

Universiteit
Leiden
The Netherlands

The soldier as a sage: Qi Jiguang (1528-1588) and the neo-confucianization of the military in sixteenth-century China
Noordam, B.

Citation

Noordam, B. (2018, October 18). The soldier as a sage: Qi Jiguang (1528-1588) and the neo-confucianization of the military in sixteenth-century China. Retrieved from <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/66264>

Version: Not Applicable (or Unknown)

License: Licence agreement concerning inclusion of doctoral thesis in the Institutional Repository of the University of Leiden

Downloaded from: <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/66264>

Note: To cite this publication please use the final published version (if applicable).

Cover Page

Universiteit Leiden

The handle <http://hdl.handle.net/1887/66264> holds various files of this Leiden University dissertation.

Author: Noordam, B.

Title: The soldier as a sage: Qi Jiguang (1528-1588) and the neo-confucianization of the military in sixteenth-century China

Issue Date: 2018-10-18

The Soldier as a Sage:
Qi Jiguang (1528-1588) and the Neo-Confucianization of the Military in Sixteenth-Century China

PROEFSCHRIFT

ter verkrijging van de graad van Doctor aan de Universiteit Leiden, op gezag van de Rector Magnificus prof. mr. C.J.J.M. Stolker, volgens besluit van het College voor Promoties te verdedigen op 18 oktober 2018
klokke 11:15 uur

door

Barend Noordam

geboren te Zeist
25 september 1981

Promotores: Prof. dr. J. J. L. Gommans (Universiteit Leiden)
Prof. dr. A.T. Gerritsen (Universiteit Leiden)

Promotiecommissie: Prof. dr. R.E. Breuker (Universiteit Leiden)
Prof. dr. M. 't Hart (Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam; Huygens Instituut)
Dr. P.A. Lorge (Vanderbilt University, Nashville Tennessee, USA)
Prof. dr. B. Schoenmaker (Universiteit Leiden)
Dr. L.M. Teh (Universiteit Leiden)

Contents

Acknowledgements	3
Samenvatting (Summary in Dutch)	4
Curriculum Vitae	10
Stellingen (Prepositions)	11
Introduction	14
• Chapter 1 – The Making of Wen and Wu	26
• Earliest Beginnings	26
• The Genesis of Wen and Wu as Spheres of State Activity	27
• Wen and Wu as Aspects of Socio-Cultural Archetypes	39
The Junzi	40
The Sagely General	44
The Knight-Errant	48
The Rujiang	50
• Chapter 2 - The Separation of Wen and Wu	52
• Developmental Cycles of Imperial Civil-Military Relations before 960	52
• A Broken Cycle: The Tang-Song Transition and Wen and Wu	55
• Neo-Confucianism and the Wen-Wu Divide	67
• Neo-Confucianism and the Wen-Wu Divide during the Yuan and Early Ming Empires	79
• Chapter 3 – The Emergence of a Problem: The Crises of the Mid-Ming	84
• Chronological Overview	84
• Socio-Economic Changes	89
• Interethnic Conflicts in the South	93
• The Crisis of Military Organization	97
The Crisis of Military Labour	97
The Crisis of Military Leadership	100
The Military Crisis in the North	104
The Military Crisis in the South	106
• Financial Aspects of the Military System	109
• A Crisis of Ideology	112
• Chapter 4 – Bridging the Wen-Wu Divide: Wang Yangming	117
• Wang Yangming's Mad Ardour	118
• Chen Xianzhang, Zhan Ruoshui, and Lu Jiuyuan	126
• Wang Yangming's Unity of Knowledge and Action	129
• Chapter 5 – Wang Yangming at the Frontier	137
• Re-Centring Wang Yangming's Military Exploits	137
• Recruitment	145
• Training	148
• Military Leadership	148
• Military Operations and the Military Intelligence Staff	150
• Deception	150
• Rewards, Punishments, and Discipline	151
• Morale and Courage	152
• Organization	152

• Financing	155
• Civil Governance	156
• The Legacy of Wang's Military Praxis	158
• Chapter 6 – The Dissemination of Xinxue among Ming Military Commanders	161
• Military Leadership by Civil Officials and Xinxue Affiliation	162
• The Anti-Wokou Campaign and Its Xinxue Leadership	163
• Chapter 7 – Xinxue and Qi Jiguang	174
• Qi Jiguang's Ideas	177
• Qi Jiguang's Career: Xinxue in Practice	185
Zhejiang	188
Jiangxi, Fujian, and Guangdong	194
Northwards	196
• Chapter 8 – Cementing the Xinxue Network: A New Discourse on Friendship	201
• The New Xinxue -Discourse on Friendship	201
• The Renaissance of the Knight-Errant and Identity Eclecticism	208
• Chapter 9 – Military Knowledge Circulation and the Xinxue -Statecraft Network	218
• Military Writings as a Problematic Category	218
• (Military) Statecraft and its Development in the Neo-Confucian Context	220
• Converging Xinxue -Networks and (Military) Statecraft during the Wokou-Crisis	224
• Access to the Past in the Present: Military Knowledge and Its Circulation	236
• The Importance of Xinxue Military Writings in Sixteenth-Century Military Knowledge Production	245
• Chapter 10 - Neo-Confucianism Enters the Military Manual: Consolidation & Innovation	250
• The Manuals	250
• “Binding the Squads” and Collective Responsibility	257
• Neo-Confucianism Enters the Military Manual	268
• From South to North, from State to State, from Dynasty to Dynasty	279
Conclusion	283
Appendix A – Zhan Ruoshui and Wang Yangming-Followers Contributing to the Chou hai tu bian	288
Appendix B – Methodology of Studying Military Literature	290
Bibliography	292

Acknowledgements

This dissertation has been a long time in the making and benefitted from the input of scholars across the globe. Needless to say, I owe an immense debt of gratitude to innumerable individuals and institutions. First of all, I extend my heartfelt thanks to my supervisors Prof. Jos Gommans and Prof. Anne Gerritsen, who patiently guided the endeavour to its conclusion. The many fruitful brainstorming sessions over the years undoubtably have had the largest impact on the final result. Moreover, whilst conducting my research at Leiden University, I was part of the Eurasian Empires Program, which formed another warm environment in which fertile scholarly discussions could take place. Therefore, I would like to thank Prof. Jeroen Duindam, Prof. Peter Rietbergen, Prof. Maaïke van Berkel, Dr. Marie Favereau, Dr. Liesbeth Geevers, Dr. Richard van Leeuwen, Cumhur Bekar, Josephine van den Bent, Lennart Bes, Willem Flinterman, Elif Özgen, Kim Ragetli, Hans Voeten, and Rebecca Wensma for making these years both productive and pleasant. In addition, my research in Leiden benefitted enormously from interactions with Prof. Hilde de Weerd and the members of her student research group, Prof. Barend ter Haar, Prof. Leonard Blussé, and Dr. Harriet Zurndorfer. Prof. Wilt Idema, Gabe Geert van Beijeren Bergen en Henegouwen and Daniel Stumm graciously extended their help with translating sources from classical Chinese to English.

An earlier phase of my research was conducted at the University of Heidelberg and I would like to extend special thanks to Prof. Antje Flüchter for guiding me during my first forays in the world of academia. I also owe a debt of gratitude to my colleague and friend Gauri Parasher for her emotional and intellectual support, and to Carolin Matjeka and Rouven Wirbser for lightening my workload considerably by scanning sources and contributing to a great work atmosphere in general. I also conducted one year of research at Academia Sinica in Taiwan and I would like to extend warm thanks to Dr. Wei-chung Cheng for hosting and supervising me during this time.

Special thanks go to Jeroen Bos and Dorine van Espelo, who immensely inspired me to take the first steps on the road towards a PhD in history. Furthermore, despite our friendship taking a steep nosedive recently, I would do history an injustice by not mentioning the intellectual sparring with Sander Molenaar. Let's leave it at that.

Last but not least, I would like to thank my parents Chris Noordam and Fia Noordam-van Barneveld for supporting my ambitions and standing by me, especially during the last very difficult phase of completing the dissertation in less than ideal personal circumstances. This book is for you.