Curriculum Vitae

Lam Sze Hong (Ocean) was born in 1996 in Hong Kong. He completed his pre-university education in Hong Kong before entering the University of Hong Kong, where he earned his LL.B between 2014 and 2018. He later obtained a Postgraduate Certificate in Law (PCLL) in 2019, also from the University of Hong Kong. In 2020, Lam graduated with an Advanced LL.M in Public International Law (cum laude) from Leiden University, the Netherlands. This was followed by his Ph.D. studies in Law at the Grotius Centre for International Legal Studies, Leiden University, conducted from 2021 to 2025.

His doctoral training included teaching and supervision responsibilities, academic coordination, and convening international legal symposia and workshops. From 2021 to 2025, Lam taught courses in Public International Law and International Criminal Law at both undergraduate and postgraduate levels; supervised LLM theses, coached the Leiden IBA-ICC Moot teams, organised academic events, and published on a variety of topics relating to the intersections of colonialism, international law, and geopolitics.

Following his academic education, Lam held various legal and research positions. He served as a legal intern at the Office of the Prosecutor, United Nations International Residual Mechanism for Criminal Tribunals (2020), and at the Office of the Legal Adviser, Organisation for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons (2020-2021). Since 2023, Lam has been an elected member of the Steering Committee of the European Society of International Law's Interest Group on the History of International Law.

His Ph.D. research was conducted at the Grotius Centre for International Legal Studies, Leiden Law School. From April to July 2025, he also undertook a research stay at the Lauterpacht Centre for International Law at the University of Cambridge.
