Curriculum Vitae

Fernanda Valdés Raczynski was born in Mexico City in August 1972. She received her bachelor and teaching degree in Education in April 1995 at the Pontificia Universidad Católica de Chile. In October 2002 she obtained her postgraduate degree in counselling for education at the same University. She has spent her career in public and private educational institutions, both as teacher and as senior executive. She has led teaching and management training programmes at the Chilean Ministry of Education, and she has occupied the post of executive director of the National Council of Education of Chile. Currently, she is a professor in educational policies at post graduate programmes in education and director of the quality assurance department at the Universidad de los Andes at Santiago de Chile. She is also a board member at Aequalis Higher Education Forum and advisor to Universitas, a group for advanced studies on higher education.
