

Universiteit
Leiden
The Netherlands

The Rome Statute as Evidence of Customary International Law

Tan, Y.

Citation

Tan, Y. (2019, April 9). The Rome Statute as Evidence of Customary International Law. Meijers-reeks. Retrieved from <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/71143>

Version: Not Applicable (or Unknown)

License: Leiden University Non-exclusive license

Downloaded from: <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/71143>

Note: To cite this publication please use the final published version (if applicable).

Cover Page

Universiteit Leiden

The handle <http://hdl.handle.net/1887/71143> holds various files of this Leiden University dissertation.

Author: Tan, Y.

Title: The Rome Statute as Evidence of Customary International Law

Issue Date: 2019-04-09

Curriculum vitae

Yudan Tan (18 August 1988, Sichuan, China) obtained her law degrees from Southwest University of Political Science and Law (LL.B., 2010), China University of Political Science and Law (LL.M., 2013), and the University of Hamburg (LL.M., 2013). In 2010, Yudan also obtained the National Legal Professional Credential of People's Republic of China (Chinese Bar Association).

In September 2013, Yudan joined the Grotius Centre for International Legal Studies at Leiden University where she started as a PhD candidate under Prof. William A. Schabas and Dr. Robert W. Heinsch. Her research project The Rome Statute as Evidence of Customary International Law was funded by the China Scholarship Council. During her PhD research, she also attended summer courses on themes of international criminal law in Salzburg, Austria (August 2015) and Siracusa, Italy (May 2016). Alternatively, part of her research project has resulted in presentations on several occasions. Her research paper presented at Koç University was included in the ESIL Paper Series on SSRN (January 2017) and subsequently published in the (2018) 34 Utrecht Journal of International and European Law. She has also authored posts on blogs.