Curriculum Vitae

Prihatini Ambaretnani was born on the 9th March 1948 in Yogyakarta, Indonesia. After completion of her high school education, she joined Universitas Padjadjaran in Bandung, Indonesia and completed the Bachelor programme at the Department of Anthropology, at the Faculty of Arts in January 1977. She had been selected as a Lecturer at the same Department. During 1978–1979, she followed a short course at the Southeast Asia Rural Social Leadership Institute (SEARSOLIN), Xavier University, Ateneo de Cagayan in The Philippines as a Junior Lecturer. In August 1981, she joined the Post-Graduate MSc. Course on Rural Development Planning, Department of Human Settlements Development, at the Asian Institute of Technology in Bangkok, Thailand and graduated there in December 1982. She had also participated in other short courses on Gender Studies in 1992, namely Women and Development, and then in 1994 on Gender Research Management Training, both at the Vrouwen en Autonomie Programme (VENA) at Universiteit Leiden, The Netherlands.

Ms. Ambaretnani was in charge as Secretary of the Department of Anthropology, which was relocated from the Faculty of Arts (Fakultas Sastra) to the Faculty of Social and Political Sciences (Fakultas Ilmu Sosial dan Politik) in Universitas Padjadjaran (1984–1992). There after, she has been elected as Director of the Center for Women Studies at the same University for two periods (1992–1994 and 1994–1998). Subsequently in 1999–2002, she was Head of the Department of Anthropology.

Ms. Ambaretnani also participated in many fieldwork projects i.e. The Motivation of Women Labor Workers to Saudi Arabia; Women Labor Workers and Reproductive Health; The Impact of Dam Development on the Role of Women in Saguling, West Java; Maternal Morbidity in Tanjungsari Sub-District, Sumedang, West Java; Making Pregnancy Safer in Rancaekek Sub-District, Bandung, West Java; Qualitative Research of Post-Partum Haemorrhage Study on PAS-Bayi, Phase II, Bale Endah District, Bandung; Early Child Care Development in Indonesia; Knowledge, Attitude and Practice Study as Support for the Development of Comprehensive Early Child Care and Early Learning Model in Poor Rural Areas in Indonesia; and recently, she is conducting research in Community Care of HIV/AIDs in Bandung. During her working career as Lecturer and Researcher, she has travelled to many countries to join courses, seminars, and conferences. In 2001, she joined the LEAD Programme as a participant as exchange staf in TWINMAP Programme, as part of the Bilateral Cooperation Agreement between Universiteit Leiden in The Netherlands and Universitas Padjadjaran in Bandung, Indonesia in order to assist MSc. students from Indonesia in their study in Medical Ethno-Botani and Anthropology (MEA) in Leiden.
