

Power and participatory politics in the digital age: probing the use of new media technologies in railroading political changes in Zimbabwe Mutsvairo, B.

Citation

Mutsvairo, B. (2013, June 13). Power and participatory politics in the digital age : probing the use of new media technologies in railroading political changes in Zimbabwe. Retrieved from https://hdl.handle.net/1887/20974

Version: Corrected Publisher's Version

License: License agreement concerning inclusion of doctoral thesis in the

Institutional Repository of the University of Leiden

Downloaded from: https://hdl.handle.net/1887/20974

Note: To cite this publication please use the final published version (if applicable).

Cover Page

Universiteit Leiden

The handle http://hdl.handle.net/1887/20974 holds various files of this Leiden University dissertation.

Author: Mutsvairo, Bruce

Title: Power and participatory politics in the digital age: probing the use of new media technologies in railroading political changes in Zimbabwe

Issue Date: 2013-06-13

Propositions belonging to the dissertation of Bruce Mutsvairo Power and participatory politics in the digital age. Probing the use of new media technologies in railroading political changes in Zimbabwe

- Fear among Zimbabweans is one of the most debilitating factors affecting the possible influence of ICTs on the Zimbabwean democratic space.
- 2 Propaganda usage mostly in the state controlled press has enabled Mugabe to decidedly prolong his decades-old reign.
- 3 Zimbabweans are generally sceptical about foreign interference in the quest for seeking solutions to their economic and political challenges.
- 4 Accessibility to the Internet has vastly improved thanks to the mobile phone revolution. However, dwellers of remote areas are still struggling to gain access, automatically excluding themselves from the technology-enhanced democratic participation.
- The Zimbabwean Diaspora has and will continue to play a leading role insofar as transmitting anti-Mugabe rhetoric is concerned but that alone is not enough to make the veteran leader relinquish power.
- 6 Opinion is sharply divided over whether Mugabe was right in launching a land reform exercise which disadvantaged whites and triggered an economic collapse.
- 7 New media has only had a partial contribution in reinforcing democracy in Zimbabwe.
- 8 In the long run, digital technologies will play a significant role in sustaining democracy in Zimbabwe.
- Gitizen journalism is viewed with ideological scepticism among Zimbabweans.
- Despite the Internet significantly empowering Zimbabweans, President Robert Mugabe has maintained his grip on power.