CURRICULUM VITAE

Nelleke Koffeman was born in 1984 in Oss, the Netherlands. After completing the gymnasium at the Corderius College in Amersfoort in 2002, she chose to study law at Leiden University. Four years later, in 2006, she obtained her Master's Diploma in Constitutional and Administrative Law from this university. During her studies she worked, inter alia, as a student assistant at the Europa Institute of the Leiden Law School. Also, she did internships with the Permanent Representation of the Netherlands to the Council of Europe in Strasbourg and with the human rights department of the Dutch Ministry of Justice in The Hague.

In 2007 Koffeman lectured the Moot Court course for undergraduate students at Leiden Law School. Subsequently, in 2008, she was appointed by the E.M. Meijers Institute of the Leiden Law School as a PhD candidate at the Leiden Europa Institute. In 2008, she contributed, in that position, to the so-called Fundamental Rights Agency Group of Legal Experts (FRALEX) and, inter alia, co-authored a comparative study on child trafficking in Europe for the Fundamental Rights Agency of the European Union. She also lectured and coordinated several courses on European (human rights) law at Leiden Law School both at undergraduate and graduate level.

In the course of her PhD research Nelleke Koffeman has visited NUI Galway in Ireland twice, in 2009 and 2013. She has further been a visiting researcher at the Humboldt Universität zu Berlin (in 2011) and at Fordham Law School in New York (in 2013). For the latter two research visits she was awarded research grants of the German Academic Exchange Service (DAAD) and the Dr. H.A. van Beuningen fund of the Leiden University Fund respectively.

Koffeman has regularly participated in (international) conferences, has published in various (Dutch) legal journals and books and has been involved in several research projects, including a study on personal autonomy in medical care for the Netherlands Organisation for Health Research and Development in 2013. In 2015 Koffeman was appointed Assistant Professor in European law at the Europa Institute of Leiden University.
