

Universiteit
Leiden
The Netherlands

Gender, marriage and migration : contemporary marriages between mainland China and Taiwan

Lu, M.C.W.

Citation

Lu, M. C. W. (2008, May 15). Gender, marriage and migration : contemporary marriages between mainland China and Taiwan. Retrieved from <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/13001>

Version: Not Applicable (or Unknown)

License: Licence agreement concerning inclusion of doctoral thesis in the Institutional Repository of the University of Leiden

Downloaded from: <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/13001>

Note: To cite this publication please use the final published version (if applicable).

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Acknowledgements

List of tables, diagram, maps and charts

Pictures

Introduction	1
Objective of the research and research questions	4
Contribution and limit of the research	10
Brief description of three fieldwork sites	13
Research methodology	20
Chapter 1 Changing of marriage regimes and gender relations in Chinese society	25
1.1. Conceptualising Chinese kinship	26
1.1.1 Family and kinship (jia)	26
1.1.2 Fang and fenjia	28
1.1.3 Power and pollution of women in Chinese kinship	30
1.1.4 Sketches of traditional ideals and practices of Chinese marriage	33
1.2. Marriage regimes and gender relations in contemporary China	36
1.2.1 Radical redefinition of the marriage regime in Maoist era	36
1.2.2 Marriage regimes in the era of reform	40
1.2.3 Demographic features and gender roles in economic reform era	43
1.2.4 Perceptions towards international marriages	46
1.3 Marriage regimes and gender relations in Taiwan	48
1.3.1 Traditional ideals and Japanese period: similarity and difference among ethnic groups	48
1.3.2 Post WWII development	52
1.3.3 Demographic change and gender roles	54
1.4. Matchmaking and mate choice in contemporary China and Taiwan	57
1.4.1 Criteria of mate choice	57
1.4.2 Matchmaking principles and matchmaker	61
1.4.3 Marriage transaction	63
1.4.4 Marital decision: fate and/or agency?	65
1.5 New framework of Chinese relatedness	67

Chapter 2 Migration in contemporary China	71
2.1 Literature review of marriage migration	71
2.1.1 Working definition and clarification of terminology	72
2.1.2 Situating marriage migration theory in the development of migration theories	74
2.2 Internal and international marriage migration in China	79
2.2.1 Development of the policy controlling population movement: Hukou system	79
2.2.2 Trends of women's internal migration	82
2.2.3 Rural young girls in the city and their life choices	84
2.3 Demographic features of cross-border and cross-straits marriages in Taiwan	86
2.3.1 Some note on statistical data and methodology	86
2.3.2 Numbers and sex ratio of cross-border marriages – an historical overview	88
2.3.3 Age and age gap	92
2.3.4 Socio-economic status: education and occupation	93
2.3.5 Previous marital experience and co-habiting kin	95
2.3.6 Means of introduction	97
2.3.7 Ethnic composition and place of origin	97
2.3.8 Discussion: the links and differences between domestic labour, sex work and women's marriage migration	99
2.4. Motivation of cross-border marriage	101
2.4.1 Why marriage and/or remarriage?	101
2.4.2 Why leaving home? Dissatisfaction and constraints experienced at home	104
2.4.3 Why going to Taiwan? Aspirations towards migratory destination	106
2.5 Concluding remark: why cross-border marriages? Significance of meso-factors	107
Chapter 3 Popular discourse and politics of cross-strait marriages in Taiwan	111
3.1. Introduction	111
3.1.1 Working definitions of key concepts: nationalism, citizenship and social exclusion	113
3.1.2 Chinese nationalism and ethnic relations in Taiwan	117
3.1.3 Taiwanese nationalism	121
3.2. Pre-1992 period: forbidden contact, illegal contacts and legalization	125
3.2.1 Political context: standoff – relaxation	125
3.2.2 Media representation on cross-strait people's movement 1987-1991	128
3.3. 1992-1996: from resistance to acceptance. Main concern: population quality	131

3.3.1 Cross-strait interaction: Political divergence and economic integration	131
3.3.2 Domestic politics of the making of the Act Governing Relations between Peoples of the Taiwan area and the Mainland Area (AGRPTM)	135
3.3.3 The AGRPTM's discourse on issues related to cross-strait marriages	140
3.3.3.1 Category of Mainland Chinese's residential status	140
3.3.3.2 Criteria of mainland spouses' residential status – bogus marriages	141
3.3.3.3 Inheritance of pensions and welfare entitlements of veterans	144
3.3.4 Discussion: citizenship as membership of kinship and nation	148
3.4 1996-2000: from acceptance to assimilation	150
3.4.1 Policy discourse	150
3.4.1.1 Quota system and pressure from the grassroots	151
3.4.1.2 Framing the issues: rights to work and health care	155
3.4.1.3 Recruitment of mainland guest workers	158
3.4.2. Opinions of other social actors	159
3.4.3 Media representation	161
3.4.4 Discussion: differentiated citizenship: gendered social rights	163
3.5 2000-2004: a new form of exclusion under growing Taiwanese nationalism	166
3.5.1 Domestic politics and cross-strait interaction	166
3.5.2 Media representation: from mainland brides to Chinese whore	168
3.5.3 Policy discourse: resurgence of fear over bogus marriage	171
3.5.3.1 Double track system	171
3.5.3.4 Screening mechanism	175
3.5.4 Discussion: social exclusion and nationalism	178
3.6 Concluding remark	179
Chapter 4 Matchmaking practices and mate choice in cross-border marriages	181
4.1. Existing concepts coined with commercially arranged marriages	182
4.1.1 Human trafficking and trafficking in women	182
4.1.2 Mail Order Brides (MOB) and commodified marriage	183
4.1.3 Trade marriages	184
4.2. Earlier matchmaking practices	186
4.3 Institutionalisation of the brokering industry of cross-border marriages	191
4.3.1 Typology of organisations in the marriage brokering industry	191
4.4 Growth and decline of different types of brokerage and its changing operations	195
4.4.1 Standardised operation	195
4.4.2 Recent variations	201

4.4.3 Exceptions: consistent pattern in the veteran's settlement	205
4.5. Roles of matchmakers	208
4.5.1 Actors, services and money flows in matchmaking practices	208
4.5.2 Matchmakers' role in deciding ethnicity and origins of brides	209
4.5.3 Tasks of matchmakers after marriages	211
4.6 Meanings of economic transactions before and during the wedding	212
4.7 Actors' perspectives on trade marriage	213
4.8 Concluding remark: making sense of commercially arranged marriages	215
Chapter 5 Negotiation of gender and kinship relations in everyday life	217
5.1. Perception and expectation of the husband's family and communities prior to marriage	218
5.2. Marginal status, controlling and shaming mechanisms	226
5.3. Gaining recognition and acceptance in different stages	231
5.3.1. Initial stage	231
5.3.2 Living across straits	236
5.3.3 Pregnancy and child birth	243
5.3.4 Household economy and sexual division of labour	247
5.3.5 Remarried older brides	251
5.3.6 Discussion: gendered power relations in life cycle	255
5.4. Work and autonomy	257
5.4.1 Availability of jobs: gendered and ethnic labour market	257
5.4.2 The usage of income	264
5.4.3 Negotiation between economic independence and familial obligation	266
5.4.4 Consciousness of autonomy and self-fulfilment	267
5.4.5 Discussion: gendered power relation and economy	269
5.5. Consolidating social network	271
5.5.1 Manoeuvring strategies among different kinship members	271
5.5.2 Social network among fellow brides	274
5.5.3 Covering and strengthening "national" and political identity	276
5.5.4 Discussion: gendered power relations of the weak	277
5.6 Concluding remark: Gender, yang and care: reconceptualise kinship in Chinese society	278
Conclusion: Studying gender in the web of relations: gender, family, market and the state	281
Why cross-border marriages?	281
Mechanism of social exclusion and otherness	286

Negotiation of gender and inter-generational relations	293
Inter-generational and gendered care	295
Cultural notions, social relations and the state's policy: towards a new framework of studying gender and migration	297
References	299
List of official documents and laws consulted	315
Glossary of Chinese terms	317
Summary (English)	323
Samenvatting (Dutch summary)	327
Curriculum Vitae	331

List of tables, diagram, maps and charts

Tables

Table 1 Unmarried population and sex-ratio in Taiwan, 2000: according to age	55
Table 2 Unmarried population and sex-ratio in Taiwan, 2000: according to education background and sex	56
Table 3 Estimated number of cross-border marriages with Southeast Asian and PRC nationals in Taiwan: according to nationality	89
Table 4 Number of foreign spouses acquiring long-term residency: by gender and nationality, 2005	91
Table 5 Social category of Taiwanese spouses	94
Table 6 Employment of Taiwanese spouses	95
Table 7 Marital experiences/status of mainland and foreign spouses in percentage	96
Table 8 Number of foreign spouses and foreign migrant workers by sex and nationality	100
Table 9 Summary of orientations of policies governing cross-strait marriages	112
Table 10 Change of national identity, preference of independence or unification. Comparison of elites and the general public	124
Table 11 Taiwan's trade dependency on the Mainland, 1986-2004	134
Table 12 Number of Taiwanese people visiting the PRC, with two statistics compiled by ROC and PRC authorities	135
Table 13 The positions of party factions on Mainland policies, 1990-1996	139
Table 14 Numbers of cross-strait marriages and the quota system of resident permits	152
Table 15 Categories of residential status in the double track system	173
Table 16 Typology of marriage brokers/matchmakers	210

Diagram

Diagram 1: Actors, services and money flows in matchmaking practice	208
---	-----

Maps

Map 1 Taiwan, the ROC and Fujian province, the PRC, indicating three fieldwork sites: Baihe, Hukou and Fuqing	12
Map 2 Fieldwork sites in Taiwan, Hukou township, Hsinchu county and Baihe township, Tainan county	14
Map 3 Fieldwork site 3: Humei Village, Fuqing city, Fujian Province	19

Charts

108-110

Chart 1 Number of Cross-border Marriages with Southeast Asian and PRC nationals in Taiwan: according to nationality
Chart 2 Age distribution of foreign and mainland Chinese female spouses
Chart 3 Age distribution of Taiwanese men in cross-border marriages
Chart 4 Education level of foreign and mainland Chinese spouses
Chart 5 Education level of Taiwanese spouses	