Curriculum vitae

Laure d'Hondt was born in Hilvarenbeek, on 4 April 1981. After completing her secondary education in Nijmegen in 1999 she travelled to Latin America, and spent more than a year in Mexico and Guatemala, to travel, learn Spanish, and to do volunteers work.

In 2001, Laure began her studies at Leiden University; Cultural Anthropology (BA and MA, 2006) and Law (BA, 2007). During her studies she continued to frequently travel to Central America, where she did an internship at the Royal Dutch Embassy in Guatemala, conducted research for her Master thesis on mediation, and worked as a travel guide.

In 2008, Laure started working at the Van Vollenhoven Institute (VVI) of Leiden Law School, Leiden University. She was a researcher in the 'Access to Justice in Indonesia' project in cooperation with the World Bank Indonesia and UNDP Jakarta. Besides conducting research on access to environmental justice in North Maluku, Indonesia, she fulfilled several coordinating and editing tasks. In March 2010, Laure started her PhD research as part of the research programme 'Legal Empowerment as a means to development? A political-legal study of rights invocation by pollution victims in China and Indonesia'. In the meantime, in 2014, Laure obtained her Master degree in Constitutional and Administrative Law (LLM) from the University of Amsterdam (LLM, 2014).

Between 2010 and 2018, Laure was also teaching Law, Governance and Development and other courses at the Leiden Law School as well as at the Leiden University College. She also gave guest lectures at various universities in the Netherlands and Indonesia.

In 2016, Laure became the lead researcher in the project 'Making Environmental Regulation Work for the People' that was financed by the Royal Dutch Embassy in Jakarta. The project built on the insights from her PhD research and aimed to lead to concrete improvements in the regulation of industrial pollution in Indonesia. VVI cooperated with the Indonesian Center for Environmental Law as well as with Indonesian scholars, local NGOs and the Indonesian Ministry of Environment and Forestry.

Since 2018 Laure chose to continue her career in socio-legal studies by teaching social science and law at secondary school level. She hopes to contribute to develop this subject in the class room and more broadly in the general curriculum. Laure lives near Nijmegen, together with her partner Jeroen and her son Noël.
