

Universiteit
Leiden
The Netherlands

Negotiating power and constructing the nation : engineering in Sri Lanka

Witharana, B.D.

Citation

Witharana, B. D. (2018, September 27). Negotiating power and constructing the nation : engineering in Sri Lanka. Retrieved from <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/66109>

Version: Not Applicable (or Unknown)

License: Licence agreement concerning inclusion of doctoral thesis in the Institutional Repository of the University of Leiden

Downloaded from: <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/66109>

Note: To cite this publication please use the final published version (if applicable).

Cover Page

Universiteit Leiden

The handle <http://hdl.handle.net/1887/66109> holds various files of this Leiden University dissertation.

Author: Witharana, B.D.

Title: Negotiating power and constructing the nation : engineering in Sri Lanka

Issue Date: 2018-09-27

Negotiating Power and Constructing the Nation

Engineering in Sri Lanka

PROEFSCHRIFT

ter verkrijging van de graad van Doctor aan de Universiteit Leiden, op gezag van Rector Magnificus prof.
mr. C.J.J.M. Stolker, volgens besluit van het College voor Promoties te verdedigen op donderdag 27 september 2018 klokke 15:00 uur

door

Bandura Dileepa Witharana geboren in Colombo (Sri Lanka) in 1965

Promotores:

Prof. dr. N. K. Wickramasinghe

Prof. (Em.) dr. H. Sriyananda (The Open University of Sri Lanka)

Promotiecommissie:

Prof. dr. J. Spencer (University of Edinburgh)

Prof. dr. A. Bedner

Prof. dr. H. S. Nordholt

Dr. A. Schrikker

Negotiating Power and Constructing the Nation: Engineering in Sri Lanka

Bandura Dileepa Witharana 2018

Front cover drawing: Dushshantha Hettiaarachchi

Maps: Nayana Padmini

Content

Acknowledgements iv

Introduction 1

Chapter 1: “Engineering is in our blood”: a popular narrative of Sri Lankan Engineering 20

1.1 The three cases 20

1.2 The narrative of engineering as a discussion of heritage 23

1.2.1 Silences 25

1.2.1.1 Silence on modern works of engineering 25

1.2.1.2 Silence on who had expertise in pre-colonial engineering 27

1.2.1.3 Silence on technological developments elsewhere 29

1.2.1.4 More questions than answers 31

1.2.2 The present in the past 33

1.2.2.1 (Modern) scientific explanation of remains 34

1.2.2.2 (Modern) scientific restoration of remains 36

1.2.2.3 Establishing an illusion of continuity 36

1.2.3 Bridge between the narrative of engineering and Sinhala nationalism 38

1.3 Placing chapters in context 40

Chapter 2: Imagining the Industrial Nation of Ceylon: Aberdeen - Laxapana Hydro Electric Scheme (1900-1936) 41

2.1 Background 42

2.2 Incompatible narratives 44

2.3 Hydro electric politics 47

2.3.1 Rylands and the colonial government 48

2.3.2 Boustead Brothers and Consulting Engineers 49

2.3.3 'Big Business': Business interests of the British Empire 52

2.4 The developmental nation: the Ceylonese case 56

2.4.1 Background: Early twentieth century Ceylon 57

2.4.1.1 Caste and class landscape 57

2.4.1.2 Socio-political movements 59

- 2.4.2 Developmental nationalism: from Marcus Fernando to Wimalasurendra 61
- 2.4.3 Competing choices: Minneriya Irrigation Scheme 71
- 2.4.4 Visvesvaraya and Wimalasurendra 74
- 2.4.5 Why did not Ceylon become a developmental state? 75
 - 2.4.5.1 Personality theory 75
 - 2.4.5.2 Caste theory 77
 - 2.4.5.3 Class theory 79

Chapter 3: A High-Tech Journey to the Sinhala Past: the Accelerated Mahaweli Development Project (AMDP) (1978-1985) 81

- 3.1 Background 81
 - 3.1.1 Project details 82
 - 3.1.2 A technological icon of national pride 83
 - 3.1.3 From a thirty year plan to six year accelerated plan 84
 - 3.1.4 'Truly non - Sri Lankan' 86
- 3.2 Multiple faces of the AMDP 88
 - 3.2.1 Narrative 1: As a modern mega development project dressed up as an attempt to reclaim indigenous national culture 90
 - 3.2.2 Narrative 2: As an indigenous development project 92
 - 3.2.3 Narrative 3: As a project to promote the image of Gamini Dissanayake 93
 - 3.2.4 Narrative 4: As a Sinhala colonisation project 94
 - 3.2.5 Narrative 5: As a project preventing industrialisation 96
 - 3.2.6 Technology as a text/drama 97
- 3.3 The AMDP and the Sinhala nation: a journey towards the past 100
 - 3.3.1 Revival of a glorious past 101
 - 3.3.2 Mahaweli Vansaya (The Chronicle of Mahaweli): Mahaweli Valley as a nostalgic site 105
- 3.4 The AMDP and the Sinhala nation: dealing with the 'other' 110
 - 3.4.1 Case 1: Yaan Oya - Malwathu Oya - Maduru Oya Operation: destroying the basis of Eelam 112
 - 3.4.2 Case 2: North-Central Province Canal: exclusion of Tamils 115

3.5 Engineers	119
3.6 Engineering designs	125
Chapter 4: Giving up a past for a technologically better past? Ravana, the engineer, and his technological dynasty (2000-2016)	128
4.1 The tale of two pasts in conflict	128
4.2 Ravana surge in public space	130
4.3 Ravana, the engineer, and his technological dynasty	134
4.4 The nineteenth century 'moment' of Sinhala nationalism: the colonial 'moment'	138
4.4.1 Background: the scholarly debate so far	139
4.4.2 Defining the colonial 'moment' of Sinhala nationalism	140
4.4.2.1 The Mahavamsa	141
4.4.2.2 The theory of Aryan race	142
4.4.2.3 Discovery of ruins	143
4.4.3 The Sinhala nation in the face of scholarly challenge	144
4.5 The early twenty-first century 'moment' of Sinhala nationalism: the Ravana 'moment'	145
4.5.1 Ravana – the story so far	145
4.5.2 Other features of the Ravana narrative	149
4.5.2.1 The role of women	149
4.5.2.2 Abhayagiri tradition of Buddhism	151
4.5.2.3 Links with the regime of Mahinda Rajapakse	152
4.5.3 Defining the Ravana 'moment' of Sinhala nationalism	152
4.5.4 The future	158
Conclusion	159
Maps	168
Bibliography	172
Summary in Dutch / Nederlandse samenvatting	191
Curriculum Vitae	194
Propositions	195

Acknowledgements

This study marks a major change in my life. It is not only a formal deviation from my previous disciplinary training in mathematics and engineering to humanities and social sciences, it also points to a radical change in the way I process and express my thoughts. It took me time to distance myself from the positivist approach based on which I used to deal with problems, and to be familiar with an interpretivist way of life - a life that demands patience. It is within this context that I am immensely thankful to Prof. Nira Wickramasinghe, my supervisor, for her highly professional guidance provided throughout this study where I crossed disciplinary boundaries, relatively unhurt. Most of all, I thank her for keeping her cool and being relaxed with me when I was too ambitious, and even when she was not sure where I was heading. Her contribution was invaluable. My sincere thanks also go to Prof. H. Sriyananda, my co-supervisor, for his comments and useful advice offered while I was conducting fieldwork and writing. I am also grateful to the Doctorate Committee, Prof. Jonathan Spencer, Prof. Adriaan Bedner, Prof. Henk Schulte Nordholt and Dr. Alicia Schrikker for their very useful comments which helped me to produce the final version of my dissertation.

I should extend my heartfelt gratitude to three groups of people whose input was crucial in shaping my main arguments in this dissertation. Firstly to the Sri Lanka Social Development Foundation of Galle which introduced me to the details of the life of the engineer D. J. Wimalasurendra, secondly to several retired high ranking officials and senior engineers of the Central Engineering Consultancy Bureau, and thirdly, to the leadership of the “Ravana movement” who are behind the twenty first century surge of Sinhalese interest in the ancient King Ravana.

My grateful thanks go to Harini Amarasiriya and Harshana Rambukwella for reading chapters of my dissertation, providing useful and critical comments and helping me with revisions. I would also like to thank Dini Kurukulasiriya for editing the final draft of the thesis very professionally and in quick time. Finally, I would like to extend my gratitude to my colleagues at Leiden, Yuxi Nie, Constantinos Ktenas and Idrees Kanth, for the rich discussions and debates that were directly and indirectly linked to the content of my study.