|-----------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----|
| Chapter 1 | Pharmacokinetics and/or pharmacodynamics of propofol, atracurium and cefazolin in morbidly obese patients | 11 |
| Chapter 2 | Scope and intent of the investigations                                                                    | 31 |

Section II Propofol in morbidly obese patients

|           |                                                                                                                                                                              |    |
| Chapter 3 | Comparative evaluation of propofol 350 mg and 200 mg for induction of anaesthesia in morbidly obese patients: a randomised double blind pilot study                          | 45 |
| Chapter 4 | Maintenance of anaesthesia in morbidly obese patients using propofol with continuous BIS-monitoring: a comparison of propofol-remifentanil and propofol-epidural anaesthesia | 61 |
| Chapter 5 | Population pharmacokinetics and pharmacodynamics of propofol in morbidly obese patients                                                                                      | 85 |

Section III Atracurium in morbidly obese patients

|           |                                                                                                                     |     |
|-----------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Chapter 6 | Comparative evaluation of atracurium dosed on ideal body weight versus total body weight in morbidly obese patients | 115 |
|-----------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|

Section IV Cefazolin in morbidly obese patients

|           |                                                                              |     |
