

Universiteit
Leiden
The Netherlands

World views and military policies in the early Roman and Western Han empires

Wang, Z.

Citation

Wang, Z. (2015, December 17). World views and military policies in the early Roman and Western Han empires. Retrieved from <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/37048>

Version: Not Applicable (or Unknown)

License: Licence agreement concerning inclusion of doctoral thesis in the Institutional Repository of the University of Leiden

Downloaded from: <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/37048>

Note: To cite this publication please use the final published version (if applicable).

Cover Page

Universiteit Leiden

The handle <http://hdl.handle.net/1887/37048> holds various files of this Leiden University dissertation

Author: Zhongxiao Wang

Title: World views and military policies in the Early Roman and Western Han empires

Issue Date: 2015-12-17

Zhongxiao Wang

World Views and Military
Policies in the Early Roman
and Western Han Empires

Cover images:

front: Great Cameo of France, © Marie-Lan Nguyen / Wikimedia

back: Carved stone relief of Han chariot, authorized by www.huitu.com

Cover design: the author

© 2015 Zhongxiao Wang

All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted, in any form or by any means, electronics, mechanical, photocopying, recording, or otherwise, without the permission in writing from the proprietor.

World Views and Military
Policies in the Early Roman
and Western Han Empires

Proefschrift

ter verkrijging van de graad van Doctor aan de Universiteit Leiden, op gezag van Rector Magnificus prof. mr. C.J.J.M. Stolker, volgens besluit van het College voor Promoties te verdedigen op donderdag 17 december 2015 klokke 10.00 uur

door

Zhongxiao Wang

geboren te Zoucheng, China op 3 november 1984

Promotor: Prof. dr. L. de Ligt

Promotiecommissie: Prof. dr. H.G.D.G. de Weerdt, Universiteit Leiden
Prof. dr. O. J. Hekster, Radboud Universiteit
Prof. dr. P. F. Bang, University of Copenhagen
Prof. dr. J. L. Blussé van Oud Alblas, Universiteit Leiden
Prof. dr. B. Schoenmaker, Universiteit Leiden
Dr. K. Beerden, Universiteit Leiden

The research for this dissertation has been financially supported by the China Scholarship Council (CSC)

Table of Contents

Table of Contents

Acknowledgements .....	viii
Introduction .....	1
Chapter 1. Roman worldviews during the Republic .....	7
1.1 Introduction
1.2 Roman worldviews during the Middle and Late Republic
1.3 The emergence of the idea of world domination during the Late Republic
1.4 Imperium sine fine and the idea of Roman world domination
Chapter 2. Chinese worldviews from the late Shang to the Qin period (c. 1200 BC – 200 BC) .....	27
2.1 Introduction
2.2 Worldviews between the late Shang and late Zhou periods
2.2.1 Zhong and Sifang/Situ : concepts of space in the mental map of the Shang people
2.2.2 Sifang and Zhongguo : worldviews in the Western Zhou period
2.2.3 Changes in world views during the Spring and Autumn and Warring States periods
2.3 The stele Inscriptions of Qin Shi Huang
2.3.1 Background
2.3.2 Tianxia in the Stelae
2.3.3 Tianxia in Sima Qian's biography of Qin Shi Huang
2.4 Alternative worldviews in Qin China
2.5 Rome and China compared
Chapter 3. From Orbis terrarum to Orbis Romanus: the Imperium Romanum transformed .....	64

- 3.1 Introduction
- 3.2 Fines imperii: limits of power or limits of territory?
- 3.3 Frontiers, foreign relations and imperial expansion during the first and second centuries AD
  - 3.3.1 Client kingdoms
  - 3.3.2 Parthia and the East
  - 3.3.3 North-West and Central Europe (the Rhine and Danube frontiers)
- 3.4 Frontier policy making and the Grand Strategy revisited
- 3.5 Developments in the frontier zone
  - 3.5.1 Rivers as natural boundaries
- 3.6 The development of the limes system in the second century
- 3.7 A change in worldviews during the second century AD?
- 3.8 Conclusion

Chapter 4. The rise of Chinese imperialism: the Western Han northern frontiers and foreign relations .....96

- 4.1 World views and the political situation in the Qin and Western Han empires
- 4.2 Han worldviews and the relationship between the Han and Xiongnu
- 4.3 Military campaigns and territorial expansions (133 – 60 BC)
  - 4.3.1 Major campaigns of the Han (133 – 119 BC)
  - 4.3.2 Expansion into the Western Regions and the triumph over the Xiongnu (139 BC – AD 9)
  - 4.3.3 Han administration and colonization in the Western Regions after Zhang Qian
- 4.4 Motives for territorial expansion
- 4.5 The boundaries of the Western Han empire and the functions of the Great Wall
- 4.6 The impact of territorial expansion on Han worldviews
- 4.7 Rome and China compared

Chapter 5. Roman emperors and territorial expansion.....138

- 5.1 The roles of Roman emperors in the Principate
- 5.2 Military values as incentives for expansion: from Augustus to Septimius Severus
- 5.3 Rivalry with predecessors and peers
- 5.4 Public opinion

5.5 Conclusions: some thoughts on the roles of Roman emperors

Chapter 6. The Son of Heaven: from the great unifier to the wise monarch .....	167
6.1 The roles of the Chinese emperors of the Qin and Han dynasties
6.2 The anti-militaristic tradition in pre-imperial and early-imperial China
6.3 Soldiers and civilians in the Qin and Western Han periods
6.4 The emperors, the frontiers and the army
6.5 The emperor as a moral sage
6.5.1 The de of Qin
6.5.2 The emperor as a source of moral transformation in the Western Han period
6.6 The image of emperor as Son of Heaven
6.7 Rome and China compared
Conclusions .....	203
Dutch Summary .....	208
Bibliography .....	214
About the author .....	250

Acknowledgements

As I look back upon the experience of writing my dissertation, I must say that I was fortunate to find myself supported by a number of people. First of all, I want to thank my doctoral supervisor Luuk de Ligt for his guidance during the past five years. As a young scholar, I sometimes was daunted by the magnitude of my research project. Luuk always offered encouragement and continuously reminded me to focus on the positive side. My gratitude for his support cannot be expressed in words. I also would like to thank Leonard Blussé for the generous and sincere help he gave me shortly after my arrival in the Netherlands. At the same time I am grateful to the other committee members for the time and energy which they were prepared to invest in reading my manuscript. A particular debt is owed to Hilde de Weerd for her insightful comments and constructive feedback.

Further debts are owed to the staff at the Leiden University Institute for History. My heartfelt thanks go to Henk Singor, whose support was essential in the early stages of my research. I also owe a great debt of gratitude to Marijke van Wissen-van Staden. Whenever I sought help, I could count on her advice and support. Writing a PhD thesis can be a lonely endeavor, but had the luck of being able to share my experiences with a group of colleagues in the Ancient History Department: Miriam Groen-Vallinga, Kim Beerden, Liesbeth Claes, Frida Pellegrino, Karolien Pazmany, Paul Kloeg, Stefan Penders, Chrissoula Jannetea, Shanshan Wen, Pieter Houten, Matthew Hobson, Rinse Willet, and Damjan Donev. I thank them all.

In academia outside Leiden, I would like to single out a number of scholars for their assistance and concern at different stages in my PhD journey. They include Zhang Wei, Huang Yang, Walter Scheidel, Liu Jinyu, Yi Zhaoyin, Xu Xiaoxu, Yang Juping, Kurt Raaflaub, William Harris, Aloys Winterling, Richard Talbert, Barend ter Haar, Chen Xin, Jiao Bing, Chen Ying, Kang Kai and Bai Chunxiao.

I would also like to mention the names of some of the friends who enriched my life in Holland: Lü Bing, Qiu Hao, Miao Shengfa, Wang Jin, Kate Ekama, Manjusha Kuruppath, Yu Yingchun, Xia Xiaoshuang, Vincent Ulmer, Bernhard Schär, Hao Qinggang, Ding Dapeng, Wang Qiang, Li Chengcheng, Xu Xiaodong, Yedda Palemeq, Yan Shikai, Ma Xinrong, Wang Zhongyuan, Liu Jifeng, Dorie Arts, and particularly, Mirjam Hofman.

I am indebted to Rosemary Robson, who invested a lot of time and creativity in editing the final manuscript. Needless to say, I am responsible for any remaining textual errors.

Special thanks are owed to the China Scholarship Council (CSC) without whose financial support my project would never have been carried out. I also would like to express my appreciation for the continuous administrative assistance which I received from the Leiden University History Institute. Throughout my studies I have benefited from the sources of the University Library and the East Asian Library of Leiden University. Financial support provided by the August-Boeckh-Antikezentrum made it possible for me to participate in the Cosmos “Globalized Classics” summer school at Berlin Humboldt University in 2015. The seminar perfectly fitted my PhD research subjects, and I learned a lot from this invaluable experience.

Last but not least, I thank my family and relatives who have supported me from afar, especially my father, my twin brother and my aunts. Their unending love is very much appreciated. I extend my most profound gratitude to my late grandparents. Having raised and educated me, they passed away while I was pursuing academic excellence in Leiden. This book is dedicated to them.

