

Universiteit
Leiden
The Netherlands

Roots of women's union activism: South Africa 1973-2003

Tshoaedi, C.M.

Citation

Tshoaedi, C. M. (2008, December 10). Roots of women's union activism: South Africa 1973-2003. Retrieved from <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/13330>

Version: Not Applicable (or Unknown)

License: Licence agreement concerning inclusion of doctoral thesis in the Institutional Repository of the University of Leiden

Downloaded from: <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/13330>

Note: To cite this publication please use the final published version (if applicable).

Roots of Women's Union

Activism:

South Africa 1973-2003

Cynthia Malehoko Tshoaedi

Cover design: by Vincent Masoga, September 23rd, 2008, Johannesburg. Printed by permission of the artist.

Roots of Women's Union Activism: South Africa 1973-2003

PROEFSCHRIFT

Ter verkrijging van de graad van Doctor aan de Universiteit Leiden, op gezag van de Rector Magnificus Prof. Mr. P.F. van der Heijden, volgens besluit van het College voor Promoties te verdedigen op woensdag 10 december 2008
klokke 11:00 uur.

Door

Cynthia Malehoko Tshoaedi

Geboren te Johannesburg, South Africa, in 1975

Promotor:

Prof. Dr. J. V. Outshoorn

Prof. Dr. E. Webster (University of the Witwatersrand, Johannesburg)

Overige leden:

Prof. Dr. C. I. Risseuw

Dr. W. J. M. van Kessel

Dr. P. Kopecky

This research has been funded by grant WB 43-298 of the Netherlands Organisation for Scientific Research (NWO), WOTRO Science for Global Development.

Table of Contents

List of Abbreviations

Acknowledgements

1. South African Women's Struggles against Racial and Gender Oppression	1
The research objectives of this study, therefore, are the following:	4
South African women's struggles against pass laws: did women defend or challenge patriarchy?	5
A critical review of South African studies of African women and patriarchal oppression within the household	12
Women and political organisations during the 1980s	16
Analysis of the transition period and the role of COSATU women in this process.....	20
Outline of the thesis	22
2. Gender, Identity and Social Movements	25
Defining Social movement.....	26
The political opportunity structure	30
Frame alignment in social movement theory	34
Collective identity in social movement theory	37
Research process and methods	40
Conclusion.....	50
3. Women's Activism in Workplace Struggles	51
African workers' struggles for trade union rights in the 1970s	52
African women and formal labour markets	59
Representation of women in COSATU unions.....	61
Women and trade union struggles in South Africa	63
Women challenging gender specific issues in the workplace	67
Conclusion.....	76
4. Roots of Activism: Social Biography and Activism	79
Observations of apartheid oppression in the 1950s to the early 1970s period .	80
Observations of apartheid oppression during the 1980s.....	86
The sexist nature of apartheid laws	89
Sexual violence against women in society	91
Gender relations and inequalities within the family.....	93
Observations of women as family providers	95

Abusive and oppressive relationships with men	97
Conclusion.....	101
5. Women in the forefront of Workers' Struggles	103
Women's experiences of the workplace	104
Issues of maternity leave under apartheid.....	108
Sexual harassment in the workplace.....	110
Experiences of the workplace in the post-apartheid era	111
Trade union mobilisation in the early 1970s.....	114
"Women were very militant and fearless of management"	122
Trade union mobilisation post apartheid era.....	124
Empowerment of women workers by trade unions.....	128
Women activists define their mobilisation and actions	130
Conclusion.....	132
6. Gender Struggles at the Personal Level	133
'Sacrifice, determination and commitment'	134
Different strokes for different folks: how women address their subordinate positions within personal relationships.....	135
Married women forced to make a choice	142
The freedom of not being married.....	145
Domestic chores and childcare responsibilities: how do women negotiate these responsibilities?	146
Conclusion.....	147
7. Gender Politics in Trade Unions: Debates on Gender Equality	149
Hostility towards women as leaders in the unions	150
How do women create the space for addressing women's issues?	154
Women's fight to access key leadership positions.....	167
How have the changes in the political and economic context influenced women's struggles within COSATU?	175
Conclusion.....	176
8. COSATU Women and the Politics of Transition	179
COSATU women's organisation prior to the WNC	181
Struggles for hegemonic control of the women's movement	184
The Women's National Coalition: understanding the differences?	187
The process of drafting the Women's Charter and the challenges with the decision-making processes.....	191
Did COSATU have impact on the WNC?	194
Conclusion.....	197
9. Conclusion	199
The political mobilisation of African women: the significance of racial identity	199

Women and the struggles for trade union rights in South Africa	201
Processes of gender consciousness resulting from individual experiences....	203
Collective gender solidarity and activism against gender inequality	204
COSATU women and the transition process	208
COSATU women and the feminist perspective	210
Gender equality in democratic South Africa	211
Suggestions for further research.....	212
Appendix 1. List of Interviewees	215
Appendix 2. The Women's Charter for Effective Equality.....	217
Archive Material.....	225
Internet sources.....	227
Bibliography.....	229
Samenvatting.....	241
About the Author	245

Acronyms and abbreviations

ANC	African National Congress
ANCWL	African National Congress Women's League
COSATU	Congress of South African Trade Unions
CCAWASA	Commercial, Catering and Allied Workers of South Africa
CEC	Central Executive Committee
CEPPWAWU	Chemical, Paper, Printing, Wood and Allied Workers' Union
CWIU	Chemical Workers' Industrial Union
DP	Democratic Party
IFP	Inkatha Freedom Party
FAWU	Food and Allied Workers' Union
FEDTRAW	Federation of Transvaal Women
FOSATU	Federation of South African Trade Unions
NALEDI	National Labor and Economic Development Institute
NEDCOM	National Education Committee
NEDLAC	National Economic Development and Labor Council
NEHAWU	National Education, Health and Allied Workers' Union
NOB	National Office Bearers
NOW	Natal Organization of Women
NUM	National Union of Mineworkers
NUMSA	National Union of Metal Workers of South Africa
NUTW	National Union of Textile Workers
PPWAWU	Paper, Printing, Wood and Allied Workers' Union
POPCRU	Police, Prisons and Civil Rights Union
SACCAWU	South African Commercial, Catering and Allied Workers' Union
SACTU	South African Textile Union
SACTWU	South African Clothing and Textile Workers' Union
SADTU	South African Democratic Teachers' Union
SAMWU	South African Municipal Workers' Union
SARHWU	South African Railway and Harbor Workers' Union
SATAWU	South African Transport and Allied Workers' Union

TGWU	Transport and General Workers' Union
UDF	United Democratic Front
UWO	United Women's Organization
WNC	Women's National Coalition

To my mother Nomthandazo and my late father Mothobi

Acknowledgements

At home we say Umtu guntu ngabantu (you are who you are through others). My intellectual growth and achievements thus far would not have been possible without the generosity and commitment of several individuals. I am thankful for their support and guidance throughout this journey.

To all the women who took part in this research I say Igama lamakhosikazi malibongwe. Without their bounteous generosity and willingness to share their personal stories with a stranger, this study would not have materialised.

During the course of my PhD research in the Netherlands, I was fortunate to be placed at the Joke Smit Institute for Women's Studies. I thank the Institute's director, Prof. Dr Joyce Outshoorn, also my supervisor, for providing a good intellectual environment which kept me motivated and focused on the big idea, ensuring the successful completion of the project.

The Sociology of Work Programme (SWOP) at Wits University in South Africa also offered institutional support during my visits at home while conducting field-work. SWOP director Prof. Dr Eddie Webster provided invaluable intellectual guidance, which profoundly shaped this research project.

Sakhela Buhlungu, has been immensely supportive during this journey and I am immensely grateful to him. His incisive comments and questions were extremely helpful in sharpening my thinking processes and improving on earlier drafts. I would like to thank Ineke van Kessel who read through my initial research proposals at the beginning of this long journey. Her contribution in this research process is deeply appreciated.

I also want to indicate my appreciation to all the financial institutions that funded this PhD study. I would not have been able to complete the dissertation without the financial support from the Leiden University Mandela Scholarship; the South African National Research Foundation (NRF) and the Netherlands Foundation for the Advancement of Tropical Research (WOTRO/NWO).

Much appreciation goes to the Department of Political Science for all the technical assistance offered during the whole period of my study. The administrative personnel in the department have been sterling in their support, especially Mariska Roos. Thank you to all my colleagues in the department for the small talks and words of encouragement. I am most grateful to Hans Vollaard; Petr Kopecky; Marius de Geus and his family, Gherardo Scherlis and Maria Spirova for their kind and encouraging words, especially when I needed it most. To Asnake Kefale, who has truly been a good friend throughout the entire period: thank you for always being willing to listen. Thank you for the cups of tea, music and the company, especially on weekends at the department. And to Pauline Vincenten and Sanne Rijkhoff for their help in preparing the manuscript for publication.

I would also like to thank my friends who supported me in various ways during this long period. Achieng Ojwang, my comrade in the PhD process, thank you for your patience in listening to my crazy thoughts every time I got stuck. Sarah Mosoetsa and Grace Khunou, you are amazing and inspirational friends. I cannot thank you enough for the emails, phone calls and attending to short notice requests. Jocelyn Vass, Dinki Dube, Zanele Khoza, Maki Mashiane and Nokuthula Mthinkulu, thank you for your unconditional support throughout the whole period.

Holland became a second home away from home for me because of the wonderful friends I had there. I am grateful to Mattea Spatharakis, Anka Bilsen, Tineke Griffioen, Remco van der Laan, Semra Aslan and Jantine Oldersma for making me feel at home. I am also grateful to my imported South African friends Lwazi Lushaba, Vonani Rikhotso and Dithoto Modungwa who shared with me experiences of being far away from the comfort zone of home. To Youmbi Meanchop, Holland would not have been the same without your friendship.

I would like to thank my brothers Teboho, Diphapang, my sister Seajoa and sister in-law, Nocawe, for always being supportive and encouraging of my educational endeavours. To my late brother, Motseki who passed on in 2004, I know you'd be celebrating with us. To my nephews Sandisile, Ofentse and nieces Thandazo, Palesa, Kutlwano and Thoko; you have inspired me in more ways than you could imagine.

A special thank you to my mother, Thandi, whose love, support and confidence in me has carried me through the whole process. Her high regard for education and knowledge seeking has profoundly shaped my academic path. And last but not least, my son Tshoaedi, the last three years since you've been in my life have been amazing. Listening to your baby talk and your laughter over the phone while I was away inspired me to work harder to complete this project. You kept the light shining, o naledi yaka.

