Acknowledgments

There are many people who supported me through my research journey, to whom I am deeply indebted.

Firstly, I would like to express my gratitude to my supervisors, Prof. Atabaki and Dr. Saeidi. I have greatly benefited from Prof. Atabkai's continuous support of my study, his patience and immense knowledge. His guidance helped me at all times in the research and writing of this thesis. I will be always gratefull to Dr. Saeidi, whose encouragement, intellectual assistance, and emotional support truly inspired me. He was always available when I needed him.

I would like to thank the doctorate committee for their perceptive comments.

I am grateful to Dr. Hassan Hakimian and the Iranian Studies Centre at SOAS, University of London, where I pursued my research as an associate member of the Centre. Dr. Hakimian's generous support as well as his insightful comments enhanced this thesis.

On the ground, I would like to thank NICICO, particularly Mr. Nasehzadeh whose enormous support allowed this research to develop from its early conception. Without his precious support it would not have been possible to conduct this research. I owe gratitude to Mr. Mohebi for providing documents and facilitating my access to the Sarcheshmeh Copper Mine employees. He has enthusiastically followed my research progress to see the outcome. I also thank

Kanoon Bazneshastegan-e Sanaye'-e Mes-e Iran, Rafsanjan
[Association for Retirees of Iran Copper Industries, Rafsanjan].

Kaveh Ehsani assisted me like a mentor. I will never forget his generous help.

My sincere thanks go to Mohammad Maljoo, Parvin Alizadeh, and Farhad Nomani, who gave precious advice.

I would also like to thank Sa'id Leylaz, Iraj Seyf, Roham Alvandi, and Mansour Farokhnia.

I owe a lot to Siavash and Atyeh who generously supported me during the years of conducting this research. I am lucky to have them in my life.

To my wife, who was with me throughout this journey, I give my especial gratitude.

Last but not least, I would like to thank my mother, brothers, and sisters for supporting me spiritually throughout the writing of this thesis.
