

Universiteit
Leiden
The Netherlands

The Muslim woman question in Bosnia and Herzegovina: between Islamic tradition and global modernity

Šerić, M.

Citation

Šerić, M. (2025, September 24). The Muslim woman question in Bosnia and Herzegovina: between Islamic tradition and global modernity. Retrieved from <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/4261977>

Version: Publisher's Version

License: Licence agreement concerning inclusion of doctoral thesis in the Institutional Repository of the University of Leiden

Downloaded from: <https://hdl.handle.net/1887/4261977>

Note: To cite this publication please use the final published version (if applicable).

Curriculum vitae

Marija Šerić was born in 1976 in Osijek, Croatia. She completed her primary education in Garevac (Bosnia and Herzegovina), and her secondary education in Zagreb, where she also graduated in Croatology and Philosophy from the University of Zagreb. Furthering her academic formation in Rome, she obtained a Licentiate in Islamic and Arabic Studies from the Pontifical Institute for Arabic and Islamic Studies (PISAI).

Her research interests lie primarily in modern Islamic intellectual history and Islam in European contexts. She is especially concerned with evolving interpretations of Islamic religious sources related to women, and the ways in which gender discourse intersects with broader social, religious, and political debates in Muslim societies.