Curriculum Vitae

Christiaan Engberts was born in 1982 in Amsterdam. He studied philosophy and history in Leiden. In 2010 he graduated cum laude for his Master in philosophy and he completed (again cum laude) the Research Master ‘History: Societies and Institutions’ in 2012. In 2013 he started his PhD research at Leiden University as part of the NWO-funded project ‘The scholarly self: character, habit, and virtue in the humanities, 1860–1930. Within this project he worked on the moral economy of scholarship among late-19th and early-20th-century German scholars. His research was supervised by the project’s leader, Professor Herman Paul and Professor Kaat Wils of the KU Leuven. He spent three months as a visiting scholar at the Graduate School Global and Area Studies of the Universität Leipzig in 2015, the Friedrich Meinecke Institut of the Freie Universität Berlin in 2016 and the Onderzoeksgroep Cultuurgeschiedenis vanaf 1750 of the KU Leuven in 2017. He has published articles in History of Humanities and Low Countries Historical Review, as well as co-edited (with Herman Paul) a volume on personae in the history of Orientalism that was published by Brill in 2019.
