

Universiteit
Leiden
The Netherlands

In the shadow of displaceability: refugee and migrants in suburban Calcutta

Mukherjee, A.

Citation

Mukherjee, A. (2021, November 24). In the shadow of displaceability: refugee and migrants in suburban Calcutta. Retrieved from <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/3244030>

Version: Publisher's Version

License: Licence agreement concerning inclusion of doctoral thesis in the Institutional Repository of the University of Leiden

Downloaded from: <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/3244030>

Note: To cite this publication please use the final published version (if applicable).

Curriculum Vitae

Aditi Mukherjee is a PhD Candidate at the Leiden University. Her PhD dissertation is titled In the shadow of Displaceability: Experience of Refugees and Migrants in suburban Calcutta, funded by the Erasmus Mundus IBIES PhD fellowship. Her PhD dissertation draws on ethnographic research with two migrant groups in Calcutta and North 24 Parganas in West Bengal, India and address questions of displacement and citizenship within third world contexts. She is a Research Associate at the Institute of Development Studies, Kolkata. She has previously been a Research Associate at the Calcutta Research Group, Kolkata. She is associated with the 1947 Partition Archive based at Berkeley, California as a Citizen Historian. She holds a BA and MA degree in History from the Presidency College, Kolkata and University of Calcutta respectively and an MPhil in Foreign Policy Studies, from the Institute of Foreign Policy Studies, University of Calcutta. Her broad research interests include processes of third world urbanism, displacement, citizenship and gender.