

Voluntary return and the limits of individual responsibility in the EU Returns Directive Mommers, C.M.F.

Citation

Mommers, C. M. F. (2022, February 10). Voluntary return and the limits of individual responsibility in the EU Returns Directive. Meijersreeks. Retrieved from https://hdl.handle.net/1887/3264310

Version: Publisher's Version

Licence agreement concerning inclusion of License: doctoral thesis in the Institutional Repository of the University of Leiden

Downloaded from: https://hdl.handle.net/1887/3264310

Note: To cite this publication please use the final published version (if applicable).

Voluntary return and the limits of individual responsibility in the EU Returns Directive

Voluntary return and the limits of individual responsibility in the EU Returns Directive

PROEFSCHRIFT

ter verkrijging van de graad van Doctor aan de Universiteit Leiden, op gezag van rector magnificus prof.dr.ir. H. Bijl, volgens besluit van het college voor promoties te verdedigen op donderdag 10 februari 2022 klokke 11.15 uur.

door

Christian Martijn Francis Mommers

geboren te Harmelen

in 1979

Promotoren: Prof. dr. P.R. Rodrigues

Prof. dr. P. Boeles, emeritus

Promotiecommissie: Prof. dr. N.J. Schrijver

Prof. J.J. Rijpma

Prof. dr. G. Noll (University of Gothenburg)

Prof. dr. M.H.A. Strik (Radboud Universiteit Nijmegen)

Lay-out: AlphaZet prepress, Bodegraven Printwerk: Ipskamp Printing

© 2022 C.M.F. Mommers

Behoudens de in of krachtens de Auteurswet van 1912 gestelde uitzonderingen mag niets uit deze uitgave worden verveelvoudigd, opgeslagen in een geautomatiseerd gegevensbestand of openbaar gemaakt, in enige vorm of op enige wijze, hetzij elektronisch, mechanisch, door fotokopieën, opnamen of enig andere manier, zonder voorafgaande schriftelijke toestemming van de auteur.

No part of this book may be reproduced in any form, by print, photoprint, microfilm or any other means without written permission of the author.

Acknowledgements

This dissertation has been a process of stops and starts, trying to balance academic research with my professional and private life, more successfully during some periods than others. The various drafts have travelled with me from the Netherlands to Israel to Slovakia, back to the Netherlands, and finally to France. The relief of not having to pack up my notes and source materials if we decide to move again is almost worth it in itself.

I would not even have come close to completion without the wonderful and infinitely patient tandem of my promotor and co-promotor, professors Peter Rodrigues and Pieter Boeles. Pieter's openness and enthusiasm when I approached him many years ago provided me with the energy to dive into it. His approach of 'let's see how far we get' was the perfect way of giving me the freedom and confidence to explore my topic in different ways. While Peter 'inherited' me and my project after taking over Pieter's role at the Institute for Immigration Law, he was never anything less than fully supportive of my efforts, while also instilling in me a sense of structure and ensuring I kept my eye on the end goal of finishing. Although neither of them could have guessed at the time it would still take so long to get to this point, I hope this dissertation reflects the best of both worlds that Peter and Pieter's combined efforts brought.

I feel lucky to have benefitted from such a great doctorate committee, whose collective knowledge and track record made me very nervous, but whose comments were extremely helpful in putting the finishing touches on this dissertation: professor Gregor Noll, whose work inspired some of the key questions that helped shape my approach to this issue; professor Tineke Strik, with her unparalleled knowledge of the Directive and seemingly limitless supply of energy; professor Nico Schrijver, a preeminent voice on international law whose keen eye was invaluable; and professor Jorrit Rijpma, for bringing a crucial wider perspective on EU practice on readmission and showing how much there is still left to explore.

As an external PhD candidate, opportunities to engage in academic life were few and far between. But the moments I did get to spend at the Institute of Immigration Law, which later became part of the Europa Institute of the Leiden Law School, were always stimulating. I warmly thank current and past colleagues for always being welcoming and helpful during my infrequent visits. My gratitude also goes out to all other staff at the Europa Institute.

What I may have lost in being (very) external, I gained from keeping my feet firmly planted in practice. Colleagues in various organisations over the years have (maybe sometimes unwittingly) played an important role, whether it was by discussing current issues related to my topic or just VI Acknowledgements being interested in how I got on. I thank the mission of the International Organisation for Migration (IOM) in The Hague for giving me the initial space to embark on this process, and to all colleagues there for the many stimulating discussions about the dilemmas involved in voluntary return, which planted the seeds for this research. The Refugee Rights Clinic of Tel Aviv University gave me a 'home' and a place to stay grounded in Israel. I thank energetic, fun and dedicated colleagues in the Dutch section of Amnesty International, from whom I learned a lot on many different levels. And of course my current colleagues at the Office of the Council of Europe Commissioner for Human Rights, some of the brightest in the business, for their interest and support.

But most importantly, of course, I have to thank my family. They may not have fully understood what I was working on (or why), but they have mostly been so kind not to make fun of me for that. In that way it is hopefully a family achievement for my mother Ria and also my late father Frans, for whom the completion of this dissertation unfortunately did not come soon enough to be with us, but I hope he would have been excited about it. Thanks to my brothers Frans and Ardi, and their families: Josine, Isabelle, Emma, Jan, and Sielke. And, most of all, to my wife Mária, who has had to suffer through the entire process but gave me the space to hide away for periods – shirking my family duties – and giving up weekend and holiday time so I could write. Her equal measures of support and the necessary moments of 'isn't it about time you finish?' are part of the fabric of this dissertation. And finally, to my kids, Jonas, Zora and Hannah, who were not even born yet when I started, but who at last have an answer to their increasingly frequent question: 'daddy, when is your book done?'

Table of contents

Ac	CKNOV	VLEDGE	MENTS		V
Li	ST OF	ABBREV	TATIONS	X	(VII
1	Inti	RODUCT	ION		1
	1.1			rn and individual responsibility in the Returns
		Direct	-	1 7	1
	1.2	The D	irective i	n a nutshell	3
		1.2.1		ound to the Directive	4
			1.2.1.1	Adoption of the original Directive	4
			1.2.1.2		4
			1.2.1.3
				member states	5
		1.2.2	Key ele	ments of the return procedure	7
			1.2.2.1
				procedure	7
			1.2.2.2	•	S
				of individual responsibility	8 1.2.2.3
				time to act responsibly is given?	8
			1.2.2.4	Enforcement of the return decision	10
			1.2.2.5	Other elements	11
		1.2.3	The rec	ast proposal	12
	1.3	Volun	tary retu	rn: a potentially vague and open-ended concept?	15
		1.3.1	The obl	igation to return	16
		1.3.2	The vol	untary departure period	18
		1.3.3	Volunta	ary return as limitless responsibility?	20
	1.4	Resea	rch ques	tions and approach	22
		1.4.1	Overall	research question and sub-questions	22
		1.4.2	Method	lology and approach	22
			1.4.2.1	Breaking down the obligation to return into specific categories of action	23
			1.4.2.2	A triangle model for dealing with questions
				of responsibility	25
		1.4.3		of the analysis and limitations	29
			1.4.3.1	1	29
			1.4.3.2	1	30
			1.4.3.3	O	31
			1.4.3.4	Specific circumstances of the actors included
				in the analysis	33

VIII Table of contents

				Time limits on sources used	35
	1.5	Chapt	er overv	iew	35
2	Bacı	KGROUI	ND AND L	EGAL FRAMEWORK	39
	2.1	Introd	luction		39
	2.2	Backg	round		40
		2.2.1	The (pe	erceived) benefits of giving legal priority to
			volunta	ary return	41
		2.2.2	Volunta	ary return in practice: some facts and figures	45
				ority of voluntary return under pressure?	48
	2.3	Volun	tary retu	irn as expulsion and as international movement	50
		2.3.1	-	ary return as expulsion	50
		2.3.2		ary return as international movement	53
	2.4	EU lav			54
	2.5	Intern	ational h	numan rights law	56
		2.5.1		al role of international human rights law	57
		2.5.2		ht to leave any country, including one's own	58
			2.5.2.1	The right to leave in the relationship between third-country national and the
				EU member state	59
			2.5.1.2	The relevance of the right to leave to voluntary return under the Directive	60
			2.5.1.3	· ·
				issue travel documents	61
		2.5.3	The rig	ht to return	62
		2.5.4	U	s on the potential role of other instruments	63
	2.6	Custo		rernational law	65
		2.6.1		nary international norms on expulsion	66
			2.6.1.1
				regard to expulsion	67
			2.6.1.2	The International Law Commission's draft
				articles on the expulsion of aliens	68
			2.6.1.3	The role of customary international law in the interpretation of the Directive	69
		2.6.2	Custom	nary international norms on readmission	69
	2.7		lateral tre		71
		2.7.1	Conver	ntions on air and maritime traffic	71
		2.7.2	The UN	N Convention on Transnational Crime and its Prot	ocols on Migrant Smuggling and Trafficking
			in Hum	nan Beings	74
		2.7.3	The Vie	enna Convention on Consular Relations	75
	2.8	Readr	nission a	greements and arrangements	76
	2.9			ents and 'soft law' instruments	80
	2.10			terminology	82
			_	ary return and related concepts	82
				Voluntary return v. voluntary departure	82

Table of contents IX

			2.10.1.2 Voluntary return and the voluntary repatriation framework for refugees	84
			2.10.1.3 Voluntary return and assisted voluntary return programmes	84
			2.10.1.4 The notion of 'voluntariness': between coercion and choice?	85
		2.10.2	Other terminology	87
			2.10.2.1 Third-country nationals, aliens,
			non-nationals, and illegal stay	88
			2.10.2.2 Destination countries	89
	2.11	Concl	uding remarks	90
3	Iden	TIFYIN	G COUNTRIES OF RETURN AS OBLIGATORY DESTINATIONS	91
	3.1	Introd	uction	91
	3.2	The co	ountry of origin as an obligatory destination	93
		3.2.1	, 0	94
		3.2.2	Application of 'country of origin' to individuals with a nationality	95
		3.2.3	1	97
	3.3		sit country as an obligatory destination	99
		3.3.1	1	00
			obligatory destinations	99
			3.3.1.1 The existence of a transit situation and additional limitations	100
			3.3.1.2 Further requirements regarding the content of agreements and arrangements	102
		3.3.2
			transit country an obligatory destination	104
	3.4	Anoth	er third country	106
		3.4.1	Voluntarily deciding to go to another third country:
			meaning and implications	107
			Admission to another third country	110
	3.5	Concl		111
		3.5.1	Implications for the third-country national's
			responsibility	111
		3.5.2	Implications for the analysis	112
4	Rea	DMISSIC	ON OBLIGATIONS OF THE COUNTRY OF ORIGIN AND
	IMPI	LICATIO	NS FOR INDIVIDUAL RESPONSIBILITY	115
	4.1	Introd	uction	115
	4.2		ountry of origin's obligation to readmit nationals
			nplications for individual responsibility	116
		4.2.1	Customary international law	116
		4.2.2	O	119
			Multilateral treaties	123
		4.2.4	International human rights law	124

X Table of contents

			4.2.4.1	The content of the obligation to readmit as a function of the right to return	124
			4.2.4.2	Should human rights-based obligations to readmit be distinguished from inter-state
				obligations?	127
		4.2.5		tions for third-country nationals seeking return t	o their country of nationality	129
			4.2.5.1	Obligations on the third-country national to provide evidence of eligibility for readmission	130
			4.2.5.2	Limits on the obligation to provide evidence for readmission	131
	4.3			on of habitually resident stateless persons
				ns for their obligations	133
				nary international law	134
		4.3.2	Readmi	ission agreements	137
		4.3.3	Multila	teral treaties	138
		4.3.4	Human	rights instruments	140
			4.3.4.1	The 1954 Statelessness Convention	140
			4.3.4.2	The right to return under the ICCPR	141
		4.3.5		tions for stateless persons' obligations to seek readmis	ssion to their country of habitual residence	146
	4.4	Concl	usions		149
5	Iner	FECTIV	E INTER-S	STATE READMISSION DUTIES AND THE
,				ISE OF THE RIGHT TO RETURN	153
	5.1	Introd			153
	5.2			e ineffectiveness of inter-state readmission
				countries of origin	154
				ulness of expulsion	154
		5.2.2		ations for non-readmission	155
			5.2.2.1		156
				Force majeure	157
				Necessity	158
			5.2.2.4	•
				return	160
		5.2.3		ng views on the existence of a customary
				readmit?	161
			5.2.3.1	Issues of evidence of the existence of a customary rule	161
			5.2.3.2	Challenges to the reciprocal nature of the readmission obligations and other doctrinal
				issues	164
			5.2.3.3	A North-South divide?	166
	5.3	The co	mpulsor	ry exercise of the right to return	168
		5.3.1	Willing	ness to return as a relevant factor?	168

Table of contents XI

		5.3.2	The compulsory exercise of the right to return as a logical consequence of the return obligation?	172
		5.3.3	Compulsory exercise of the right to return and the	4.50
		F 0. 4	purpose of rights	173
		5.3.4	The ECtHR on 'negative rights'	175
		5.3.5	Re-assessing the individual right to return and the obligation to return to a country of origin	179
	5.4	Concl	, ,	180
	J. T	Conci	usions	100
6	Rea	DMISSIC	ON TO TRANSIT COUNTRIES	183
	6.1		uction	183
	6.2		n to transit countries under EU readmission agreements	185
		6.2.1	Initial comments on readmission agreements and their relevance to returns to transit countries	185
		6.2.2	Conditions for readmission	187
			6.2.2.1 Irregular entry or stay in the EU member state
			6.2.2.2 Link to the transit country	188
			6.2.2.3 Exceptions	189
		6.2.3	Means of evidence	190
		6.2.4	1 1	191
		6.2.5	Implications for third-country nationals and	400
			EU member states	192
			6.2.5.1 Triggering of readmission obligations:	100
			is the individual's consent needed?	192
			6.2.5.2 Obligations to provide relevant information	105
	()	D (and evidence	195
	6.3		n to transit countries under multilateral treaties	198
	6.4		n to transit countries under non-binding arrangements	201
	6.5	Concl	usions	205
7	Iden	TIFYIN	G APPROPRIATE COUNTRIES OF RETURN IN THE
	INDI	VIDUAL	CASE: DESTINATION CHOICE AND SAFE RETURN	209
	7.1	Introd		209
	7.2		e of destinations	211
		7.2.1	Expulsion and destination choice in (the preparation of) the ILC draft articles	211
		7.2.2	The right to leave as a right to choose one's own destination?	214
		7.2.3	The right to return to one's own country and interferences with choice	216
		7.2.4	A transit country as the third-country national's
			preferred destination	218
	7.3	Avoid	ing unsafe returns: voluntary return, non-refoulement
			uestions of responsibility	220
		7.3.1	Non-refoulement in the Directive: a symbolic inclusion
			or real function?	222

XII Table of contents

		7.3.2	Does voluntary return negate member states'
			responsibility for refoulement?	225
			7.3.2.1 Voluntary return as a sign of safe return?	225
			7.3.2.2 Voluntary return as a waiver for protection against refoulement?	226
		7.3.3	e e e e e e e e e e e e e e e e e e e
		7.0.0	voluntary departure period	231
		7.3.4	Closing the protection gap during the voluntary	201
		7.5.4		232
	7.4	Comal	departure period lusions	238
	7.4	Conci	usions	230
8	Овт	AINING	G TRAVEL DOCUMENTS	241
O	8.1		duction	241
	8.2		tions in which there is no need to obtain travel	271
	0.2	_		242
		docur		243
		8.2.1	Third-country nationals already in possession of valid travel documents and confiscation by the	0.40
			EU member state	243
		8.2.2	Return without travel documents?	245
	8.3	Third	countries' obligations to issue travel documents	246
		8.3.1	The link between readmission obligations and the issuance of travel documents in inter-state instruments	246
		8.3.2	The right to return and the right to travel documents	248
		8.3.3	The right to leave and the right to travel
			documents with the broadest possible validity	249
		8.3.4	The obligation to issue travel documents under the
			1954 Statelessness Convention	252
	8.4	Intera	actions with the competent authorities: requirements
	0.1		mitations	254
		8.4.1		254
		8.4.2		201
		0.4.2	demands	257
		0.4.2		237
		8.4.3	The prevention of the procurement and use of	0.61
	o -	TEST 153	fraudulent travel documents	261
	8.5		U member state as an issuing authority?	262
	8.6	Concl	usions	265
_	D _n ,	OTT 0 4 T
9			ARRANGEMENTS AND DEPARTURE FROM THE	200
			R STATE	269
	9.1		duction	269
	9.2		ling obligations for exiting the member state	270
		9.2.1	Fulfilment of specific conditions in the individual case	270
		9.2.2	General conditions for exiting external borders	271
	9.3	Retur	n assistance and the obligation to return	273
		9.3.1	Return assistance and voluntary return: general
			comments	273

Table of contents	XIII

		9.3.2	A right to return assistance under the Directive?	275
		9.3.3	An obligation to seek assistance?	280
	9.4	When	have third-country nationals successfully 'returned'?	282
		9.4.1	Proof of arrival in the destination state: an unsettled matter?	282
		9.4.2	Departure from the member state and the lack of a
			European effect	285
		9.4.3	A gap in the Directive?	289
	9.5	Conclu		290
	Т
10			TY OF VOLUNTARY RETURN AND THE THIRD-COUNTRY	202
			ENTITLEMENT TO A VOLUNTARY DEPARTURE PERIOD	293
		Introd		293
	10.2		al principles governing the priority of voluntary return	295
		10.2.1	Formulation of the priority for voluntary return in	205
			the Directive	295
			10.2.1.1 A right under EU secondary law	295
			10.2.1.2 Undermining of a return procedure:	207
		1022	a relevant factor?	296
		10.2.2	The priority of voluntary return and fundamental	200
			rights	299
			10.2.2.1 The right to leave as a right to voluntary	200
			return?	299
			10.2.2.2 Voluntary departure as a mechanism to	200
	40.0	ъ.	safeguard fundamental rights	300
	10.3		ng a voluntary departure period for reasons of public	201
			public security or national security	301
		10.3.1	The Zh. and O. case: the CJEU's first engagement	202
		1000	with the voluntary departure period	302
		10.3.2	Zh. and O. and the denial of a voluntary departure
			period due to a risk to public policy	303
			10.3.2.1 Requirements for considering a risk to public policy	303
			10.3.2.2 Circumstances to be taken into account	305
			10.3.2.3 Automatic application of Article 7(4), denial and the need for a fresh examination	306
		10.3.3	Implications of the judgment beyond the risk to public policy	307
			10.3.3.1 Risks to public security and national security	307
			10.3.3.2 Implications for the application of Article 7(4)
			generally	308
	10.4	-	ng a voluntary departure period and the risk of
		abscor		309
		10.4.1	General principles to be applied to the risk of absconding	309
		10.4.2	'Objective criteria defined by law'	310

XIV Table of contents

		10.4.3	The mean	ning of absconding and its relation to
				peration and non-return	313
				Towards a definition of 'absconding'	313
				The conflation of absconding with non-cooperation or non-return	316
		10.4.4		ing and the 'mere fact' of illegal stay	319
				law issues and the risk of absconding	322
				s to prevent absconding and the right to a
				y departure period	323
	10.5	Denyi		ntary departure period in case of
				unded or fraudulent applications	324
	10.6			oluntary departure period shorter than ecessary step to ensure proportionality?	328
	10.7			ovisions denying voluntary departure as
				n fundamental rights	331
	10.8	Concli		O	334
11	Тне	LENGTH	OF THE V	OLUNTARY DEPARTURE PERIOD	337
	11.1	Introd	uction		337
	11.2	Establi	ishing an	appropriate voluntary departure period	338
				ropriate' length of the voluntary re period and effective enjoyment of the _	voluntary return	340
		11.2.2	Individu	al circumstances: a role for concerns about
			non-com	pliance and non-cooperation?	342
		11.2.3		-making about the voluntary departure
			period: a	joint effort?	345
			11.2.3.1	Cooperation obligations of third-country nationals: providing relevant information
				about their 'starting position'	345
			11.2.3.2	Due diligence obligations of the member
			:	state?	347
		11.2.4	Minimur	n voluntary departure periods	350
			11.2.4.1	Extremely short voluntary departure periods	350
			11.2.4.2	The shortest period possible?	351
		11.2.5	Assignin	g voluntary departure periods on the basis of t	he third-country national's (prior) legal status	352
	11.3	Extend		untary departure period	353
		11.3.1	The exter	nsion of a voluntary departure period
			'where n	ecessary'	354
		11.3.2	Specific o	circumstances of the case to be taken into account		356
				What does it mean to take circumstances
				'into account'?	357
			11.3.2.2	Financial interests and property rights as
				circumstances to be taken into account?	359

Table of contents XV

		11.3.3		s between the initial voluntary departure nd extension	360
		Cuttin Conclu	g short a	voluntary departure period already granted	361 364
	11.0	Correr	2010110		001
12		CLUSIO			367
		Introd			367
	12.2	Conclu 1a and		the obligation to return (research questions	368
		12.2.1		gation to seek readmission to destination
				s (return element (i))	369
				Obligatory destinations	370
				Specific obligations with regard to	070
				readmission to countries of origin	373
				Specific obligations in relation to transit countries	379
				Choice of destinations and avoiding unsafe	319
				returns	381
		12.2.2		gation to obtain travel documents (return	001 element (385
		12.2.3	The obli	gation to make arrangements for departure
				lement (iii))	389
	12.3			of the voluntary departure period (research
		•	ns 2a and		392
		12.3.1		tlement to a voluntary departure period and
				ties of denial (research question 2a)	393
				The general principles governing the	202
				priority of voluntary return	393
				Denial of a voluntary departure period for reasons of public policy, public security or	204
				national security	394
				Denial of a voluntary departure period because of a risk of absconding	395
				Denial of a voluntary departure period in	393
			12.0.1.4	case of manifestly unfounded or fraudulent
				applications	398
			12.3.1.5	Considering a voluntary departure period	070
			12.011.0	shorter than seven days	399
			12.3.1.6	Incompatibility of certain provisions and proposals with fundamental rights	399
		12.3.2		ropriate length of the voluntary departure
				research question 2b)	400
				The initial voluntary departure period	400
			12.3.2.2	Extension of the voluntary departure period	402
			12.3.2.3	Cutting short a voluntary departure period	404

XVI Table of contents

12.4 Responsibility for voluntary return: towards a more nuanced understanding and application	404
12.4.1 The importance of the external dimension	405
12.4.2 The individual and the member state: voluntary return as shared responsibility	407
12.4.3 A fair and transparent application of responsibility	107
for voluntary return: proposed guidelines	410
Proposed guidelines on individual responsibility for voluntary
RETURN IN THE CONTEXT OF THE EU RETURNS DIRECTIVE	413
Samenvatting (Summary in Dutch)	425
References	443
List of cases	465
List of EU readmission agreements and agreements related
TO READMISSION REFERENCED	471
LIST OF MULTILATERAL TREATIES REFERENCED	473
Curriculum vitae	475

List of abbreviations

ACP African, Caribbean and Pacific states

ACVZ Adviescommissie Vreemdelingenzaken (Dutch Advisory Committee on Migration Affairs)

AFP Agence France-Presse
AG Advocate General
AP Associated Press

ARSIWA Articles on the Responsibility of States for Internationally

Wrongful Acts

AVR(R) Assisted Voluntary Return (and Reintegration)

CFR EU Charter of Fundamental Rights

CJEU Court of Justice of the EU

CoE Council of Europe

CMW International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families

CRC Convention on the Rights of the Child

CTOC UN Convention against Transnational Organised Crime DG HOME Directorate-General for Home Affairs of the European Commission

DIS Danish Immigration Service
DRC Danish Refugee Council

DT&V Dienst Terugkeer en Vertrek (Dutch Repatriation and Departure Service)

ECHR European Convention on Human Rights

EC European Community
ECJ European Court of Justice

ECOMMHR European Commission on Human Rights
ECRE European Council on Refugee and Exiles
ECSR European Committee on Social Rights
ECtHR European Court of Human Rights

EEA European Economic Area

EEAS European External Action Service EFTA European Free Trade Association

EP European Parliament

EPRS European Parliamentary Research Service

ERPUM European Return Platform for Unaccompanied Minors

ESC European Social Charter ETS European Treaty Series

EU European Union

FAL Convention Convention on Facilitation of International Maritime

Traffic

XVIII List of abbreviations

FRA EU Fundamental Rights Agency HRC Human Rights Committee

HRW Human Rights Watch

ICAO International Civil Aviation Organisation

ICCPR International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights

ILC UN International Law Commission

INLIA Internationaal Netwerk van Lokale Initiatieven met Asiel-zoekers (International network of initiatives with asylum seekers)

IOM International Organisation for MigrationIMO International Maritime OrganisationIRB Immigration and Refugee Board of Canada

LIBE Committee on Civil Liberties, Justice and Home Affairs of the European Parliament

NGO Non-governmental organisation

NOS Nationale Omroepstichting (Dutch national broadcast service)

OAS Organisation of American States

OHCHR UN Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights

PACE Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe

PICUM Platform for International Cooperation on

Undocumented Migrants

RD Returns Directive

RDS Repatriation and Departure Service

RWI Raoul Wallenberg Institute SBC Schengen Borders Code TI Transparency International

UDHR Universal Declaration of Human Rights

UN United Nations

UNESCO United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural

Organisation

UNGA United Nations General Assembly

UNHCR United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees UNODC United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime

UNTS United Nations Treaty Series

WODC Wetenschappelijk Onderzoek- en Documentatiecentrum

(Scientific Research and Documentation Centre of the Dutch Ministry of Justice)