Table of contents

1. General introduction	13
1.1 Introduction	13
1.2 The research-teaching nexus	14
1.2.1 Higher education and society	14
1.2.2 Studies on the integration of research in teaching	15
1.3 Teaching in higher education	17
1.3.1 Higher education as a separate field of research	17
1.3.2 Research on teaching in secondary education	19
1.4 Relevance of the studies	21
1.4.1 Scientific research dispositions in university education	21
1.4.2 Tangible and intangible elements of the research-teaching nexus	22
1.4.3 Teachers' intentions and approaches to teaching	22
1.4.4 Students' perceptions of learning environments	23
1.5 Context and research questions	24
1.5.1 Research context	24
1.5.2 Research questions	24
1.6 Outline of the thesis	26
2. Exploring scientific research disposition from the perspective of academics	31 32
2.1 Introduction	32
2.1 Introduction 2.1.1 Scientific research dispositions in literature	32 32
2.1 Introduction 2.1.1 Scientific research dispositions in literature 2.1.2 Nature of science and scientific inquiry	32 32 34
2.1 Introduction 2.1.1 Scientific research dispositions in literature 2.1.2 Nature of science and scientific inquiry 2.1.3 Context and research question	32 32 34 36

3. Towards an empirically based notion of the concept of disposition	59
3.1 Introduction	60
3.1.1 Dispositions of substances in modern philosophy	61
3.1.2 Three principles for the concept of disposition	62
3.1.3 Dispositions of subjects in educational research	63
3.1.4 Habitus as a system of dispositions	64
3.1.5 Thinking dispositions	66
3.1.6 Teacher dispositions	67
3.1.7 Research question	68
3.2 Methods	68
3.2.1 Three instruments to assess scientific research dispositions of academics	68
3.2.2 Participants	69
3.2.3 Instrument 1: Semi-structured open-ended interview	69
3.2.4 Instrument 2: Hierarchical ordering task	69
3.2.5 Instrument 3: Structured mapping task	70
3.3 Results	74
3.3.1 Results instrument 1: Semi-structured open-ended interview	74
3.3.2 Results instrument 2: Hierarchical ordering task	74
3.3.3 Results Instrument 3: Structured mapping task	74
3.4 Conclusions and discussion	78
3.4.1 Differences and similarities between the instruments	78
3.4.2 Implications for an empirically based notion of the concept of disposition	80
3.4.3 Suggestions for further research	81
4. Speech act theory as an instrument to capture university science teachers'
discourse	85
	86
4.1.1 Discourse analysis and speech act theory	88
4.1.2 Methods of instruction	88
4.1.3 Approaches to teaching
4.1.4 Research questions	89
4.2 Methods	89
4.2.1 Sample and research context	89
4.2.2 Procedure	90
4.2.3 Analysis of teachers' speech acts	90
4.2.4 Post-course administration of the ATI	91
4.2.5 Analysis of typical speech act sequences	93
4.3 Results	94
4.3.1 Teachers' speech acts	94
4.3.2 Typical speech act sequences	98
4.3.3 Groups of typical speech act sequences	98
4.3.4 Characteristics of the typical speech act groups	102

4.4 Conclusions and discussion	103
4.4.1 Assertive and directive speech acts	103
4.4.2 Limitations and suggestions for further research	104
5. Associations between teachers' intentions and students' perceptions of the research intensiveness of learning environments	109
5.1 Introduction	110
5.1.1 Intangible elements in the research-teaching nexus	111
5.1.2 Modes of integration of disciplinary research into teaching	111
5.1.3 Students' perceptions of the research intensiveness of learning environments	114
5.1.4 Research question	115
5.2 Methods	115
5.2.1 Sample	115
5.2.2 Procedure	116
5.2.3 Interview about teachers' intentions	117
5.2.4 Student questionnaire on research intensiveness of learning environments	117
5.2.5 Analysis	119
5.3 Results	120
5.3.1 Teaching research-led courses	121
5.3.2 Teaching research-tutored courses	122
5.3.3 Teaching research-oriented courses	122
5.3.4 Teaching research-based courses	124
5.3.5 Congruence between teachers' intentions and students' perceptions	124
5.3.6 Aspects of scientific research disposition	125
5.4 Conclusions and discussion	128
5.4.1 Congruence between teachers' intentions and students' perceptions	128
5.4.2 Limitations and suggestions for further research	129
6. General conclusions and discussion	133
6.1 Introduction	133
6.2 Links between research and teaching	133
6.3 Findings with regard to the research questions	135
6.3.1 Research question 1a	135
6.3.2 Research question 1b	135
6.3.3 Research question 2	135
6.3.4 Research question 3a	136
6.3.5 Research question 3b	137
6.3.6 Research question 4	137
6.4 General conclusions	138
6.4.1 Research dispositions of academics	138
6.4.2 Evaluation of research dispositions	138

6.4.4 Teachers' intentions regarding research in teaching	139
6.5 Strengths and limitations of the studies	139
6.5.1 Strengths	139
6.5.2 Limitations	141
6.6 Suggestions for further research into higher education	143
6.6.1 Further development of the research instruments	143
6.6.2 Student evaluation of research-intensive learning environments	145
6.7 Recommendations for teaching practice in higher education	145
6.7.1 Educational policy and consultancy	145
6.7.2 Teaching practice and teacher training	147
6.7.3 Student learning	147
