CURRICULUM VITAE

The author of this dissertation was born in Leiden, the Netherlands in 1991. In 2010, he started a bachelor in Industrial Design Engineering at the Technical University of Delft (Delft, the Netherlands). During his bachelor degree, he also completed a minor in Medicine at the Erasmus University Medical Center (Rotterdam, the Netherlands). After his bachelor degree, he started a master in Biomedical Engineering at the Technical University of Delft in 2014. During his master degree, he did an internship at Philips Healthcare (Eindhoven, the Netherlands). Eventually, he completed his master's graduation project at the Leiden University Medical Center (Leiden, the Netherlands).

In 2018, the author started his PhD study at the Cardio Vascular Imaging Group (CVIG) at the Department of Radiology (supervisors: prof. dr. H.J. Lamb and dr. ir. J.J.M. Westenberg) at Leiden University Medical Center. His PhD project was part of the RADAR study on earlier recognition of aortic dissection and aneurysm rupture. The RADAR study was conducted in collaboration with the Technical University of Delft and the Maastricht University Medical Center (Maastricht, the Netherlands). During his PhD study, he developed a comprehensive aorta MRI protocol for clinical evaluation of patients and healthy volunteers. Furthermore, he also developed an imaging analysis platform to quantify morphologic and hemodynamic biomarkers of the aorta. He presented his work at multiple international conferences and received a Travel award from the Society for Cardiovascular Magnetic Resonance (2020, Orlando, United States of America) for the multicenter 4D flow study he conducted.

After his PhD study, the author started a position as Big Data Engineer at KPMG (Amstelveen, the Netherlands).
