

Universiteit
Leiden
The Netherlands

Entrapment by consent : the co-ethnic brokerage system of ethnic Yi labour migrants in China

Ma, X.

Citation

Ma, X. (2018, February 13). Entrapment by consent : the co-ethnic brokerage system of ethnic Yi labour migrants in China. Retrieved from <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/61045>

Version: Not Applicable (or Unknown)

License: Licence agreement concerning inclusion of doctoral thesis in the Institutional Repository of the University of Leiden

Downloaded from: <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/61045>

Note: To cite this publication please use the final published version (if applicable).

Cover Page

Universiteit Leiden

The handle <http://hdl.handle.net/1887/61045> holds various files of this Leiden University dissertation

Author: Ma, Xinrong

Title: Entrapment by consent : the co-ethnic brokerage system of ethnic Yi labour migrants in China

Date: 2018-02-13

Entrapment by Consent

The Co-ethnic Brokerage System of Ethnic Yi
Labour Migrants in China

Xinrong Ma

Front cover illustration: four Yi male and female migrant workers returned to their hometown for Yi New Year: a contrast in ideas.

Photo by Xinrong Ma

Designed by Lydia Lam

Printed by ProefschriftMaken || www.proefschriftmaken.nl

Copyright © Ma Xinrong, Leiden, the Netherlands

All rights reserved. No part of this dissertation may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted in any form or by any means whatsoever without prior permission of the author.

Entrapment by Consent

The Co-ethnic Brokerage System of Ethnic Yi
Labour Migrants in China

Proefschrift

ter verkrijging van de graad van Doctor aan de Universiteit Leiden, op gezag van Rector Magnificus prof.mr. C.J.J.M. Stolker, volgens besluit van het College voor Promoties te verdedigen op 13 februari 2018
klokke 11.15 uur

door
Xinrong Ma
Geboren te Rushan, China

Promotor

Prof. dr. Frank N. Pieke

Co-promotor

Dr. Frank de Zwart

Promotiecommissie

Prof. dr. Marlou.L.J.C. Schrover

Prof. dr. Thomas Heberer (Universität Duisburg-Essen)

Prof. dr. Bridget Anderson (Bristol University)

Dr. Jenny Chan (The Hong Kong Polytechnic University)

Acknowledgement

I would never have written this dissertation if I did not visit Liangshan and became a voluntary teacher for a group of lovely Yi (Nuosu) children. My concern for their future lives—as migrant workers—opened up this Ph.D. journey. My gratitude firstly goes to the many Yi people whom I met, especially those who offered me their friendship and took me under their wings while I was in the field. Many days and nights, it has been your strangeness, braveness, and optimism that have encouraged me to write this dissertation. As this journey comes to its end, I want to say that writing a book about you is my honour. Every single life stories I know from you deeply enriched my life.

This research would not have been possible without the support and help from my supervisors. Frank Pieke encouraged me to be a cross-disciplinary researcher as I wished to be, and provided me with unflagging inspiration and guidance on my path of exploration. Frank de Zwart, was the first one who welcomed me in Leiden, and continued to be a harbouring figure for me in the early stages of my Ph.D. I also owe deep gratitude to Bridget Anderson, who invited me to visit COMPAS at Oxford University, inspired me with her valuable insights, and built my confidence in the most helpless-feeling period of my Ph.D. journey. The inputs of my former supervisors, Petr Kopecky and Daniela Stockman in Political Science Department, are gratefully acknowledged as well.

Many thanks go to the thesis-reading committees—Thomas Heberer, Marlou Schrover, and Jenny Chan—for their constructive suggestions. I wish very much to continue to learn from you in the future. I have developed ideas by presenting my work in various conferences and workshops where other scholars provided thoughtful suggestions for me, among them Nicholas Van Hear, Min Zhou, Michael Herzfeld, Christ Tilly, Lida Nedilsky, Thomas Faist, Sébastien Chauvin, Chunyun Li and Charlotte Bruckermann and others. My thanks also go to the Yi experts in China, especially Pan Jiao, Liu Dongxu, Bai Shige, and Baqie Rihou, who either helped me to find my feet in the fieldwork or introduced me to more informants as my work continued.

Over the past years, I have been accompanied, here and there, by peers with beautiful souls and talented brains. Among them I owe debts to my sister-like friends Sangmi, Hyojin and Tabitha who have carefully read a few draft chapters and research notes of this thesis. Makio, Zeng Cheng, Jifeng, Zhongyuan, Yujing, Ma Xiao, Wenxin, Luo Ting, Sun Li, Li Zheng, Joshua, Lydia, Shuli, Potsan, Liangyu, Meiwen, Qifu, Ruijing, Moosa, Stanly, Marit Guda, Floke Glastra, Leo van der Kamp, and many other friends and colleagues, whose names I could not down here — have warmed my life with their friendship and inspired me with the intellects. I would furthermore like to express my gratitude to my language editors Rosemary and Tyler. Rosemary means far more than a language editor for me. Chatting with her always makes me become wiser.

This Ph.D. research was possible because of the financial support from the China Scholarship Council. Fieldwork research for this project was funded by the Leiden University Fund (LUF) and the French Centre for Research on Contemporary China (CEFC). I am also grateful to the Institute for Advanced Studies in Humanities and Social Sciences at Chongqing University and the Nordic Institute of Asian Studies (NIAS) at the University of Copenhagen for the scholarship that made my academic visit possible.

My deepest thanks go to my family members. Dad and Mum, I could never go this far without your unconditional love and trust. I am glad that as your daughter I can be your pride. The last thanks go to my dear husband, Li Zheng. Thank you for your strong love and care, which have become the strongest stream of support for me over the past six years. I am so lucky to be your wife and to explore the future ahead of us together with you. I dedicate this dissertation to you all.

Abbreviations

CCP	Chinese Communist Party
ERAB	Ethnic and Religious Affairs Bureau
LHRB	Labour and Human Resource Bureau
ISPSS	Internal Security Protection Section
UFWD	United Front Work Department
PC	People's Congress
PCC	People's Consultative Committees
KMT	Kuomintang, Chinese Nationalist Party
ILO	International Labour Organization
CMSMO	Comprehensive Management and Stability Maintenance Office

Contents

Acknowledgement	IX
Abbreviations	XI
Chapter 1 Introduction	1
1.1 The Issue of This Dissertation	3
1.2 Research Questions	7
1.3 Relations to Other Bodies of Work	8
1.3.1 Class: China and the Yi	9
1.3.2 Ethnicity: China and the Yi	7
1.4 Fieldwork and Methodology	22
1.5 Outline of This Dissertation	30
Chapter 2 Ethnic Yi Constructed by the State and Perceived by Yi People	33
2.1 Territory-Based Ethnic Policy in China	34
2.2 De-Territorialised Ethnic Policy in Cities	37
2.3 The State's Construction of “Ethnic Yi”	41
2.4 Nuosu's Perception of “Ethnic Yi”	42
2.4.1 Clan: the Core of Nuosu Society	43
2.4.2 Social Stratification: “Black Yi” and “White Yi”	48
2.5. Conclusion	52
Chapter 3 The Formation of Co-ethnic Brokerage in Liangshan	55
3.1 Labour Migration in China	56
3.2 Yi Brokers as “Labour Managers”	61
3.3 The Emergence of Yi brokers	64
3.3 Migration Motivation	71
3.3.1 The Economic Spur	71
3.3.2 Imagined Modernity	72
3.3.3 The Wish to Break Free	74
3.4 Conclusion	76
Chapter 4 Yi Co-ethnic Brokerage in Cities: A Double-Edged Sword	79
4.1 Precarious Employment in the Manufacturing Sector	81

4.1.1 Dispatch Industry	85
4.2 Co-ethnic Brokerage as Facilitation and Protection	89
4.2.1 Barriers: Language and Education	89
4.2.2 “Work as Free Labour”	91
4.2.3 “Getting Protection From Our Relatives”	93
4.2.4 “We Owed Our Uncle a Favour”	94
4.3 Co-ethnic Broekrage System as Control and Exploitation	97
4.3.1 Debt	99
4.3.2 Poaching Workers	104
4.3.3 Gender Dynamics	106
4.4 Brokers: Creating an Ethnic Community	109
4.5 Conclusion	114
Chapter 5 Yi Workers in the Workplace	117
5.1 Hierachy in the Labour Recruitment	118
5.2 Dormitory Labour Regime and Factory Regime	123
5.2.1 Dormitory Labour Regime	125
5.2.2 Factory Regime: Dual Employment System	129
5.3 Everyday Forms of Resistance	134
5.3.1 “She’s a Loafer and a Bad Influence”	134
5.3.2 “She Howls on the Shop Floor”	136
5.3.3 “Managers Just Want Docile Subjects”	137
5.4 Negative Stereotypes	139
5.5 The Consequences of Negative Stereotypes	140
5.6 Conclusion	141
Chapter 6 The Collective Resistance of Yi Labour Migrants	143
6.1 Cultural Logic	144
6.2 Economic Benefits	149
6.3 The Roles of Yi Brokers	151
6.3.1 Instigators	151
6.3.2 Intermediaries	154
6.3.3 Appeasers	156
6.4 Conclusion	160
Chapter 7 The Intersection of Yi Migrants and Local Governments in Cities	161

7.1 Seeking a New Path for Ethnic Policy in Cities	162
7.1.1 Stability Maintenance System	163
7.1.2 “Ethnic Minority Preference”	166
7.1.3 Patronage: Absorb and Buy Off	168
7.2 Fragile Alliance Between Governments and Yi Delegates	171
7.3 Yi Migrants’ Responding Strategies	177
7.3.1 Ethnic Minority: an Bargaining Chip	179
7.3.2 Customary Law	180
7.4 Conclusion	186
Chapter 8 Conclusion	189
8.1 Summary of This Study	191
8.2 Rethinking the Co-ethnic Brokerage	195
8.3 Contributions and Limitations	198
Reference	203
Samenvatting (Summary in Dutch)	217
Curriculum Vitae	221

