CURRICULUM VITAE

Vincent Breugem was born in Mijdrecht on August 3, 1970. He completed his secondary education (Atheneum) at the Scholengemeenschap Genderdal in Eindhoven in 1990, and enrolled in the Department of Japanese Studies, Leiden University, in the same year. During his studies he received a grant from the Netherlands organisation for international cooperation in higher education (Nuffic) and spent six months in Japan, studying Shingon Buddhism at Shinagawadera (Honsenji) and Taishō University (Department of Indian and Buddhist Studies) in Tokyo. Having received his MA from Leiden University in 1996, he was invited by the municipality of Hikawa-chō and spent a year in Hikawa, a small rural town on the Japan Sea coast. After a brief stint in the Netherlands he returned to Japan in 1998, became a Zen monk, and for two years entered monastic life. Awarded a two-year scholarship by the Japanese Ministry of Education (Monbusho) in 2001, he lived in Kyoto for two years, doing research at Kyoto University (Department of Japanese History) and Hanazono University (International Research Institute for Zen Studies). In 2004-2008 he obtained a fully funded PhD research position at Leiden University (CNWS). In 2008 he received a three-month grant from the Leiden University Fund (LUF) for research in Japan. Currently he is a research fellow at the Leiden University Institute for Area Studies (LIAS), in the VICI project “Buddhism and Social Justice.”
