Curriculum vitae

Narin Tezcan was born in 1977 in Kardzhali, Bulgaria. After graduating from İstanbul Kabataş Erkek Lisesi, she studied International Relations at Middle East Technical University, Ankara, Turkey. In 2001, she was awarded the British Council Chevening Scholarship for following the LLM programme in International Human Rights Law at Essex University, the UK. After completing her LLM, she worked as a research and teaching assistant in the departments of International Relations and EU Studies of Bahçeşehir University, İstanbul, Turkey. In 2005, she obtained the Jean Monnet Scholarship granted by the European Commission, which enabled her to complete the Advanced LLM programme in European Business Law at Leiden University. She started her PhD research at Leiden in May 2007 as a researcher, and was appointed a PhD-fellow at the Europa Institute of the university between March 2008-March 2014. She was a visiting researcher at Fordham Law School, New York, USA, for the 2011-2012 academic year. Since November 2014, Narin has been working as a part-time Lecturer at the European Law Department of Leiden Law School.

Narin's primary research interests concern EU-Turkey Association Law, Enlargement Law, protection of Fundamental Rights in the EU and Free Movement of Persons. She is also interested in issues of migration, rights of Third Country Nationals and EU energy policy. Narin has published on Ankara Association Law and EU energy policy.
