ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Writing this dissertation would not have been possible without the support and assistance of many people. Enormous thanks are owed to Prof. dr. Erik Kwakkel for over a decade of palaeography and codicology training, and countless opportunities to grow both within and outside the world of Manuscript Studies. My gratitude also extends to Prof. dr. Em. Rolf H. Bremmer Jr. for his sharp scholarly eye and spirited encouragement when I've needed motivation most. My appreciation to colleagues Dr Irene O'Daly, Dr Jenny Weston, and Dr Julie Somers, whose friendship has been the highlight of my PhD journey. Warm thanks are also owed to many LUCAS and Leiden University colleagues, but especially to Tim Vergeer and Viola Stoop. My in situ research was facilitated by Dr Ludo Vandamme and Dr Evelien Hauwaerts of the Bruges Openbare Bibliotheek, to whom I am grateful for their generous assistance.

My eternal gratitude is owed to my mother Lila Cresswell and sister Caitlin Janzen: their unwavering support along this path, and always, has been invaluable to me. Thanks also to my father Gerald Janzen and his partner Karen Grabinsky for their ongoing encouragement. Special thanks to my partner Daniel Harboe Sørensen for his optimism and humour, and to his family, Kate Sondergaard Feytaerts and Edward Feytaerts[†], and Reno, Marga, Vincent, and Arne Harboe Sørensen and Estefania Laney. Finally, my thanks to the den Hartog–van Oppen family and de Vos family for their kind friendship.
