

Universiteit
Leiden
The Netherlands

Phenomenology of death: subjectivity and nature in Husserl's genetic phenomenology

Vecino, M.C.

Citation

Vecino, M. C. (2021, December 2). Phenomenology of death: subjectivity and nature in Husserl's genetic phenomenology. Retrieved from <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/3246992>

Version: Publisher's Version

License: Licence agreement concerning inclusion of doctoral thesis in the Institutional Repository of the University of Leiden

Downloaded from: <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/3246992>

Note: To cite this publication please use the final published version (if applicable).

Curriculum Vitae

María Celeste Vecino was born on 1 May 1987 in the city of Buenos Aires. She completed her license degree in Philosophy at the University of Buenos Aires, where she started her research in the field of phenomenology and contemporary philosophy. After obtaining a doctoral scholarship from ANid in 2016, she began her joint PhD at Diego Portales University in Santiago de Chile and Leiden University in the Netherlands. During her time in Chile, she worked as a teacher and coordinator for Diego Portales University (UDP) and the Pontifical Catholic University (PUC), and took part in the formation of a network of young researchers dedicated to the study of Phenomenology, with whom she organized several conferences and other academic activities.

She spent the second half of her time as a PhD student researching and teaching at Leiden University. As part of her graduate studies, she carried out two research stays at the University of Köln and the Husserl archives in 2019 and 2020.

Her current research is on Post-Husserlian phenomenology, focused on the notion of Nature.