

Universiteit
Leiden

The Netherlands

News in a glasshouse: media, publics, and senses of belonging in the Dutch Caribbean

Rotmeijer, S.H.

Citation

Rotmeijer, S. H. (2023, May 23). News in a glasshouse: media, publics, and senses of belonging in the Dutch Caribbean.

Retrieved from <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/3618456>

Version: Publisher's Version

License: Licence agreement concerning inclusion of doctoral thesis in the Institutional Repository of the University of Leiden

Downloaded from: <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/3618456>

Note: To cite this publication please use the final published version (if applicable).

News in a Glasshouse

Media, Publics, and Senses of Belonging in the Dutch
Caribbean

Sanne Rotmeijer

COLOPHON

Cover Design

Noël Deelen, noeldeelen.nl

Language editor

Prof.dr. Jessica V. Roitman

Printing

Ridderprint, ridderprint.nl

Illustrations

Noël Deelen, noeldeelen.nl

ISBN: 978-94-6483-075-0

Copyright © Sanne Rotmeijer 2023

News in a Glasshouse

Media, Publics, and Senses of Belonging in the Dutch
Caribbean

Proefschrift

ter verkrijging van
de graad van doctor aan de Universiteit Leiden, op gezag van rector magnificus prof.dr.ir. H. Bijl, volgens besluit van het college voor promoties
te verdedigen op dinsdag 23 mei 2023
klokke 15.00 uur

door

Sanne Helene Rotmeijer

Promotores:

Prof.dr. G.J. Oostindie

Prof.dr. J. de Jong

Co-promotor:

Dr. F.E. Guadeloupe

(University of Amsterdam, KITLV)

Promotiecommissie:

Prof.dr. M.E. de Bruijn

Prof.dr. B.A. Barendregt

Dr. T. van Hout

(Tilburg University)

Prof.dr. B. Mutsvairo

(Utrecht University)

Prof.dr. M.P.J. van de Port

(University of Amsterdam)

The research in this PhD dissertation was funded by the Royal Netherlands Academy of Arts and Sciences (KNAW) and the Royal Netherlands Institute of Southeast and Caribbean Studies (KITLV).

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Thank you,

Newsmakers on and from Curaçao and Sint Maarten. You turn events into stories that opened up the world to me, again and once more. This dissertation is a testimony to what you taught me.

Newspapers Antilliaans Dagblad, Èxtra, and The Daily Herald. You opened your doors and welcomed me. I learned a lot from what everyday journalism takes – on the islands and beyond – and the immense passion, love, and labor that keeps these organizations going.

Journalists, reporters, (chief-)editors, bloggers, and all of you working for or with news media on the islands and within the Kingdom of The Netherlands, who I was fortunate to meet and work with. My deepest respect for you. Working 6 days a week and giving it all (at times against all odds) greatly inspired me.

Those who made Curaçao and Sint Maarten feel like home to me. Inchi and Pedro, I'll never forget you took me to the sea for a swim once I arrived. Chef Pedro, your meals were simply amazing. Ieteke, your insights, care, and engagement are things I treasure. Renske, you've been my entrance to many as well as my shoulder when times were getting rough. Thank you, for all you've done and the friends we continue to be. Tim, you've taught me more than you may realize. I'm very grateful for that. My hosts in Belvedere, SXM, for your kind hospitality: thank you. Jordi, although we had already met as PhDers in The Netherlands, we grew close on SXM. Thanks so much for the Karaoke, Bang Bang shrimps, and being such a dear friend since.

To my supervisors Gert Oostindie, Jaap de Jong, Francio Guadeloupe – without you this thesis wouldn't be here! Gert, thank you so much for your intensive support and guidance, as a supervisor, project leader, and KITLV-director, throughout this PhD trajectory. Your door has always been open for me, which I deeply appreciate. Jaap, I greatly valued your personal involvement, encouragement, and faith in me. Thank you for welcoming me at the department of Journalism and New media, where I learned a lot from interacting with you and the team. Francio, your help with turning my experiences into the story I wished to tell has been paramount. I'm deeply grateful for our conversations, your willingness to share your insights and life wisdoms.

To my dear 'Confronting Caribbean Challenges' team members: Jessica Roitman, Wouter Veenendaal, Malcom Ferdinand, Stacey Mac Donald. Jess, I cannot thank you enough for the colleague you've been and the role model you are. In addition to your amazing editing work, I couldn't have brought this thesis to a good end without your emotional support. Wouter, you helped me out so many times: with preparing presentations, with understanding political complexities, with getting the facts right. Your swift intellect is inspiring, your humor very contagious. Malcom, I'm very grateful for the time I could work with and learn from you. Thank you for sharing your knowledge and also for our joint love for dancing. Last but not least, Stacey: thank you for standing with me through the highs and lows; for your listening ear and helping me to think out loud; for being the one I could reach out to, no matter what.

To my colleagues at the KITLV: it was such a pleasure working (and having fun) with you all. From the weekly research lunches and monthly 'entre nous' meetings to the annual Christmas dinners and occasional boat trips: thank you for the great time I had at this institute. To my colleagues at JNM: thanks for welcoming me so heartily. A special shout out to Tom, Willem, Astrid, Tomás, Willemijn, Addie, Alexander, Michaël, Peter.

Dank jullie wel,

Dore, Floor, Reine, Talitha, Adam, Adina, Amber, Barry, Maria, Tamar, Sanne, Miriam, Lisa, Alex, Jante – voor jullie onvoorwaardelijke vriendschap, ook op afstand en in afwezigheid door de tijd heen. Famke, heel veel dank voor alle gesprekken en inzichten – ik waardeer je enorm en zal je dankbaar blijven.

Mam, pap; Jos, Ger en mijn bonusouders Rob en Mieke – jullie steun is onvergetelijk en koester ik intens. Tijmen en Esmee – jullie zijn de beste broer en zus die ik had kunnen wensen. Dit geldt ook voor mijn andere broers en zussen: Franca, Lei, Mats, Alette, Lianne, Steven, Maarten, Maud, Mare. Mijn naaste schoonfamilie: Els, Marc, Peter, Charlotte, Opa en Oma, Opa Saab en Marjo, Bart, Christine – ik heb jullie betrokkenheid en open armen als een cadeau ervaren.

Erik, je vroeg mij eens: 'Hoe eet je een olifant?' Het antwoord (hapje voor hapje) deed me lachen. Dank je wel voor je humor, je zorgen, je kattenfilmpjes, je liefde voor Noot (en mij). Dat een olifant in hapjes alsnog taai is, wist jij natuurlijk ook wel. Volgens mij kunnen we eindelijk gaan uitbuiken – tijd voor muziek!

CONTENTS

Colophon	2
Acknowledgements.....	5
1 Introduction	11
1.1. Curaçao and Sint Maarten: the construction of two glasshouses	15
1.2. News and ‘the news’: the formation of multiple publics	31
1.3. Turning events into a story: the approach and outline of this book	36
2 An history of ‘the news’ contested by news.....	51
Emerging publics in the public sphere on Curaçao and Sint Maarten
2.1. Between Mission and transmission: the transformation of Curaçao’s public sphere.....	53
2.2. Running your own affairs on Sint Maarten: news in a public sphere that is private	62
2.3. Encounters between the popular and the institutional public on Curaçao and Sint Maarten	70
2.4. Going on air and underground: news and ‘the news’ in a neoliberal capitalist world.....	81
2.5. Comparison and Contrast	90
3 Who is the “black bourgeoisie”?.....	95
Contested senses of belonging among Sint Maarten’s middle classes
3.1. A Pan-Africanist on Sint Maarten	97
3.2. Black nationalism alongside a ‘creole’ establishment	103
3.3. The interpellation of a black nationalist common sense of belonging.....	110
3.4. The common sense of belonging of an emerging generation of young(er) Sint Maarteners.....	121
3.5. Politics of belonging in a shared public sphere.....	129

4 The lottery of life.....	135
A common sense of belonging as expressed by Curaçao's working classes
4.1. The 'university of the street': newsmaking in the cultural public sphere	142
4.2. Sometimes you win, sometimes you lose: the facts of daily island life.....	148
4.3. Tomorrow, ku Dios ke : a common sense of belonging to the Kingdom of God	161
4.4. Celebrating chance at the bottom of the social order	169
5 A shattered glasshouse.....	171
Cathartic senses of belonging in Hurricane Irma's aftermath across the Dutch world
5.1. A house without a roof: news and 'the news' in the eye of the storm	173
5.2. The intensification of popular news practices in Irma's aftermath.....	179
5.3. All belong to 'we', Sint Maarteners: Cathartic senses of belonging in the Dutch world.....	188
5.4. Building back better?: A glasshouse reconstructed	201
6 Conclusion.....	207
References.....	216
Summary.....	235
Samenvatting.....	241
Curriculum Vitae	247

