Curriculum vitae

Charlotte van Schie was born on June 1st, 1986 in Honselersdijk. She completed her secondary education at the Dalton School, The Hague in 2004. After a gap year of travelling, she started her bachelor in Psychology at Leiden University in 2005. During a one semester exchange program, she studied topics of psychology and sociology at Monash University, Melbourne, Australia. She actively participated in the university's community, which, in 2008, included a year as the board member of External Relations of the psychology student union Labyrint. In 2009, she started her Research Master Clinical & Health Psychology at Leiden University. During her master program she completed additional clinical course work and a clinical internship at "De Jutters", a child and adolescent mental health institution. After graduating in 2012, she continued to gather clinical work experience as a junior psychologist at the "Haags Kinder- en Jeugdtherapeuticum" a nationally recognized trauma center for children and adolescents. Moreover, she continued to gather research experience as a research assistant with Bernet Elzinga and Chui-De Chiu on a project that would eventually become her PhD study. In 2013, she started her PhD with Bernet Elzinga, Willem Heiser and Serge Rombouts as her supervisors, while continuing as a part time lecturer in statistics and supervisor of thesis students.

She presented the PhD work in symposia on various international and national conferences. She received a poster award at the third International Congress on Borderline Personality Disorder and an article award by the European Society for Traumatic Stress Studies. She is actively involved in the research community, which included co-founding the interfaculty MRI Methods Meetings and peer-reviewing for international journals. She continued to develop her skills in statistical techniques through courses and by visiting the parietal lab in Saclay, France that has expertise on developing machine learning techniques for neuroimaging data. Her interests in both clinical work and statistics remain and are for example visible in collaborating with the Leiden Institute for Advanced Computer Science and in her current work of which one aspect is training mental health professionals in understanding and treating personality disorders.

Since this PhD position, Charlotte has worked as a post-doctoral researcher at Youz, child and adolescent mental health institution in The Hague, where she was the secretary of the scientific committee. She then moved with her husband Paul and daughter June to Australia, where she is a research fellow with the Project AIR strategy for personality disorders at the University of Wollongong.
