Curriculum Vitae

Tom van Ham was born on 19 September 1983 in Haren, the Netherlands. In 2002 he started studying psychology at the VU University Amsterdam and, between 2003 and 2007 followed courses in other scientific disciplines (anthropology, criminology). In 2007 he obtained his MSc degree in both clinical neuropsychology and criminology. After a 3-month sabbatical in South-Eastern Asia, he started working at the Dutch police force (2008) and later on became employed at Bureau Beke (2009-2019) and TwynstraGudde (2019). Over the years, he has increasingly provided guest lectures for training and academic purposes and has made several appearances in Dutch national news media. Next to his fulltime job he became in 2013 an external PhD candidate in a project about the determinants of collective violence involvement at Leiden Law School of Leiden University. Currently, he is employed at The Royal Netherlands Marechaussee.
