

Universiteit
Leiden
The Netherlands

The unbearable lightness of clitics

Ionova, A.

Citation

Ionova, A. (2020, January 23). The unbearable lightness of clitics. LOT dissertation series. LOT, Amsterdam. Retrieved from <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/83258>

Version: Publisher's Version

License: Licence agreement concerning inclusion of doctoral thesis in the Institutional Repository of the University of Leiden

Downloaded from: <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/83258>

Note: To cite this publication please use the final published version (if applicable).

Cover Page

Universiteit Leiden

The handle <http://hdl.handle.net/1887/83258> holds various files of this Leiden University dissertation.

Author: Ionova, A.

Title: The unbearable lightness of clitics

Issue Date: 2020-01-23

The unbearable lightness of clitics

Published by LOT
Kloveniersburgwal 48
1012 CX Amsterdam
The Netherlands

phone: +31 20 525 2461
e-mail: lot@uva.nl
<http://www.lotschool.nl>

Cover illustration: Für Ana, by Riccardo Russomanno

ISBN: 978-94-6093-335-6
NUR: 616

Copyright © 2019 Anastasiia Ionova. All rights reserved.

The unbearable lightness of clitics

Proefschrift

ter verkrijging van de graad van Doctor aan de Universiteit Leiden, op gezag van Rector Magnificus prof. mr. C.J.J.M. Stolker, volgens besluit van het College voor Promoties te verdedigen op donderdag 23 januari 2020
klokke 13.45 uur

door

Anastasiia Ionova

geboren 10 oktober 1992
te Moskou, Rusland

Promotor: Prof. dr. L.L.S. Cheng
Co-promotor: Dr. A.K. Lipták
Promotiecommissie: Prof. dr. L.C.J. Barbiers
Prof. dr. Ž. Bošković (University of Connecticut)
Dr. V. Gribanova (Stanford University)

The research reported here was conducted in the context of the project “Elipsis licensing beyond syntax” (360-70-530) of prof. dr. L.L.S. Cheng and dr. A.K. Lipták, funded by the Dutch organisation for scientific Research (NWO).

The questions that we pose are probably premature, if not meaningless. In short, this is all crazy, so let's do it.

Idan Landau
Introduction to Syntax
MIT
Fall 2003

Contents

Acknowledgements	xi
1 Introduction	1
1.1 The scope	1
1.2 The architecture of grammar	3
1.3 Ellipsis and unpronounced structure	7
1.3.1 The PF-deletion approach	8
1.3.2 The timing of ellipsis	11
1.4 Outline of the dissertation	19
2 Types of clitics: prosody and syntax	21
2.1 Defining clitics	21
2.1.1 Kinds of deficiency	22
2.1.2 Special and simple clitics	25
2.2 The prosodic hierarchy and the phonological types of clitics	28
2.2.1 Syntax-prosody interface	28
2.2.2 Clitics in prosodic structure	35
2.3 The syntactic and prosodic properties of second position clitics	40
2.4 Summary	44
3 Second position clitics in Serbo-Croatian	45
3.1 The second position and the clitic cluster in Serbo-Croatian	46
3.2 Previous approaches to 2P cliticisation	50
3.2.1 Previous approaches: syntax or phonology?	51
3.2.2 Previous approaches: arguments from ellipsis	55
3.3 Interaction of ellipsis and clitic movement: a case study	59
3.3.1 Design of the experiment	60
3.3.2 Participants	64
3.3.3 Results	64

3.4	Accounting for the data: late clitic movement	66
3.4.1	Problems with the previous accounts	66
3.4.2	The bleeding effect: possible explanations	68
3.4.3	2P cliticisation is phonological	72
3.4.4	The interaction of ellipsis and 2P cliticisation	77
3.4.5	Why not syntax	80
3.4.6	Variation: taking a closer look at the data	83
3.5	Apparent syntactic effects of clitic placement	87
3.5.1	Prosodic phrasing and clitic placement: the 1W / 1D dichotomy	87
3.5.2	The Leo Tolstoy argument	90
3.5.3	Participle movement over an auxiliary	92
3.6	Summary	95
4	Second position clitics in Slovenian	97
4.1	The second position and the clitic cluster in Slovenian	98
4.2	Slovenian clitics and ellipsis: a case study	104
4.2.1	Design of the survey	105
4.2.2	Results	107
4.2.3	Interpreting the results: towards an account	109
4.3	The clitic cluster and polarity in Slovenian	112
4.4	Polarity answers: a case study	119
4.4.1	Design of the survey	119
4.4.2	Results	120
4.5	Defining the position of Slovenian 2P clitics	122
4.5.1	Verum focus realization on clitics	123
4.5.2	Polarity clitic answers in Slovenian	126
4.5.3	Verbal ellipsis and 2P clitics in Slovenian	128
4.6	Conclusion	136
4.6.1	Slovenian 2P clitics and ellipsis: summary	136
4.6.2	2P clitics and VP-ellipsis: Slovenian vs Serbo-Croatian	137
4.6.3	Supporting evidence from gapping	141
5	Preposition omission under sluicing in Russian	143
5.1	Sluicing and preposition stranding	143
5.1.1	Preposition Stranding generalisation	144
5.1.2	Exceptions to PSG	145
5.1.3	Previous accounts of exceptional cases	147
5.2	The system of Russian prepositions	151
5.2.1	Morphosyntactic properties	152
5.2.2	Phonological properties	161
5.3	Phonological weight and P-omission: A case study	165
5.3.1	Design of the survey	166
5.3.2	Results of the survey	167
5.4	Prosodic structures of Russian Ps	168

5.5	Accounting for P-omission in sluicing: Late phonological deletion	171
5.6	Conclusion	177
6	Conclusion and future prospects	179
6.1	Summary and conclusions	179
6.2	Future prospects	182
	Appendix A: Serbo-Croatian	187
	Appendix B: Slovenian	189
	Appendix C: Russian	193
	Bibliography	197
	Samenvatting in het Nederlands	215
	Curriculum vitae	219

Acknowledgements

Doing my PhD was not particularly easy for me (if it ever is for anyone) and finishing it was only possible because of the constant support, guidance, and encouragement of all the incredible people who were sharing the road with me for the past 4 years.

Two people played the most important part in my success and survival as a PhD candidate. My supervisors, Lisa Cheng and Anikó Lipták, have shown incredible patience and understanding. Thank you for teaching me, believing in me, and keeping waiting for my drafts. I couldn't wish for a better team.

I was lucky to meet some of my good friends here at LUCCL. Güliz Güneş, the other member of the “Ellipsis licensing beyond syntax” project, and James Griffiths have become my mentors and my dear friends at the same time, and I learned a lot from them. I fondly remember our conversations about linguistics and life in bars and AirBnBs in different parts of the world. I am also happy to have Lena Karvovskaya in my life: she was the first person to show me Leiden and now she is the one to support me as my paranymp. I hope it won't stop here.

Güliz and James encouraged me to go to UCSC as a guest researcher to wait out one Dutch winter at the Golden Coast. I'd like to thank the people who welcomed me there, particularly Jim McCloskey, my supervisor there, and Junko Itō, whose class on phonology I was lucky to take. I appreciate your feedback on my research and your efforts to make my stay at UCSC pleasant and productive. I am also grateful to Vera Griбанова, who invited me to give a talk at Stanford University (which made me quite nervous and rather proud) and who has been giving valuable feedback on most of my work.

Many people have helped me with their grammaticality judgements and feedback. I am especially grateful to Boban Arsenijević, Željko Bošković, and Neda Todorović for their help with Serbo-Croatian, Marijana Marelj and Aljoša Šorgo for Slovenian, and many of my Russian friends for tirelessly filling in my online questionnaires. Thanks to Leticia Pablos for her help with statistics, as well as for her advice and support.

A special mention goes to the people who got me interested in linguistics to begin with. The linguistics department of MSU, OTiPL, is a special community, which has inspired many lucky students, including me. My special thanks and endless love go to the inhabitants of the famous room 949, especially S.G. Tatevosov and E.A. Lyutikova (my MSU supervisor), and all the participants of our summer linguistic expeditions to the most beautiful and remote places of Russia, which ultimately resulted in me getting a best friend, a husband, and a cat.

The bonds created back then are as strong as ever, and I cannot imagine my life without many OTiPL people, especially Ptenc (who remains my best friend even though we only meet once a year in Germany), Ksu (who bravely keeps visiting me regardless her painful biking experiences in the Netherlands), Mitya (who stopped visiting me but who is always in my heart studying syntax facing south), Mukhin (who helped me through a lot of difficult times with his songs and conversations), and of course Max (with whom we've been together through the best and the worst, and who remains my family even after he stopped being my husband).

Many of my non-academic friends have been a major part of this journey as well. Special thanks to the wonderful people of the Yeppa house, where I moved at the final stage of writing this dissertation. Thank you, Ricc, Fra, and MC, for your encouragement and all the dinners you shared with me when I was too busy with writing to cook my own.

Lastly, I cannot possibly express how grateful I am to my parents and grandparents, who could never really understand what it is that I do (not for a lack of trying) but has always trusted me with it. Special thank you goes to my mum, who has always supported me in my decisions, including the one to move out of my home country, which couldn't have been easy for her. For her, in Russian: спасибо, мамочка.