

Universiteit
Leiden
The Netherlands

Second-order electoral personalization. Intra-party preference voting in Belgium and the Netherlands

Nagtzaam, M.A.M.

Citation

Nagtzaam, M. A. M. (2019, October 9). Second-order electoral personalization. Intra-party preference voting in Belgium and the Netherlands. Retrieved from <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/78476>

Version: Publisher's Version

License: Licence agreement concerning inclusion of doctoral thesis in the Institutional Repository of the University of Leiden

Downloaded from: <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/78476>

Note: To cite this publication please use the final published version (if applicable).

Cover Page

Universiteit Leiden

The following handle holds various files of this Leiden University dissertation:

<http://hdl.handle.net/1887/78476>

Author: Nagtzaam, M.A.M.

Title: Second-order electoral personalization. Intra-party preference voting in Belgium and the Netherlands

Issue Date: 2019-10-09

M.A.M. Nagtzaam

Second-order electoral personalization

Intra-party preference voting in Belgium and the Netherlands

In this book, the central question is what the causes and consequences of intra-party preference voting are. Four different aspects of intra-party preference voting are studied: the effects of specific electoral rules on preference voting; the voters who cast a preference vote; the candidates who receive them; and the consequences of those preference votes. Three main conclusions are drawn: that in the absence of a the option to cast a party vote a vote for another candidate is not necessarily a true candidate vote; that ideology does not play a role when it comes to the intra-party competition; and that preference votes have limited consequences for the career and behaviour of politicians.

Second-order electoral personalization

Marijn A.M. Nagtzaam