

Universiteit
Leiden

The Netherlands

Just to be sure? An analysis of security in relation to the values of well-being, freedom, and equality

Daemen, J.A.M.

Citation

Daemen, J. A. M. (2024, May 2). Just to be sure?: An analysis of security in relation to the values of well-being, freedom, and equality. Retrieved from <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/3750298>

Version: Publisher's Version

License: Licence agreement concerning inclusion of doctoral thesis in the Institutional Repository of the University of Leiden

Downloaded from: <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/3750298>

Note: To cite this publication please use the final published version (if applicable).

Just to Be Sure?

An Analysis of Security in Relation to the Values of
Well-being, Freedom, and Equality

Josette Daemen

Copyright © 2024 by Josette Daemen
All rights reserved
Cover design by Studio Nergens
Printed by Ipskamp Printing

Just to Be Sure?
An Analysis of Security in Relation to the Values of Well-being, Freedom, and Equality

Proefschrift

ter verkrijging van
de graad van doctor aan de Universiteit Leiden, op gezag van rector magnificus prof.dr.ir. H. Bijl, volgens besluit van het college voor promoties
te verdedigen op donderdag 2 mei 2024

klokke 16.15 uur

door

Josette Anna Maria Daemen
geboren te Schimmert
in 1993

Promotor

Prof.dr. P. Nieuwenburg

Co-promotores

Prof.dr. I. Robeyns

Dr. M. Verschoor

Promotiecommissie

Prof.dr. B. A. Barendregt (decaan Graduate School, Voorzitter)

Prof.dr. J. J. M. van Holsteijn

Prof.dr. M. L. J. Wissenburg (Radboud Universiteit)

Prof.dr. R. A. Boin

Prof.dr. M. R. Rutgers

Dr. R. A. Ploof

Financieel ondersteund door

Coryfeeënfonds Universiteit Leiden

Instituut Politieke Wetenschap Universiteit Leiden

Acknowledgements

When I decided that I was going to spend three years of my life writing a doctoral dissertation about the value of security, I didn't foresee how often during those five years (that's right) I would feel that there was something rather ironic about this whole endeavour. There I was, writing days on end about the importance of security for leading a flourishing life, while I myself was moving down a path of so much insecurity. Insecurity about my job and income once my PhD contract would end (after which I would have to try my luck on the dreaded academic labour market); insecurity about the direction into which my research would take me (wasn't I running in circles, or stuck on a dead-end road?); insecurity about whether or not it would ultimately all be good enough. It looks like I made it to the end, though, and this is in large part because of one thing that I did always have security of in the past few years; one thing that I could consistently count on: the support of a whole lot of wonderful people that I found by my side. I want to express my special gratitude to some of them.

Firstly, my supervisors, whose guidance has been invaluable throughout my PhD journey. Paul Nieuwenburg has inspired, encouraged, and supported me for almost twelve years already – first as a teacher, later as a colleague, finally as my promotor. He gave me exactly the freedom that I needed to make this project my own, while also drawing on his unbelievably vast knowledge of political philosophy literature to point me at precisely those resources that helped me ahead most. Marco Verschoor taught me not just how to be a truly rigorous thinker, but also how to be a good and fair and kind teacher. Ingrid Robeyns gave me both fantastic feedback on my work and indispensable advice for navigating academia, and showed me that doing political philosophy can really be a way of making the world better.

Then, Leiden's Institute of Political Science, where I had already felt so at home as a student, and where – after two years abroad – I was welcomed so warmly as a PhD candidate. My work has benefited tremendously from the constructive comments I received from various colleagues, among them Becky Ploof, Matthew Longo, Jelena Belic, Francesco Ragazzi, and Huib Pellikaan. I owe special thanks to Tom Theuns, who was exceptionally generous with his feedback, advice, and encouragement. For moral support I am particularly grateful to Petr Kopecký and Frank de Zwart, who adopted me in their Anarchy Reading Group; Maria Spirova, Daniëlle Lovink, and Thomas Scarff, who always created a warm atmosphere at the department; Arjen Boin, who had my back during the COVID-19 pandemic; and Joop van Holsteijn, who has supported me in countless ways from my bachelor's onwards. Finally, my PhD comrades, especially Alex Schilin and Lukas Spielberger, who stood next to me from the beginning until the end, as well as Diana Dávila Gordillo, Rick van Well, Elia Zorina, Hannah Kuhn, Denny van der Vlist, Katie Brown, Alessia Aspide, Sasha Khokhlova, Ruben van de Ven, Anouk van Vliet, Lefteris Karchimakis, Thijs Vos, and Jesse Doornenbal.

Outside the Institute, too, I have met several brilliant people over the past couple of years who engaged with my research, challenged my thinking, or helped me in my work in some other way. I am thinking of, among many others, Tim Meijers, Kritika Maheshwari, Enzo Rossi, Yvette Drissen, Sven Nyholm, Constanze Binder, Rutger Claassen, Uğur Aytac, Maurits de Jongh, Martha Claeys, Janosch Prinz, Nicholas Vrousalis, Marli Huijer, Martijntje Smits, and Daan Roovers. And although there isn't enough space to mention them by name here, I also want to express my gratitude to the inspiring people I've cooperated with at Bij Nader Inzien, Socialisme & Democratie, Mare, and NRC. Working and writing for these non-academic outlets often felt like a way of keeping myself sane.

Speaking of my sanity, I'm absolutely certain that I would have lost it altogether if it weren't for my friends, including my dear ones from Huize Hugo, Fabel, and SPIL – I can't name them all, but let me at least mention Diede, Marieke, Lieve, Josefien, Aimee, and Jana, who always care so much. My paranymphs Jip and Lisa, who do not just challenge me intellectually but also manage to lift my spirits under any circumstance. My warmhearted family-in-law, and my amazing parents Ank and Mark, who are always, always there, just like my extraordinary Geschwister Loek and Celine – plus Aron, who together with Celine designed this book's beautiful cover.

Daan, my love, I owe you so much that I could write a whole new thesis about it – but I sincerely promise you that I'll never do this again.

Table of Contents

Acknowledgements	6
Table of contents	8
Abstract	10
Samenvatting	11
Chapter 1: Security and the Values of Well-being, Freedom, and Equality	14
1.1. Security and values	14
1.2. Security beyond Hobbes and Locke	18
1.3. Well-being, freedom, and equality	21
1.4. Looking ahead	28
Chapter 2: Security: A Conceptual Analysis	36
2.1. How to understand security?	36
2.2. Security as a mode of enjoyment	37
2.3. The factual aspect and the cognitive aspect of security	40
2.4. The emotional aspect of security	43
2.5. Security as an integrated concept	45
2.6. A starting point for further analysis	49
Chapter 3: Being Sure and Living Well: How Security Affects Human Flourishing	52
3.1. Security and well-being	52
3.2. Security as sureness	54
3.3. Human flourishing	58
3.4. What is good about security?	60
3.5. What is bad about security?	68
3.6. Striking a balance	72
Chapter 4: Freedom, Security, and the COVID-19 Pandemic	78
4.1. Freedom versus security?	78
4.2. The concepts of freedom and security	80
4.3. How freedom can come at the cost of security	84
4.4. How security can come at the cost of freedom	86
4.5. How freedom can work to the benefit of security	89
4.6. How security can work to the benefit of freedom	92
4.7. Taking all four connections into account	94

Chapter 5: Finding Security in Equality: On the Securities (Not) to Be Offered by an Egalitarian Society	100
5.1. Security on the left	100
5.2. The securities that an egalitarian society does have to offer	103
5.2.1. Egalitarian moral security	104
5.2.2. Egalitarian economic security	106
5.2.3. Egalitarian political security	109
5.3. The securities that an egalitarian society does not have to offer	112
5.3.1. Conservative moral security	112
5.3.2. Libertarian economic security	115
5.3.3. Authoritarian political security	117
5.4. The best security we can get?	120
Chapter 6: The Value of Security: Lessons for Theory and Practice	126
6.1. Concluding the analysis	126
6.2. Looking back	126
6.3. The value of security	130
6.4. Dealing with security issues	137
Bibliography	142
Curriculum Vitae	152