My gratitude to the institutions which financially supported this research at different stages: the KNAW China Exchange Program (the Netherlands), the Chiang Ching-kuo Foundation, the Academia Sinica (Taiwan), and the Ministry of Education (Taiwan).

Acknowledgements

This dissertation would not have been completed without the kind support, encouragement, and guidance of the following people, all of whom helped me in various ways. I would like to take this opportunity now to express my sincerest gratitude to them.

First of all, I am very grateful to all of my interviewees, most of whose real names I cannot disclose here, for their time and the trust they showed in me. Without their help, I would never have been able to study and comprehend the many facets and historical development of China's tobacco industry. I also have come to appreciate the generosity and enthusiasm of Prof. Benjamin van Rooij, Prof. Wang Qiliang, Prof. Lo Meijuan, Prof. Yi-Chieh Lin, Ren Chaoying, Qian Xiaohua, Lu Caizhen, Yin Hongwei, Xia Peishan, Zhang Yaozu, and Cheng Xiaoya, who helped me to create connections during the course of my fieldwork between 2008 and 2011, which proved vital to the research processes required to write and substantiate such a dissertation.

This research partially arose out of the project "The Political Economy of Rent Seeking and Economic Privilege in China" funded by the KNAW China Exchange Program. I also would like to thank the members who contributed to this project: Prof. Wu Yongping, Prof. Yin Chunyi, Zhang Lin, Jin Biao, Song Chunli, Chen Yiling, and Tang Zhiling. They provided, in addition to a good measure of inspiration, intellectual stimulation and substantial support during my time in China.

A very special thank you goes to Melody Lu and André van Dokkum. From Leiden in the West Europe to Taiwan and Macau in East Asia, they have stood by me every step of the way, seeing me through the difficult times (of which there were not a few) and sharing the joy of achievement with me. Their company has been invaluable, and the Samenvatting would never have appeared without André's help. The years spent in the great university town of Leiden have been the richer due to the presence of such people as Hugo M. Nijhof, Cynthia Jimenez Monroy, Yu-Fan Chiu, Brian Granger, Waiman Chueng, Eric Chen, Elise Baardman, Meta van Heusden, Edoardo Ramos Anaya, Syuan-Yuan Chiou, Chin-Hui Lin, Li-Fang Liang, Mei-Wen Chen, Yu-Jen Chen, Juo-Lan Li, Yi-Chi Chen, and Shih-Chen Cheng. Their warm friendship and kind help have been a blessing, and I will always remember the happy times we spent together.

Finally, words cannot fully express the debt I owe to my family. It certainly was not easy for my parents, Chun-Hsiu Cheng and Chu-Hua Chen, to understand why a daughter of theirs would want to spend what seemed like a lifetime to study and write a PhD dissertation. Their support, however, never wavered. My father passed away unexpectedly as I was waiting to defend my dissertation. He will not be able to witness my defense, but his love remains and continues to give me strength and courage. This dissertation is dedicated to his memory and to my dear mother.
