Acknowledgements

This dissertation is the result of my participation in the PhD joint philosophy program at Diego Portales University in Chile and Leiden University in The Netherlands. It was fully funded by the doctorate scholarship of the Chilean National Committee for Scientific and Technological Research (CONICYT). Throughout the four years of research, I have also received funding from Diego Portales University to participate in conferences and events abroad, and have spent two short periods researching at the University of Köln with funding from the University and from the DAAD respectively. I am grateful to all these Institutions for their support.

I would like to express my gratitude to my supervisors: Dr. Bernardo Ainbinder, whose blend of academic excellence and generosity has been of incalculable value over the years; and Dr. Frank Chouraqui, who was a crucial presence during the writing process and helped me get my ideas in shape through numerous stimulating conversations. To Dr. Ovidiu Stanciu, who became my official supervisor at Diego Portales University during the last year of research; and Professor James McAllister and Dr. Herman Siemens, my formal supervisors at Leiden University.

I would also like to thank Prof. Roberto Walton, who kindly helped me initiate this research at The University of Buenos Aires; Prof. Thiemo Breyer, my host during my two short research stays at the University of Köln; Prof. Dieter Lohmar, for allowing me to access the Husserl archives in Köln while conducting my research; and all the Professors and colleagues I met throughout the years and who generously discussed philosophy with me.

Finally, I am grateful for the support of my friends, the phenomenological community we built in Santiago de Chile, the wonderful people I met in Leiden, and my loved ones in Buenos Aires.
