Curriculum vitae

Judith Dijs was born in The Hague on 3 May 1962. After completing her secondary education at the Gymnasium Haganum in the Hague (1974–1980), she studied classical languages (MA in 1988) and philosophy (MA in 1989) at Leiden University. From 1989 until 1993 she worked at the Institute for Philosophy of Leiden University as a PhD candidate. After teaching classical languages at the Gymnasium Haganum for a brief period (1994–1995) she was employed at Bowne Global Solutions as project manager, translator and editor of medical, technical and software localisation projects (1995–2001). Since 2001 she is an independent translator/editor. Her work includes the localisation and translation of general, medical and technical software and manuals, and the editing and translation of commercial books (non-fiction) and academic texts (humaniora).
