

Universiteit
Leiden
The Netherlands

'Recycling the past' Tzu-chi waste recycling and the cultural politics of nostalgia in Taiwan

Dung, Y.A.

Citation

Dung, Y. A. (2021, September 8). 'Recycling the past': Tzu-chi waste recycling and the cultural politics of nostalgia in Taiwan. Retrieved from <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/3209240>

Version: Publisher's Version

License: Licence agreement concerning inclusion of doctoral thesis in the Institutional Repository of the University of Leiden

Downloaded from: <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/3209240>

Note: To cite this publication please use the final published version (if applicable).

Cover Page

Universiteit Leiden

The handle <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/3209240> holds various files of this Leiden University dissertation.

Author: Dung, Y.A.

Title: 'Recycling the past' : Tzu-chi waste recycling and the cultural politics of nostalgia in Taiwan

Issue Date: 2021-09-08

RECYCLING THE PAST

Tzu-chi Waste Recycling and the Cultural Politics of Nostalgia in Taiwan

YUN-AN DUNG

Cover design and illustration: Ju-an Hsieh
Dutch translation: Mathilda Banfield

© Dung, 2021

All right reserved. No part of this dissertation may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted in any form or by any means, without prior permission in the writing of the author and publisher.

RECYCLING THE PAST

Tzu-chi Waste Recycling and
the Cultural Politics of Nostalgia in Taiwan

Proefschrift

ter verkrijging van de graad van doctor aan de Universiteit Leiden, op gezag van rector magnificus prof.dr.ir. H. Bijl, volgens besluit van het college voor promoties te verdedigen op 8 september 2021
klokke 16:15 uur

door

Yun-an Dung

Geboren te Taipei, Taiwan in 1986

Promotores

Prof. dr. Katarzyna J. Cwiertka

Prof. dr. Anne Murcott (University of Nottingham)

Promotiecommissie

Prof. dr. Maghiel van Crevel

Dr. Joshua Goldstein (University of Southern California)

Prof. dr. Mette Halskov Hansen (University of Oslo)

Prof. dr. Joshua Reno (Binghamton University)

Prof. dr. Robert Weller (Boston University)

This dissertation was made possible by the financial support of an NWO Vici Grant for “Garbage Matters: A Comparative History of Waste in East Asia” (2013-2018, grant number 277-53-006).

Contents

Figures and Tables	ix
Acknowledgements	xi
Chapter One Introduction	1
1. Tzu-chi Recycling in a Nutshell	1
2. Research Inquiry and Objective	5
3. Argument in Brief	7
4. A Glance at Taiwan in the Second Half of the 20th Century	8
5. Dissertation Structure and Chapter-by-chapter Overview	13
6. Research Methods	16
6.1 Research Design and Choosing the Case Study	16
6.2 Fieldwork and Field Methods	18
6.3 Uncertainty and Positionality of the Researcher	28
Chapter Two Theoretical Points of Departure: Waste and Nostalgia	33
1. Waste Studies	34
1.1 Literature on Recycling	41
2. Literature on Nostalgia	44
2.1 Literature on Environmental Nostalgia	48
3. Concluding Remarks	52
Chapter Three Recycling Scheme: Taiwan and Tzu-chi	55
1. Introduction	55
2. The Taiwanese Recycling Movement	57
3. Recycling Industry and Network	61
4. Tzu-chi Recycling Programme	67
4.1 Recycling Volunteers and Cadres	68
4.2 Recycling Sites	74
4.3 Material Classification	77
4.4 Administrative Task Force	79
4.5 Institutional Partners	81
5. Concluding Remarks	82

Chapter Four | The Disposable and Recyclable Labour 85

1.	Moving Beyond Beliefs	85
2.	Recycling Labours and Individuals	90
2.1	The Labour of 'Unmaking'	90
2.2	Stories of Shen, Mei, and Chu	93
3.	Being Productive and Being Recycled	95
3.1	The Age of 'Making'	98
3.2	Recycling Disposable Labour	101
4.	Concluding Remarks	106

Chapter Five | The Volunteers and Their Volunteering 109

1.	A Typical Day at a Tzu-chi Recycling Station	109
2.	Moving Beyond the Economic Structural View	114
3.	Volunteers or Victims?	115
3.1	Victimisation controversy	117
4.	Recycling and Re-living	122
4.1	Somatic Skills and Tacit Knowledge	122
4.2	Aging Together	126
5.	Concluding Remarks	129

Chapter Six | (Re)Making the Communities and Locality 131

1.	Introduction	131
2.	Taiwanese Localisation Movements, the 1990s-2000s	133
2.1	The Tzu-chi Communitisation Movement	133
2.2	The National Community-Making Programme	134
3.	A Case Study of the Jiaoxi Linmei Community	135
3.1	Linmei Community and its Recycling	136
3.2	From Tzu-chi to Township to Community	138
4.	Modern Community-making through Nostalgic Past-remembering	141
5.	Tzu-chi Recycling Collections and Social Relations	144
5.1	Fetching Materials, Building Networks	144
5.2	Collecting Materials, Exchanging Renqing	146
6.	Local Factions of Environmental Protection and Recycling	150
7.	Concluding Remarks	156

Chapter Seven | Recycling and Religion: A Humanistic Buddhist

Approach 159

1.	Introduction	160
2.	From 'Religion for Environment' to 'Environment for Religion'	163
2.1	Green Religion Movement	163
2.2	Religious Ecology Scholarship	165
2.3	EcoBuddhism	166
2.4	What Does Environmentalism Do for Religion?	168
3.	Tzu-chi's Institutional Discourse of the Environment and Recycling	169
3.1	Polluted Mind, Polluted Land	169
3.3	Recycling as Material Reincarnation	173
4.	Recycling for Buddhism	176
4.1	Humanistic Buddhism and Terrestrial Pure Land	176
4.2	Secularly Religious: The Tzu-chi Missions and Organisational Structure	179
4.3	Syncretism-Translation: A Strategy for the Buddhism Revival	184
5.	Concluding Remarks	186

Chapter Eight | The Cultural Project of Recycling: Traditional Order and

Nostalgic Environmentalism 189

1.	Introduction	189
2.	Transitions of Tzu-chi: From Betterment to Redemption	190
3.	Traditional Order Reclamation	194
3.1	The Symbolic System of Ordered Purity	194
3.2	The System of Interpersonal Relations: 'Subduing Oneself and Restoring Traditional Propriety'	198
3.3	The System of Physical Entities: Microcosm and Macrocosm	201
4.	A Discourse of Nostalgic Environmentalism	204
4.1	Tianrenheyi : Anthropocosmicism	204
4.2	Globalisation and local contextualisation	205
4.3	Problematic Presence and Selective Past	208
5.	Concluding Remarks	212

Chapter Nine | Conclusion 215

Bibliography	227
--------------	-----

Appendix	251
Summary	257
Samenvatting	263
Curriculum Vitae	269

Figures & Tables

Figures

Figure 3.1	Four-in-One Resource Recycling Programme	59
Figure 3.2	Recyclable Classification and Municipal Recycling Timetable of Taipei City	60
Figure 3.3	Key Recycling Collector Groups and Their Material Exchange Relation	63
Figure 3.4	Municipal Recycling Truck	65
Figure 3.5	Scrap Dealer	65
Figure 3.6	Community Recycling Room	65
Figure 3.7	Van Recycle	65
Figure 3.8	Neighbourhood Junk Shop	65
Figure 3.9	Crushing-baling Depot	65
Figure 3.10	Tzu-chi Volunteers and Their Uniforms	71
Figure 3.11	Tzu-chi Community Environmental Station	75
Figure 3.12	Tzu-chi District Environmental Station	75
Figure 3.13	Tzu-chi Environmental Park	75
Figure 3.14	Sorted PET Bottles in a Tzu-ch District Station	75
Figure 3.15	A Poster of the 'Pithy Ten-finger Environmental Formula'	78
Figure 4.1	Reference Sample Board of Tzu-chi Plastic Packaging Material Classification	91
Figure 4.2	Industrial Structure Change, 1951-2018	99
Figure 5.1	Outside the Plastics Recycling Room at the Temporary Tzu-chi Bade Recycling Station in Taipei	110
Figure 5.2	Inside the Plastics Recycling Room at the Temporary Tzu-chi Bade Recycling Station in Taipei	111
Figure 5.3	Canteen at the Temporary Bade Recycling Station When the Volunteers Were Having Their Lunch	112
Figure 5.4	A Screenshot of Dai Shen-tong's Facebook Post	119
Figure 5.5	Tzu-chi Recycling Volunteers Working in a Taipei District Station	126
Figure 5.6	Trend in Taiwanese Population of Three Broad Age Groups, 1975-2065	129
Figure 6.1	Tzu-chi Evening Environmental Protection Point in Taipei	148
Figure 7.1	Redrawing of the Tzu-chi Organisational Structure	182
Figure 8.1	Scheme of Ordered Purity	195

TABLES

Table 1.1	The Major Events of the Author's Participant Observation on Tzu-chi Recycling	21
Table 1.2	List of the Collected Tzu-chi Institutional Publications	26
Table 3.1	Age Distribution of Tzu-chi Certified Recycling Community Volunteers	73
Table 4.1	Unemployment-related Statistics, 1980-2018	103

Acknowledgements

During the darkest moments of this PhD project, I counted the names in my head, the names to which I owed so much, the names which gave me a sense of strength, the names which reminded me the beauties and wonders of pursuing the unknown. Nothing is more satisfying than this moment of finally writing them down, in the opening pages of this dissertation and at the closing stage of my PhD.

I am first thankful to my supervisors, Professor Katarzyna Cwiertka and Professor Anne Murcott, for their help, advice and unfailing faith in me and my research project over the years. And I am unbelievably lucky and thankful to have Pak Hyojin and Rebecca Tompkins as my project colleagues. Your academic inspiration and genuine friendship from the very beginning mark the highlights of this journey.

The writing process of this dissertation has been so long that my debts are too great to list properly. I am grateful above all to Chen Liang-yu, who shares his support, ideas, time and contacts so generously and warmly, as a scholar and as a dear friend. My sincere gratitude goes to Chiu Kai-wen, Wang Bo and Adam Liebman, for their constructive and insightful comments on the chapter drafts. I also am grateful to Lai Huei-ling, Hung Ching, Yu Po-tsan, Wu Kuan-wei and Huang I-chun. Much of their intellectual feedback helped shape the way this dissertation turned out. I would also like to extend my genuine gratitude to the members of the doctorate committee: Professor Maghiel van Crevel, Dr. Joshua Goldstein, Professor Mette Halskov Hansen, Professor Joshua Reno, Professor Robert Weller, whose thoughtful suggestions, criticism and recommendations helped me in finalizing the dissertation and contemplating my future research. Thanks also to my editors, Klarijn Anderson-Loven, Amy Sheeran, and especially, Mathilda Banfield, who assisted me to deliver my thoughts in a lucid manner.

Most of the writing process took place in the office at the Vrieshof building and the Asian Library of Leiden University, and the Taipei office of the Sociology Department of National Taipei University. I owe a special apology to the security team of Leiden University who often had to wait patiently for me [and the key] before closing the school at midnight. I owe a great deal of gratitude to my alma mater the sociology department of NTPU and Professor Kuo Wen-ben, for their loving supports to offer me a place to work during my fieldwork and writing stage in Taiwan.

For the fruitful fieldwork between 2014 and 2018, I would like to thank many scholars, professionals, and friends for their academic encouragement, contact introductions and moral support. They include Professor Lin Zi-lun, Li Han-lim, Shih Chia-liang, Chung Ming-kuang, Chen Man-li, Liu Chen-hsiu, Chen Yen-chun, Shania Hsia, Wu Hsiu-mei, Li Pei-chen, Chao Yi-chin, Hou Tai-ling, Cordelia Chiang and others. I wish to send my special gratitude to Lian Chi-tung, who not only allowed a stranger to jump into his recycling truck but also showed me the waste world without holding back. I also owe a special debt to Professor Lu Dau-jye, whose academic support helped me a great deal in conducting research at Linmei village. Additional thanks should go to the Department of Waste Management and the Recycling Fund of Management Board of the Environmental Protection Administration, Taiwan Watch, the Taiwan Circular Economy Network, and the Taiwan Institute for Sustainable Energy for sharing their professional insights about waste with me across the time. For many informants and interviewees who offered substantial helps and shared their life stories during the fieldwork but cannot be named here, I bear your names in my mind with heartfelt gratitude.

Finally, I thank my loved ones. Any acknowledgements here are inadequate repayment of the support I have received. I thank my Dutch family, Nicky, Elianne, Marian, Aschwin and Loulou. It is because of your warm embrace that I can call Rotterdam home with a smile. I thank my comrades at Oranje Express, for the strength and care you give me, and the power of curiosity and fellowship you show me. I thank my dear friends, Chenghua, Cindy, Chiao, Esther, Fedrick, Huahua, Yvet, and Ying, for the laughers and hugs in the ugly and wild moments.

The last paragraph is reserved for my grandmother Hsiu-yun 秀雲, my mother Feng-ying 鳳英 and my sister Tze-an 芝安. Being your family is better than I could ever put into words. Thank you for your endless love in all things big and small.