

Universiteit
Leiden
The Netherlands

Long-lived sociality : a cultural analysis of middle-class older persons' social lives in Kerala, India
Bomhoff, M.C.

Citation

Bomhoff, M. C. (2011, November 24). Long-lived sociality : a cultural analysis of middle-class older persons' social lives in Kerala, India. Retrieved from <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/18139>

Version: Corrected Publisher's Version

License: Licence agreement concerning inclusion of doctoral thesis in the Institutional Repository of the University of Leiden

Downloaded from: <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/18139>

Note: To cite this publication please use the final published version (if applicable).

Long-Lived Sociality

A Cultural Analysis of Middle-class
Older Persons' Social Lives in Kerala, India

Long-Lived Sociality is an ethnographic account of the lives of older persons in Kerala. Through its detailed account of these highly educated, middle and upper class individuals, it challenges many popular and academic stereotypical notions of the old. Contrary to such preconceptions for instance, their lives turn out to be interdependent, not at all stagnant, extremely mobile and as far as possible actively shaped by the older persons themselves. Cultural notions about sociality are furthermore explored to understand how meaning is given to social and care relationships with others. These relations are informed by strong expectations and a discourse that stresses the importance of duties. This discourse makes it possible for older persons to explicitly demand care when needed. The investigation of the possibilities and limitations of this discourse provides insights into the older persons' appreciation of their social lives and their overall wellbeing.

Long-Lived Sociality

A Cultural Analysis of Middle-class Older Persons' Social Lives in Kerala, India

Manja Bomhoff

Long-Lived Sociality

A Cultural Analysis of Middle-class
Older Persons' Social Lives in Kerala, India

Manja Bomhoff