Curriculum Vitae

Uğur Derin was born in Istanbul in 1988. He had his double major at Bahçeşehir University, from the programs of American Culture and Literature (2010) and Sociology (2012). He did his MA at Sabancı University History program between 2012 and 2014. He received his Master's degree in November 2014 from Sabancı University, with his thesis titled "Legitimation of the Single Party Period in Turkey: A Critical Approach," in which he argued against the conventional narrative in Turkey according to which the single-party period and the authoritarian/dictatorial practices of Mustafa Kemal was necessary due to the circumstances of the period. Derin started his PhD in 2015 at Leiden University Turkish Studies program with the supervision of Erik-Jan Zürcher (and from 2020 onwards, Alp Yenen as co-supervisor). Derin worked as Teaching Assistant both when he was at Sabancı University during his MA, and during his PhD at Leiden University. In 2019 he taught a thesis seminar course, and in 2021 an Ottoman History and Culture course. As of September 2025, Derin has published several book chapters, book reviews, and newspaper articles.
