CURRICULUM VITAE

Petr Kocharov was born on 17 December 1981 in Leningrad, USSR (currently St. Petersburg, Russia). In 1999, he entered the Department of General Linguistics of St. Petersburg State University. During his first university years he got interested in several domains of linguistics including semiotics, psycholinguistics, and language history. Eventually, he chose Indo-European studies as his major with a specialisation in the historical grammar of Old Armenian. While being a student, he was awarded a one-year scholarship to follow the program in the Indo-European linguistics at the École pratique des hautes études (Paris, 2003/2004) that he accomplished with the diploma of the EPHE. In 2005, he graduated from St. Petersburg State University with distinction. From 2005 to 2008, he underwent a postgraduate program at St. Petersburg State University and earned the degree of Candidate of Sciences. As part of his postgraduate program, he was awarded a scholarship to study the Indo-European linguistics and Old Armenian philology at Leiden University (2007/2008). At present, he is a researcher at the Institute for Linguistic Studies of the Russian Academy of Sciences in St. Petersburg and a part-time lecturer at St. Petersburg State University.
