Acknowledgements

This project has been with me, on and off, for the past nine years, and during those years I have come into contact with the most interesting individuals in more than a dozen countries, who have all, knowingly or not, had a very positive influence on this study. I am honoured to thank the following individuals, who have provided guidance, given support, provided important information and have prevented a number of mistakes: Bongojrut Bunyapukna, Nigel Brailey, Han ten Brummelhuis, Marc Frey, Franz Knipping, Paul Kratoska, Hans-Dieter Kubitscheck, Ian Nish, Bernhardine Pejovic, Prathoomporn Vajrasthira, Dietmar Rothermund, Ursula-Maria Ruser, Supit Tangwiwat, and Tej Bunnag.

I am grateful to the staff at the following institutions for their support, without which this study would have not materialized: Leiden University and the KITLV Library in the Netherlands; in Thailand the Thai National Archives, the Thai National Library, Chulalongkorn University, the Thai Kadi Research Institute at Thammasat University, the Thammasat University Library, the Thai Ministry of Foreign Affairs, and the Siam Society Library; in Switzerland the League of Nations Archives and the United Nations Library, both at the European Headquarters of the United Nations at Geneva, as well as the Geneva Graduate Institute of International Relations; in the United Kingdom the Public Record Office and the library of the School of African and Oriental Studies in London; in France the Royal Thai Embassy in Paris; and in Germany the libraries of the universities of Tübingen, Passau, Freiburg and Hamburg, as well as their various relevant institutes, the State Library and the Humboldt University Library in Berlin, the State Library in Stuttgart, and the Institute of Asian Studies in Hamburg.

I wish to thank the EC-funded European Studies Programme Thailand for supporting a research stay in Bangkok in 1998 and the National Research Council of Thailand for granting me permission to conduct research in Thailand on several occasions. I am grateful to Sunil Amrith for making parts of the manuscript of his book Decolonizing International Health: India and Southeast Asia, 1930-65 available to me prior to its publication.

Any errors or shortcomings in this study are my own.
