 66.4 and the Coptic papyrus Ryl 288 to Till's references? Cf. also the remark by Crum to VC # 38 n. 1 concerning Taurinos, Senouthios and Konstantinos.

⁷⁹ Ms. Polotion, probably a misspelling of the common name Ploution.

⁸⁴ Omitted by Fedalto.

⁸⁵ To me it seems telling that this bishop occurs together with other bishops from the Thebaid. Likewise Fedalto p. 656, but he attributes this bishop to 'Diospolis magna' = Thebes while not distinguishing between Thebes/Luxor and Hūw.

⁸⁶ Fedalto lists the place but he does not mention any bishop.

⁸⁷ Ms. Diospakos. Timm 1121 seems wrong in thinking that there is no Diospolis near the sea (cf. also his interpretation [VI 2905] that "am Ufer des Meeres" should mean instead "am Ufer des Nils").

⁸⁸ Fedalto refers to Mansi VII col. 920. Cf. PG LXXXV 1620, where Migne prints Ἐλειτῶν, apparently taken by Fedalto to conceal the name of the inhabitants of Helearchia (cf., however, E. Schwartz,

For the relationship between the Helearchia, Pachnemounis and Phragonis cf. Timm I 361 n.1.: Agathos was in A.D. 362 bishop of Phragonis and part of the Helearchia, Ammonios bishop of Pachnemounis and the other part of the Helearchia.

¹⁵⁰ Omitted by Fedalto. Fedalto, on the other hand, lists a bishop Heron (360-363), but he does not need to be a bishop of Thebes; only his origin is Theban (cf. PG LXXXII 743 n. 50,51).

¹⁵¹ It is not quite certain whether 'Ape', the place where Antonios was in office, is identical with Luxor = Thebes.

¹⁵³ Ms. Thineos. Timm VI 2687 attributes Isaak to Thenessos = Tinnis; cf. the preceding entry.

¹⁵⁴ Cf. above s.n. Tawā.

¹⁵⁵ Cf. Timm I 82, 92 n.13, 327 n.6. It does not seem attractive to me to suppose that in A.D. 325 there was even a third bishop in Thmouis / Timay, viz. Tiberios, who came according to the Latin and Greek sources from the 'Tauthites', while the Coptic sources place him 'in ΘΜΟΥΙ'. I have placed him under Tawā = Tuwwa.

One can only observe that there are quite a few localities in Egypt which never had the status of a metropolis or any other form of 'city' status, in other words: it was evidently possible that there were times when a bishop could be resident in what was technically a village (on this question see in general A.H.M. Jones, The Later Roman Empire, 875-77 and notes). This raises, especially for a papyrologist, the question of the locality where a few bishops mentioned in papyri from Aphrodito actually officiated, in other words: are the bishops Θεόδωρος in P.Haun. III 65.7 (V/VI), Ἰωάννης in P.Michael. 41.69 (539/554) and Φοιβάδιος in P.Giss. 55.7 (VI) really bishops of Aphrodito, or are they bishops of an adjacent metropolis (e.g. Antaiopolis?) under the jurisdiction of which the village Aphrodito fell (for this village see now the remarks in REG 105 [1992] 235-6)? I cannot find any arguments in these texts which militate against the idea that the bishops referred to may have officiated outside of Aphrodito (and Aphrodite is not indicated as being an independent bishopric on S. Timm's map Ägypten. Das Christentum bis zur Araberzeit (bis zum 7. Jahrhundert) [Wiesbaden 1983; TAVO B VI 15]). Furthermore, it may be observed that in the papyri we find no parallel for a bishop who clearly resides in a village (for the peculiar situation in Philae cf. the remarks by D. Feissel and K.A. Worp in OMRO 68 (1988) 97-111, esp. p.101f. note to line 3; evidently we are dealing here with a chorepiskopos [for these cf. Lexikon des Mittelalters, II 1884, Art. "Chorbischof"; J. Aßfalg - P. Krüger, Kleines Wörterbuch des Christlichen Orients 88, Art. Chorbischof; D. Feissel in Actes XI^e Congr. d'archéologie chrétienne, Rome 1989, 814ff.]). The literary documentation, however, seems to offer quite a few attestations of this phenomenon and there does not seem to be an unambiguous answer to the question (cf. also above, fnn. 137, 152).

(b) It is also well worth observing that, as far as the documentation which covers Egypt in general is concerned, the papyrological documentation provides us with a picture quite different from that which we have from the 'literary' documentation. Both the Greek and the Coptic papyri tend to give information mainly about cities in Middle and Upper Egypt (the cities referred to are: Antaiopolis, Antinoopolis, Apollinopolis Ano, Arsinoe, Diokletianopolis/Kos, Diospolis Parva, Herakleopolis, Hermonthis, Hermopolis, Koptos, Letopolis, Lykopolis, Maximianopolis, Oxyrhynchus, Panopolis, Philae, Syene, Theodosiopolis; only Letopolis is in the Delta) whereas a great many of our literary sources refer to localities in the Delta. For this reason overlap between the documentary and literary sources is rather accidental and occurs in only a few cases. I note:

before A.D.400

Ἀθανάσιος	Alexandria	Lef. 380 = SB V 8698 (328-373)
Ἀμμωνιανός / Ἀμμώνιος	Antinoopolis	P.Herm.Landl. I 298 = II 510 (c. 350)
Ἀρίων	Antinoopolis	P.Herm.Landl. I 305 = II 519; Anh. I 59 (c. 350)

¹⁷⁰ Cf. above, fn. 10.

Θεόδωρος	Oxyrhynchos	P.Oxy. XXXIV 2729.8 (c. 352; cf. Aegyptus 64 [1984] 219)
after A.D.400
Θεόφιλος	Alexandria	SB VI 9527.5 (385-412)
Ταυρίνος	Apollinop. Ano	P.Grenf. I 66.4 (VI/VII)
Καλοσίριος	Arsinoe	P.Prag. I 100.2; 101.1 (V)
Ἀβραάμιος	Hermonthis	P.Lond. I 77.16 (c. 600)
Πέτρος	Oxyrhynchos	P.Oxy. XVI 1967.3 (427)

(c) Finally, attention may be drawn to the fact that quite a few of the Egyptian bishops listed in this paper bore distinctly pagan names which supposedly might have been offensive to Christian ears. It is now evident that there was, after all, no absolute need for a bishop to bear a 100% 'Christian' name like Abraham, Petros, Paulos, etc.; names with an element, e.g., /ammon/ or /osiris/ were acceptable enough. Furthermore, the literary tradition has transmitted quite a few strange names not known from other, esp. papyrological sources; they probably are no more than scribal mistakes made during the Mss transmission of the individual texts concerned: cf., e.g., Aiglou, Apelleon (>Apollon?), Arabion (> Sarapion?), Athas, Hadra (>Hatres?), Masios, Phasileus (>Basilios?), Psoulousia, Titonas (> Tithoes?) and also supra, list C.2, under Pabiskos, Pininouthes, Pirozos, Plousammon, Ploution. On the other hand, a name like that of the bishop 'Verses' (Omboi, 402) transmitted by Hieronymus Ep. XCVIII.26 [cf. the Budé edition by J. Labourt, vol. V, Paris 1955] and sometimes 'corrected' into the well-known Latin name 'Verres' is quite acceptable once it is taken into account that a name Οὐερσῆς is listed in F. Preisigke's Namenbuch.
