Acknowledgments

When reading some acknowledgments of (former) colleagues, as inspiration for writing my own acknowledgments, I noticed that most of them started their acknowledgments with the ‘academic part’, to end with the ‘friends and family part’. While I recognize there is some logic to that if you are writing an acknowledgment for your dissertation, I would like to start by thanking my parents, Rini and Gerrie, for all their love and support. I am very proud knowing that my mother will sit behind me when I defend my dissertation, and I hope that my father will be in the mind of many people present that day. He will certainly be in mine.

During the five years in which I have worked on my dissertation I was supervised by Rudy Andeweg and Joop van Holsteyn, and later on also by Tom Louwerse. I am grateful for their support. They always responded quickly to questions, gave useful (and extensive!) feedback and constantly helped and pushed me to improve this dissertation. In addition I would like to thank the Institute of Political Science in Leiden. It has been, and still is, a pleasure to work there and I am thankful for the opportunities the institute gave me.

My PhD position was part of the PartiRep 2 project, a project funded by the Belgian Federal Science Office (Belspo). I am grateful for the funding I received from this project, and for the PartiRep Election Study 2014 dataset provided by this project, which I used in one part of my study. I would like to thank Patrick van Erkel for the work we did together on the experiment that is part of this dissertation. I enjoyed working together, discussing the pros and cons of each decision we had to make for the experiment. During my PhD I presented work at the Politicologenetaal, the ECPR general conference, and the ECPR Joint Sessions, and at the first Leuven-Montréal Winter School on Elections. I thank all participants in those events for their comments.

I now go back to the ‘friends and family part’. It is not possible to thank everybody in the way they deserve to be thanked. The advantage for them is that I will thank them in person. However, at least some names should definitely be mentioned here. First of all, Batsheva. I don’t know if I would have been ready to start a PhD without you. You have been an immense support, which I will never forget. Of course, also Hanneke and Jasmijn deserve recognition. You motivated and helped me, and it really helps to know that you two are always there for me. Anika and Jessica: thank you for all the fun we had as colleagues and as friends and that you agreed to be my paranimfen.

Finally, thank you Mirjam and Sem for your love and support and for reminding me of what is most important in life.
