Universiteit
Leiden
The Netherlands

Federalism and ethnic conflict in Ethiopia. A comparative study of the Somali and Benishangul-Gumuz regions

Adegehe, A.K.

Citation
Adegehe, A. K. (2009, June 11). Federalism and ethnic conflict in Ethiopia. A comparative study of the Somali and Benishangul-Gumuz regions. Retrieved from https://hdl.handle.net/1887/13839

Version:	Not Applicable (or Unknown)
License:	Licence agreement concerning inclusion of doctoral thesis in the Institutional Repository of the University of Leiden
Downloaded from:	https://hdl.handle.net/1887/13839

Note: To cite this publication please use the final published version (if applicable).

About the Author

Asnake Kefale was born in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia on May 29, 1970. He studied his elementary and secondary education in Addis Ababa and Metu, Ilubabor. In 1993, he completed his Bachelor of Arts in Political Science and International Relations (major) and Public Administration (minor) at the Addis Ababa University. In December 1993, he was employed by the Department of Political Science and International Relations, Addis Ababa University as a Graduate Assistant. He was then involved in the teaching and research activities of the Department. After winning a Japanese government scholarship (Monbusho), he joined the MA programme in International Relations at the International University of Japan in September 1997. After completing his graduate study in June 1998, he joined the Department of Political Science and International Relations, Addis Ababa University as lecturer. He taught several courses and was engaged in independent and collaborative research. In 2003, he joined the PhD programme of the Department of Political Science, Leiden University. His PhD project was on 'federalism and conflict in Ethiopia'. He published and presented papers at international conferences on topics related to his PhD research project. Moreover, he taught at both the graduate and undergraduate programmes of the Department.