Play by the rules? : coordination of EU sustainable development policies and the importance of the politico-legal context
Kamphof, R.

Cover Page

Universiteit Leiden

The handle http://hdl.handle.net/1887/67085 holds various files of this Leiden University dissertation.

Author: Kamphof, R.
Title: Play by the rules? : coordination of EU sustainable development policies and the importance of the politico-legal context
Issue Date: 2018-11-22

Acknowledgements

It has been a great honour to continue my academic career by obtaining a PhD at my Alma Mater, Leiden University. I was impressed by the innovative and international environment created in The Hague and at the faculty of Governance and Global Affairs.I would like to thank my supervisors Madeleine Hosli and Mohamed Salih. Madeleine has been a great first supervisor, providing me with constructive feedback and encouragement in the most difficult phases of my PhD journey throughout the years. I sincerely want to thank her for all of this and I hope we can continue our cooperation in the future. Furthermore, I am grateful for all the constructive comments from the doctorate committee.

I would also like to thank the people at Leiden University Dual PhD centre, who do a great job in supporting everyone with different, especially 'practical' backgrounds, in their tough quest to obtain a PhD. I would also like to thank the Leiden University Fund and other financial supporters for their contribution to academic conferences and other such expenses. I have learned a lot by meeting such inspiring colleagues at conferences and workshops in Brussels, London, Mainz, The Hague/Wassenaar, Glasgow and Barcelona.

Additionally, I want to thank all interviewees, from different countries and institutional backgrounds, for having contributed to my dissertation.

I would also like to thank my colleagues at NCDO/Kaleidos Research/OneWorld and Clingendael Institute for supporting me in my strange ambition to combine a nearly full time job with academic research. Without these organizations I would have been clueless summarizing policy-oriented research in factsheets, infographics and 'explanimations'.

Furthermore, I would like to thank my friends for giving me the right amount of distraction, perspective and loyalty. I would not have enjoyed all intellectual hardship without 'Dudes' weekends, Risk evenings, Plein drinks, FIFA games, Scheveningen afternoons, Leiden dinners, sport excursions and weekend trips to the best places in the EU. Of course, I would also like to thank my parents and sisters for their persistent backing and honesty ("I have no clue what my brother does, something with energy and raw materials").

Most of all, I owe my deepest love and gratitude to my wife Iris. She has been such a tremendous supporter. Apart from the PhD journey we have experienced beautiful life moments in the last years. I was the luckiest man in the world as she said yes to my marriage proposal in 2014. We got married in the city of our studies (and University) Leiden in 2015. What is more, she gave birth to our son Otis in October 2017. He has been the 'accelerator' of my PhD dissertation in the last months of Iris' pregnancy and having time with him and seeing his development is the most rewarding in life I have ever experienced. I hope we will eventually discuss this PhD journey. I hope even more that he and his friends will enjoy the best of European integration and worldwide sustainable development in the near future.

Thank you all ☺

Ries Kamphof
The Hague, August 2018