Acknowledgements (Dankwoord)

This dissertation could not have been written without the support of many individuals and I want to express my deepest appreciation to them.

First, I would like to thank my colleagues at Leiden University. Thank you all for your support and friendship during the past four years, and for your feedback on my work. I especially want to thank the members of the Leiden University CATO group, it was really a pleasant and valuable experience working with you all. My even more special thanks go to Bart, who has been my roommate and friend for more than four years now. I hope we will continue to work together as a “dynamic duo” in the future. Thank you for your companionship and of course for all the fun we had during conferences! Finally, I want to thank Joyce and Anne Marike for their constant support and friendship. Joyce, I remember with great pleasure the good talks we had during tea-breaks and conferences. Anne Marike, it is beyond the scope of this dissertation to describe the many ways in which you can light up an average day at the office.

Second, outside work-life (but surely facilitating it) I would like to thank my friends Diana and Peter; Evelien, Karen, and Ilse (a.k.a. “de chickens”); Camille; my little friends Lara, Lotje[†], and Pivo; and less recently Thijs, Kim, Jeroen, and Martijn. Your contribution to this dissertation is huge, even though you may not have the faintest notion of what it is about (or even of what a PhD-project entails). Meeting you all at various occasions energized me to complete this dissertation. Thank you!

Last, but not least I would like to thank my family. I want to thank my parents Anneke and Ferry; my siblings Bastiaan, Mieke, and Lisette; and my favorite in-laws Paul, Kirsten, and Johan for their ongoing love and support. In the past few months my life has been turned upside down, and you helped me to get back on my feet again. Thank you so much!
