Acknowledgments

The successful completion of this thesis would not have been possible without the unwavering support of Klaas van Walraven, my daily supervisor, whose insistence on the importance of ethnography, rigorous attention to detail, and unflagging moral support contributed enormously to both the course of my research as well as the final product. I am also extremely grateful for the support of, and illuminating discussions with, my promotor, Jon Abbink. In addition to his hospitality, Jon introduced me several of the broader theoretical constructions engaged by my work. Marc-Antoine Pérouse de Montclos, my advisor at Paris 8, was essential in providing contacts and advice on both the thesis' structure and its treatment of the oil industry.

At the ASCL, Akinyinka Akinyoade was extremely generous in helping me establish field contacts with Shell-Gabon, while Merel van 't Wout introduced me to several contacts in Accra. Maaïke Westra has been a crucial and tireless administrative support, while the IFG and Ecole Doctorale at Paris 8 have been indispensable partners in funding and collaboration. In preparation for fieldwork, Florence Bernault's contacts were immensely helpful, including Lionel Cédric Ikogou-Renamy, whom I am now proud to call my good friend. In Gamba, I owe debts of gratitude to Ghislain Pither, the Prefect of the Département de Ndougou, "Mousse" in the Marine Marchande, and Pierre Brice Maganga of the WWF. In Ghana, the WRCF took the selfless initiative of organizing my fieldwork schedule. Lastly, I am forever thankful to all interviewees appearing in the appendix who took time and energy to politely, and thoughtfully, engage in lengthy discussions.

This thesis would not have been possible without the devoted support of my mother, Dori Whitworth-Perez. In addition to gifting me the foundations for a happy and fruitful life, she remained my on-call therapist throughout the most difficult stages of writing. My loving father, Joseph Christopher Mangarella, grandmother, Elaine Nicastro, and aunt, Natalie Franzblau were always available for moral support. I am also indebted to my father-in-law, Julius Müller, for both his calm wisdom and providing the use of his office, as well as Alice Müllerová, for never allowing me to go hungry. To my beautiful infant son Julián, you have taught me key life lessons in time management. Last but certainly not least, I am eternally grateful for the patience, love, and practical and intellectual support of my amazing wife and close confidant, Alžběta Mangarella (née Müllerová).
