Jamal El Ouahi was born in Cherbourg (France) on June 13th, 1983. Jamal received his Baccalauréat in Mathematics with honors, from Lycée Jean-Francois Millet (Cherbourg) in 2001. Next, he prepared for the Grandes Écoles with a 2-year intensive coursework in Mathematics, Physics and Chemistry at the Lycée Victor Grignard (Cherbourg). In 2006, he received his Master of Sciences in multidisciplinary Engineering from École Centrale Marseille in France, with a major in Applied Mathematics and his Master of Sciences specialized in Computational and Applied Mathematics the same year from University of Provence Aix-Marseille. He started his career at Allianz in Paris, working as an Actuary. Later, he worked as a Project Manager for Credit Agricole Corporate Investment Bank in Dubai and then in Tokyo where he led several Business Transformation and Information Technology/Software/Data projects.

He joined Thomson Reuters in 2010 as a Solutions Consultant for the Middle East and Africa Region. He first worked for the Financial and Risk division of Thomson Reuters and then for the Intellectual Property & Science division. Jamal is now a consultant at Clarivate, where he collaborates with Governments, Funding Agencies, Universities and Research Centers.

Jamal started his PhD studies at the Centre for Science and Technology Studies (CWTS) of Leiden University in 2018 under the co-supervision of Prof. Dr. Ludo Waltman and Dr. Thomas Franssen. Jamal's PhD project mainly focuses on the topics of research evaluation and quantitative science studies with a focus on Middle East and North Africa. During his PhD, he has published several papers in the leading international peer reviewed journals and conference proceedings. Jamal has also served as a reviewer of journals in the field, including Quantitative Science Studies, Scientometrics, Social Sciences and Frontiers in Research Metrics and Analytics.
