Acknowledgements

Over the past years, throughout the process of writing my dissertation, I have been fortunate enough to receive the assistance of many. Thanking them all is impossible, if only because not everyone can be singled out. Discussions at roundtables and conferences, conversations at case law dinners, questions from students: it all helped to develop, test and sharpen my ideas. The first person I would like to thank explicitly is Hildegard Schneider. During my studies in Maastricht, she stirred my enthusiasm for European law and introduced me to academia. Without her, I might never have started a dissertation.

The dissertation itself I wrote in Leiden, in the presence of great colleagues, former and present. A particular word of thanks goes to Wendy Rodger for her language revision of my dissertation, and Frederik Behre, who helped translating German statements.

Some who crossed my path I owe special gratitude to. For my time as a trainee at the European Commission I am grateful to Ben Smulders and Jean-Paul Keppenne, who made me familiar with the practical, inner workings of the currency union. At university to Tom Eijsbouts, who opened my eyes to constitutional law, sharpened my reading of the Union and supported me to steer my research away from the beaten track, as well as Luuk van Middelaar, who improved my understanding of the Union's political dimension. And to Jorrit Rijpma, my co-promotor, whose advice has been of great help, especially in the later stages of the research.

Without my promotor, Stefaan Van den Bogaert, the dissertation would never have gotten off the ground nor been completed. He took me on his team, challenged me to write on the euro, believed in my project and ensured that I kept a steady course. I could not have wished for a better mentor.

Finally, my parents, Wolter and Lutgart, my gratitude to whom cannot be captured in words.

Curriculum vitae

Vestert Borger was born in 1987 in Nijmegen, the Netherlands. After completing his secondary school education at 'Het Esdalcollege' in Emmen in 2005, he went to study Dutch and European law at Maastricht University, where he graduated with the highest distinction (cum laude) in 2010. During his studies he worked as a student assistant for Professor Hildegard Schneider and did an internship at the European law department of the Dutch Ministry of Foreign Affairs where he assisted legal agents in representing the government before European courts. He subsequently started working for the Europa Institute at Leiden University, first as a lecturer and as of January 2011 as a PhD fellow. In 2013 Vestert worked as a trainee on the institutional team of the legal service of the European Commission, where he focused mainly on issues concerning the euro crisis and the law on economic and monetary policy. As of January 2017 he is employed as a post-doc researcher at the Europa Institute in Leiden.

Vestert specialises in the law on economic and monetary policy, yet he also has a keen interest in the institutional and constitutional law of the Union more generally. Over the past years he has participated in various advisory projects on the euro crisis for public authorities, among which the Dutch Ministry of Finance. Vestert has published widely on Union law, in particular the law concerning the single currency. In 2017 he received the Meijers Prize for the best article written by a doctoral student at Leiden Law School.
